Adopt, Adapt, Improve Three Good New Year Words

A Plan for Gandhi

Lindbergh Has an Estate

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

ADOPT, ADAPT, IMPROVE

Those three words, recommended by the Prince of Wales to his fellow countrymen, might well be ADOPTED, ADAPTED and IMPROVED in this country.

The young prince, one of the most useful, hard-working citizens of Great Britain, said to British industrialists:

"We British think we are very efficient, and we are at the head of the world in lots of things, but to keep in the van we must be conscious of that very valuable thing—the knowledge that we learn something new every day. To put in three words: we must learn to adopt, to adapt, and to improve."

We Americans think we are very efficient. In fact, we are absolutely sure of it. But we do not always "adopt, adapt, improve."

For instance, railroad managers of the United States stood looking, doing nothing, while automobiles, omnibuses and trucks took away some of their most profitable business.

They woke up late to that situation, and they are not thoroughly awake yet.

And to nearby suburban points they drag gigantically heavy "local trains," stopping and starting at every station, wasting money, men, machinery, rails.

They could just as well send out in rapid succession light cars driven by gas engines, each one an express, each going without stop to its own station and no farther. A little ADOPTING, ADAPTING and IMPROVING would arrange that.

The late President Ripley of the Santa Fe, brilliant railroad man, chose for his motto three very important words, "ORGANIZE, DEPUTIZE, SUPERVISE."

Three good words. The Prince of Wales' three words are also needed, even in this super-efficient land.

A big silver pool in China has been "unloading" heavy stocks of silver metal, and silver is cheaper today than it has been in 25 years.

Indo-China may adopt the gold standard, because France wants it. If that should happen and the people of India should put into the metal market, for any reason, the gigantic hordes of silver ornaments and silver metal that the Hindus possess the price of silver would grieve the shade of W. J. Bryan.

If Gandhi, apostle of freedom for India, should tell his millions of followers to exchange their silver for gold, he would distort his British overlords consideably, and develop in them a politeness that would embarrass him He can't do it by his plan of reviving the hand loom to compete with British machinery.

St. Louis wants to erect a statue to Lindbergh. It is unnecessary. It is too soon, and who in the country could make it good enough, except MacMonnies, and he, for the time, has given up sculpture.

A British judge suggests copying, for English prisons, an experiment made in Germany. Prisoners that work well, behave themselves, show "some desire to become good citizens," will have special privileges.

Their cells will remain lighted until 9:30 p. m. They will share in prison management, and have two weeks once a year to visit friends and keep in touch with the world outside.

Rebellion in American prisons proves that mere discipline is not enough. Perhaps showing a real interest in criminals, realizing how narrow a line separates respectability from crime, would help.

"But for the grace of God, there lies John Huss," said the Bohemian martyr, looking at a drunkard in the gutter.

And "but for the grace of God, there I sit," anyone of us might say, seeing a convict in his cell.

Advertising means selling goods, which means making more goods necessary. And that means employing labor.

Young Mr. L. Ames Brown, with the snowplow jaw, says that Lord and Thomas and Logan, the firm of which he is president, has placed $40,000,000 worth of advertising this year.

That's good news for business.

Mr. Brown thinks his firm has done more advertising this year than any other. This column will be glad to hear from other agencies, Ayer & Son, J. Walter Thompson, Barton Durstine and Osborne, or any other that thinks Mr. Brown is mistaken.

INSURANCE COMPANY IS BANKRUPT

Has Deficit of $250,000 and 10,000 Policy Holders Are Affected

With 10,000 policy holders and 1200 claims outstanding, the Massachusetts Mutual Liability Insurance Co. was today permanently enjoined from doing further business in Massachusetts.

The injunction was issued by Judge Field in Supreme Court on information by Insurance Commissioner Merton L. Brown that the company is insolvent, with a deficit of at least $250,000.

Henry F. Hurlburt, Jr., of the law firm of Hurlburt, Jones & Hall, 53 State st., was appointed receiver of the property and effects of the company, and was directed to file a bond for $100,000.

Today's action puts out of business the last but one of the numerous mutual liability insurance companies formed in 1927 to handle the new compulsory automobile insurance.

INSURED AUTOMOBILES

The Massachusetts Mutual Liability Insurance Company is a corporation organized to transact on the mutual plan classes of business specified in general laws C 175, Sec. 47 clause 6, particularly relating to automobile insurance.

The directors of the company are Alfred N. Labreeque, W. E. Stanwood, Paul Bertelsen, Irving G. Hall and William Cummings.

It is understood one of the chief reasons for the insolvency of the company was heavy losses on taxicab and drive-yourself business, together with inability to collect from agents.

The company failed to oppose the injunction, which was issued on petition of Asst. Atty.-Gen. Roger Clapp.

John J. Burns is listed as president, Thomas J. Brown treasurer, Walter R. Smith secretary, Edmund V. Maloney assistant treasurer and John W. Lorance attorney.

According to figures on file in the office of Insurance Commissioner Brown, the company had a deficit of $288,000 on December 17, with something over $100,000 in uncollected premiums from brokers and agents. Since that time $20,000 has been collected.

The insurance commissioner was to inform the registrar of motor vehicles of today's action at once, and policy-holders will be given

SHORTAGES IN TOWN BOOKS OF HOLLISTON

"Chaotic" Accounts $3500 Off, Says State Auditor; Collector $2200 Shy

A shortage of $3551.51 has been discovered in the accounts of the town of Holliston and another, of $2240.82, in the accounts of Tax Collector Francis J. Thain, it became known today.

According to Theodore N. Waddell, state director of accounts, an audit of the period from January 1, 1928, to November 6, 1929, has revealed a "chaotic condition."

His auditors, Waddell declared, encountered great difficulty in checking the accounts due to "unbusinesslike methods" of Town Treasurer Harry L. Adams.

The state auditor stated that in one instance his investigators found included as cash on hand a check for $500.00, dated October 1, 1928.

It was shown that the collector accepted this check from the drawer in payment of taxes for 1926 and 1927, with interest to October, 1928, and turned it over to the treasurer.

$4000 ITEMS UNPAID

Both the collector and treasurer, according to Waddell, stated that it was accepted with the understanding that it was to be held until the drawer notified them to return it for collection.

It was also found that numerous items aggregating more than $4000 were unpaid on November 6, although payment had been authorized by selectmen's warrants under dates running back several months.

Auditor Waddell said it was found that the cash on hand was in excess about $1000 of the amount called for in the cash books.

In explanation the collector said

TUNNEY WINS IN FIGHT OVER $500,000 BALM

Mrs. Fogarty's Love Suit Is Settled by Agreement; Victory for Gene

Bridgeport, Ct., Dec. 27 (AP)—James J. Tunney, who was Gene to the boxing world when he defeated Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship, scored another victory today, but this time it was in the courts of law.

A judgment, described by his counsel as a "complete and sweeping victory," was entered in superior court here in his favor in the $500,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, divorcee, of Ft. Worth, Tex., New York city and now reported to be living in Boston, and also in the cross-complaint in which charges that he failed to keep his word to marry her.

The action today was only a formality. Counsel for both sides yesterday agreed that all the issues raised should be found in favor of the defendant.

To make his victory more complete, it was agreed at that time that an injunction restraining her from ever again bringing similar suits should be issued against her.

Judge Carl Foster, however, declined to act upon this stipulation today intimating that he wished more time to study the terms of the injunction.

"The proceedings held today mark the final termination of the case of Katherine King Fogarty vs. James J. Tunney.

"It should be clearly understood that at no time since this case started have there been any negotiations for a settlement nor has any adjustment of any kind been made with the plaintiff or any money paid to her. At no time has either Mr. Tunney or his attorneys had the slightest doubt as to the outcome of this case. It was a suit which was entirely unwarranted and which never ought to have been brought."

SNOOP SQUAD ORDER LAID TO RAID AT STATLER

Wilson Acts When Federal Agents Find the Police on Guard Where Rum Is Seized

Federal prohibition agents who raided the New England Road Builders' Association banquet at the Hotel Statler, seizing a quantity of liquor, found eight Boston policemen in uniform in the banquet hall.

That fact, disclosed for the first time today, is believed to have been the reason for Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson's dramatic order creating a special liquor squad in each of 19 police divisions in the city.

It is claimed the policemen were present as the hired guards of the hotel and had made no effort to curb the drinking among some 1200 guests when the federal officers swooped into the banquet hall and garnered liquor from the tables.

CORRESPONDENCE SECRET

Some of this liquor, it has since been learned, was stolen from the federals by the guests, who claimed they were without the law in raiding a private party. Some was retained and destroyed, however.

What correspondence later passed between the Boston office of the federal prohibition enforcement forces and the Boston police department is not known, but it is believed to have resulted in the creation of the police "snooping squads."

The commissioner's order was committed to be the strongest angle now yet made in dry-up Boston.

It is not directed at New Year's Eve or any other particular festive time, but is designed to end drinking permanently in Boston hotels, restaurants and night clubs, and if rigorously enforced has an excellent chance of being fairly successful.

ORDER HAS "TEETH"

Its strong point lies in the fact that these hotels, cafes and other resorts that have winked at drinking in the past will wink at it no more or be subject to the loss of their licenses. The law in this respect is changed no whit by the commissioner's order but the necessary forces to carry out the law, heretofore lacking, are provided.

Supplementing Wilson's order, Superintendent Crowley today issued a notice that resorts in Boston will be allowed to have dancing until 3 a. m. New Year's Day, an extra hour granted by the Boston licensing board.

Primarily Wilson's order is expected to make the managements of the various places so strict that they will willingly co-operate with the police in their efforts to stop drinking under the threat of losing their licenses.

WILL SEIZE FLASKS

It will not be possible to place men and women under arrest for drinking. But the "snooping squads" will confiscate liquor wherever they happen to find it, and they will take the names of those who show a disposition to openly flaunt the dry law by drinking in public.

If necessary, those found drinking in public may be required to appear before the licensing board to give evidence for the cancellation of licenses.

The order was sent out to all stations, and in order to make sure that it was well understood, Superintendent Crowley directed that it be read at all roll calls and three times today. It read in part:

"Division commander having licensed inn-holders (hotel keepers) and common victualers (clubs and restaurants operate as

CHINA WILL BAN ALIEN COURTS

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—The American Government will stand on its previously announced policy regarding extra-territorial rights in China which expressed its readiness to enter into negotiations to devise a method of gradual relinquishment of these privileges.

Nanking, China, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Central Political Council, in emergency meeting today, decided to issue an official mandate Jan. 1 declaring abolition of extra-territoriality in China.

The mandate will be divided in two parts. The first will declare that foreigners living in China shall in the future be subject to

Symphony Serenade for Blooded Horse

Twenty-two distinguished guests were assembled in the music room of Edgar Levinstein's "Briardale Farm" at North Sudbury on Christmas eve listening to the music of Boston Symphony Orchestra stars.

There came a stir at the door. In walked a groom and, behind him, Pumpernickle, 2-year-old thoroughbred and the pride of Levinstein's racing stables.

The horse gazed around, cocked an ear to the music, then arched his neck as the ladies patted him.

With the other instruments stilled, Cellist Zighera of the Symphony soloists serenaded the magnificent beast, which seemed to be appreciative.

His high moment lived, Pumpernickle then turned and followed, without bridle or lead, the groom back out the door and to the stables.

Among the guests present were: William Paxton, noted artist, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Keyes, Mr. and Mrs. Stedman Buttrick, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Berenson, Thomas Fay Walsh, Miss Helen Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rosenbaum.

The Symphony artists were Cellist Zighera, First Violinist Elkus, First Flutist Georges Laurent, First Violinist Perry Leveen and Pianist Ruth Culbertson. John Tornbano was master of ceremonies.

JAIL-BREAKER HUNT IN WOODS

Salem and Peabody police were searching the West Peabody woods following an anonymous telephone tip that one of the three prisoners who yesterday escaped from Essex County jail was in that section.

The telephone message was received at the jail by Asst. Clerk Edward J. Bayley, who was informed: "If you want one of those prisoners, McGuiness is over here in Peabody."

The escaped prisoner referred to is Joseph P. McGuiness, 24, of Salem, and a former resident of Peabody. The other two are Frank Currie, 27, of Gloucester, and James Mullins, 27, of Arlington.

Jail officials are conducting an investigation in the belief that the men sawed their way to freedom with tools sent to them in Christmas gifts. From the same outside source they are believed to have had assistance in making their getaway, once outside the jail walls.

Driver Fined $50 in Police Patrol Crash

For being the driver of an automobile that collided with the "Black Maria" of Station 3, James J. Gourlimeepe of Providence was fined $50 on a dangerous driving charge in municipal court today. He appealed. Two persons were slightly injured in the accident, Ida Reed, also of Providence, and Patrolman Homer Clark, who was riding in the patrol to a fire.

2 More Priests Are Executed in Russia

Moscow, Dec. 27 (INS)—Two priests were executed by the authorities today at Vreyo, near Leningrad. These executions bring the number of clerics killed during the last few weeks to well over 50.

Twelve Escape in Mine Explosion

Beckley, W. Va., Dec. 27 (AP)—Twelve miners escaped safely from the Stoneshury mine of the C. C. & Smokeless Coal Company, eight miles from here, two hours after a "local" explosion in one entry of the mine. Two engineers were unaccounted for but officials believed they were in another section at the time of the blast.

Court Orders Man to Have Masses Sung

Central Falls, R. I., Dec. 27 (AP)—Because he had failed to have masses for the repose of his mother's soul celebrated in St. Basil's church here, Rashier Dickey was summoned into probate court and ordered by Judge Charles F. Risk to have three masses sung in that edifice.

Counsel for Dickey told the court that Dickey was complying with the instructions in his mother's will, which directed that five masses be said, but that he was having them celebrated in other churches than St. Basil's. Judge Risk, however, decided that St. Basil's was the church meant. If not specifically named, in the will and ordered the remaining three masses to be celebrated there.

Rev. Timothy Jock, pastor of St. Basil's, cited Dickey to appear in his court.

Wealthy Pilot Flies 211 Miles Per Hour

Tuck, 'Original Bryan Man,' Has Recovered

Whitfield Tuck, a familiar figure at State House legislative hearings, will be discharged from the Winchester Hospital and return home tomorrow.

He was recently operated on for an intestinal disorder. Reports, in circulation today, that the "original Bryan man in Massachusetts" was in a serious condition, were denied by officials at the hospital, who said he has fully recovered and will be at home tomorrow.

New Police Chiefs in Lynn, Somerville

Lynn and Somerville have new police chiefs today.

Capt. James H. Broad of Lynn received his appointment today, while Capt. Thomas Damery was assuming the duties of his office.

The appointment of Chief Damery was made by Mayor Cornwell and confirmed by the board of aldermen last night.

Broad was appointed by Mayor Rauer. Chief Broad will not assume his duties until Monday.

Both chiefs have completed more than 30 years of service.

Damery was appointed to the Somerville police in January, 1899. He succeeds former Charles A. Kendall recently retired.

Broad was appointed to the Lynn police in January, 1898. He lead the civil service list for his new post.

Both men were deluged with floral tributes and messages of congratulations. Each announced today that no radical changes in the police departments of each city was planned.

Chief Demery stated that the liquor problem would be handled as in the past by Capt. Charles Sharp, who was confirmed for promotion at the same time that Chief Demery received his advancement. Capt. Sharp is the youngest man ever to be appointed a police captain in Somerville. He is 40 years old.

COURT ORDER HITS 10,000 MEMBERS

Insurance Commissioner Brown said he had been watching the company for some time, closely. Early in July he said the company had been forced to put up money to protect itself, and agreed to do no business for 1930. He added the concern also stopped doing business in Territory U, which is Boston, because they were not getting good business.

The insurance commissioner in this connection called attention to a bill he filed with the Legislature a few days ago providing that such companies must have a surplus of $100,000 at all times. If they drop below this amount the insurance commissioner would be authorized to cancel their right to do business.

PRESENT WAY TEDIOUS

At the present time he said the companies have to be examined, which is a long and tedious proceeding. If the authorities go into court to get an injunction they must prove that the company is insolvent, which is also difficult. This situation, he said, would be taken care of under his bill.

He said he was satisfied the Massachusetts Liability Insurance Co. is insolvent and that its condition and management are such as to render further transaction of business hazardous to the public and to its policy-holders and creditors.

In the information the insurance commissioner said that upon information and belief the respondent company, its officers, agents and servants, were about to further dedicate its assets by the expenditure thereof for such purposes, so that it would be impossible to conserve for the benefit of policy holders and claimants even such assets as the company now has.

Mr. Hurlburt is directed to wind up the business and affairs of the corporation and to file within 21 days in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court an inventory of all property of the corporation, together with a list of creditors, so far as he may able to obtain the same.

GASPARRI OUT AS SECRETARY

Vatican City, Dec. 27—The resignation of Cardinal Gasparri as Secretary of State of the Holy See has been officially accepted by Pope Pius XI, it has been learned.

It has been known for some time that the Cardinal, whose work in perfecting the recently concluded Lateran treaty had been invaluable to the Pontiff, was contemplating relinquishing his office.

Pope Pius has presented Cardinal Gasparri with a small villa where he will live. It is situated on a height overlooking the colosseum. However, neither Cardinal Gasparri wishes to remain completely idle nor does the Pope intend to be entirely deprived of his services.

Therefore Cardinal Gasparri has been entrusted with the codification of the canon law of the Oriental churches.

The Pope has taken occasion to rebuff Premier Mussolini's Fascist movement by assuming the stand that Fascism has interfered with the Catholic Youth movement throughout Italy.

In his reply to the congratulatory address of the College of Cardinals, Christmas Eve, Pope Pius strongly protested against the Fascist treatment of the youth movement of Catholicism and its press activities.

2 AMERICANS IN FRENCH JAIL

Cherbourg, France, Dec. 27 (AP)—Samuel Friedmann of New York and his daughter Rosa, today completed a months sentence in a French jail for attempting to smuggle jewelry into France, but were held at the request of customs authorities.

The Friedmanns were arrested on November 27 as they were about from the Leviathan, with jewels, rings, cigarette cases and other knick-knacks valued at $5,000, which were sewed in Rosa Friedman's clothing.

The French customs authorities have required that they be held until they agree to pay $52,000 in duties and penalties. They are holding Mr. Friedmann's jewelry and $5000 seized at the same time as the jewelry.

The Cherbourg police have also been asked to hold the couple on the complaint of a New York firm, which has a $12,000 claim against them.

Gloucester Police May Not Get "Raise"

Gloucester, Dec. 27—An increase in the weekly pay envelope of Gloucester police today hinges on the signature of Mayor Henry H. Parsons. At the weekly meeting of the aldermen a 10 per cent increase was unanimously adopted, but before the police can obtain the increase the mayor must affix his signature.

Should he fail to sign the wage bill in ten days it will automatically become operative, but Col. John F. Parker, mayor-elect, will take office before the ten-day period elapses and he can ask the new board to reconsider the action.

Cigarette Hoped to Solve Mystery of Labyrinth

Athens, Dec. 27 (INS)—How a cigarette, added to the recent discovery of the famous labyrinth of the Minotaur in Crete, where Theseus is said to have killed the man-eating monster and escaped through the maze of underground tunnels is told by Dr. Adalbert Markovitis, the Austrian archaeologist.

"One day," relates Dr. Markovitis, "when hopes of finding anything remarkable had been given up, one of the workmen suddenly noticed that the smoke of his cigarette was being drawn downward through a hole in the earth. The leaders of the expedition then discovered the intricate wonders of the labyrinth, whose secret had been lost since the dawn of history."

Says No One Has Tried to Enforce Dry Law

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—The resignation of Secretary Mellon was demanded as the first step of a "clearup" of prohibition enforcement today by Senator Norris of Nebraska, a Republican dry, who joined Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, in condemning the personnel of the enforcement service.

Washington, Dec. 27 (INS)—Declaring "there never has been a real and honest effort to enforce prohibition," Senator George W. Norris (R.), Nebraska, chairman of the Senate judiciary committee, which will consider the administration's sweeping reorganization program, today joined in the attack of congressional drys upon the federal prohibition regime.

Calling for the enforcement or repeal of the prohibition act, Senator Norris, a veteran dry, said:

"There never has been a real and honest effort to enforce prohibition since Mr. Hoover became President, but there has hardly been time to judge the results.

"Responsibility for enforcement, naturally, rests with the President, who is head of the executive department. If he says to every officer, 'Go out and get them,' there will be results.

"I have put a lot of evidence in the Record which I think demonstrates enforcement officers have been appointed through political influence. That has not occurred in all localities. I have advocated, and do so now, that prohibition officers ought not to be appointed as a result of political standing.

"The placing of some officers under civil service is the best system we have, but it is far from perfect. The change has been made in Pennsylvania that big bootleggers went free after they were indicted. This is contained in testimony of Mrs. Willebrandt herself.

"I should like to see real enforcement for a period, say, of 10 years, and then if it is not a success, I'm willing to take the next best thing to prohibition.

"If the attorney-general has a program of reorganization, I will give it my sympathetic consideration as soon as it comes to the judiciary committee."

SOVIET RAIDERS KILL 10,000

Shanghai, Dec. 27 (AP)—The official Kuomin News Agency stated tonight that the Nationalist Government estimated that casualties of 10,000 soldiers and civilians were killed or wounded as a result of "recent and present" incursions into Manchuria.

The Kuomin further stated it was estimated that a property loss of one billion Mexican dollars (500,000,000 gold) had been incurred.

Russian troops invaded Manchuria Nov. 18 and clashed with Chinese soldiery for a few days. Since that time there has been sporadic activity by Soviet forces during peace negotiations.

HOOVER MEETS HIS CABINET IN 'LINCOLN ROOM'

First Session of Its Kind in White House Since the Roosevelt Regime

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—The President's Cabinet met today in an atmosphere replete with early history of the American republic.

Because the executive offices of the President were destroyed by fire on Christmas Eve, members of the Cabinet today gathered in the study where Lincoln signed the emancipation proclamation and sat around the table used by President Adams and his Cabinet in the early days of the White House.

Four members of the Cabinet were seated in chairs used by President Lincoln's Cabinet during the days of the Civil War. At one end of the room, next to the fireplace, was the old desk on which Lincoln signed the proclamation which ended slavery in the United States.

Today's Cabinet meeting was the first held in the main building of the White House in a quarter of a century. The destroyed executive offices were built early in the administration of President Roosevelt.

The President had no callers on his list for the day and planned to leave the White House at 2:15 p. m., to begin work in the offices formerly occupied by the secretaries of the navy in the old State, War and Navy building. The structure is just across Executive ave. from the west entrance to the White House grounds.

Much of the furniture and all of the files rescued from the executive office on Christmas Eve have been moved to the new quarters and within another day it is expected that the executive offices will be functioning there smoothly.

FRANCE SEEKS NEW 'LOCARNO'

Paris, Dec. 27 (AP)—Official circles said today the idea of a pact between France and Italy guaranteeing peace in the Mediterranean in the same way that the Locarno pact guarantees peace along the Rhine, grew out of exchanges of views between the two countries.

The French note to the four other powers participating in the London naval disarmament conference again emphasized the desirability of a Mediterranean non-aggression pact and suggested participation in it of nations not invited to London, envisaging Spain in particular.

Italy first suggested to France that their interests ought to be settled before a basis for reduction of armaments was fixed.

Foreign Minister Briand replied it would be better to raise the whole Mediterranean question between all the interested powers and make a sort of Mediterranean Locarno.

Italy is understood to want more territory on the frontier of Tunis and Tripoli, in addition to the two oases ceded to her by the French a few years ago. She also desires a definite understanding about the regime that Italians are to live under in Tunis.

MARLOW CASE SUSPECT ONCE SEIZED HERE

Boston police revealed today that Ciro Terranova, alias Morello, charged by the New York authorities with having procured the murders of Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow, was arrested in this city in 1919.

Terranova, whose connection with the killings was revealed at the New York trial of Detective Arthur C. Johnson before Police Commissioner Whalen, was picked up here the day of the Yankees Division parade as a suspicious person.

The arrest was made by Inspector James R. Claffin and a brother detective now dead, two other New Yorkers, also known as pickpockets, being taken into custody at the same time.

At the time Terranova resisted arrest and the photograph on file in the rogues' gallery shows that he was handled roughly. The New Yorkers were held during the day and were then released with a warning to keep out of Boston in the future.

Terranova was accused of having brought about the two murders, as a result of the holdup of the banquet tendered to Magistrate Albert H. Vitale in Brooklyn. It was testified the stickup was staged to recover from a Chicago gunman a contract under which he was to receive $20,000 for "burning" Marlow and Yale.

Whalen Seeks Marlow Death Clue in Chicago

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen was on his way to Chicago today seeking information concerning a killer for hire who made his clients sign contracts.

His trip was prompted by the statement of Police Inspector Joseph J. Donovan that Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow, New York gangsters, were killed by a Chicago gunman under the terms of a $20,000 contract signed by Ciro Terranova, known to police as a Bronx racketeer.

Donovan, testifying at the police trial of Detective Arthur Johnson for dereliction of duty, said that Terranova had testified to information given for Magistrate Albert Vitale was staged at Terranova's orders to recover the contract.

Johnson, who was a guest at the dinner, December 7, is on trial for losing his service pistol to the holdup men and failing to report the crime promptly.

PAID ONLY $5000.

Donovan said that members of the police were nervous after they had learned that Terranova had paid only $5000 of the $20,000 stipulated in the contract for the slayings of Yale and Marlow and that the Chicago gunman had threatened to turn the information over to police if the rest was not forthcoming.

The witness said Terranova invited the gunman to the dinner instructing him to bring the contract then arranged for the holdup which was put on by seven men. They searched the guests, took the contract from the gunman's pocket and took jewelry and money from the other guests to make the robbery appear genuine.

The jewelry, money and Johnson's gun later were returned through undisclosed sources.

Frankie Yale was shot to death in his automobile in Brooklyn July 1, 1928. The name of Al Capone, Chicago gang leader, was linked with the killing when police found a gun which they said was similar to one purchased for Capone.

MARLOW'S DEATH RIDE

Frank Marlow was met by two men as he left a mid-town restaurant on the night of June 24, 1929. He entered an automobile with them. His body was found by the roadside near a cemetery in Queens a few hours later.

GET WARRANTS IN BALL POOL

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—Warrants were issued by Federal Judge John Cotsday for four material witnesses wanted by U. S. Atty. Tuttle in his investigation of the Albany baseball and stock market pool before the federal afternoon grand jury.

The men named in the warrants are Dan McMahon, alias "Deafy," former boxing promoter and one of those who pleaded guilty on Nov. 15, 1927, in Boston, to using the mails in maintaining a lottery; former Assemblyman John A. Boyle of Albany county; Robert Burns, former captain of the night watch at the Capitol building, Albany, and John F. Kearney of Albany.

Sportsmen Want New Hunting Law

A bill requiring hunters and trappers, after January 1, 1931, to file with the city and town clerk a record of game taken or killed in the preceding year, before being granted a new license, was filed today with the Legislature by Representative Henry A. Estabrook of Fitchburg on petition of the local sportsmen club.

The present law requires sportsmen to make a return on pheasants and deer killed or taken to the State director of fisheries and game.

STIMSON GLAD FASCISTI HAS QUIT U. S.

Official Inquiry Fails to Reveal a Plot by Italians Against Government

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—Gratification and appreciation was formally expressed by Secretary Stimson today over the action of the Fascist League of North America in dissolving itself as an organization within the United States.

Simultaneously the secretary announced that an investigation by the State Department into published charges of various Fascist activities in the United States had not revealed any activities on the part of the residents in the United States of Italian extraction or on the part of any Italian officials which were directed against the American Government or its institutions.

"The investigation of the incidents referred to in the article in Harper's magazine," the secretary's statement said, "has been completed by this department, and it has not revealed any activities on the part of any resident in this country of Italian extraction or on the part of any Italian officials which were directed against this Government or against its institutions.

"So far as the dissolution of the Fascist League of North America is concerned, inasmuch as the existence and purposes of that league have been the subject of adverse speculative comment and possible misunderstanding, I am glad to express my appreciation that the league has dissolved itself, in the interest of removing these misunderstandings and better relations between this country and Italy."

The disbanding of the Fascist League was announced several days ago in New York. It was said at that time that the league had accomplished what it had set out to do.

the laws of the central government and local authorities.

The second will declare immediate promulgation of a code governing lawsuits and involving Chinese and foreigners.

Extra-territoriality is the term applied to the privilege enjoyed by persons and property of any foreigners in China to be tried in courts of their own nationality.

There have in all been 21 countries enjoying extra-territoriality in China under treaties, although the status of several of these countries has been changed by developments of the past two years.

The countries are Russia, Great Britain, United States, France, Norway and Sweden, Denmark, Netherlands, Spain, Belgium, Italy, Brazil, Portugal, Japan, Mexico, Peru, Switzerland, Bolivia, Persia and Germany.

Germany, Bolivia, Persia and Chile, and more recently Soviet Russia and Mexico have renounced their privileges of consular jurisdiction. Great Britain renounced the privileges in one district of China and there have been indications the United States would look not unkindly upon Chinese efforts to modify the existing treaties granting extra-territoriality.

SOME OF RECENT DATE.

During 1928 the Nationalist government announced that treaties which had lapsed or were likely to lapse would be abrogated and new treaties negotiated on a basis of "equality."

Today's action had been expected. There have been indications some of the nations concerned may not acquiesce in the new arrangement.

The treaty rights were in most cases gained during the period of foreign penetration in China from 1850 to 1900, although many are of more recent date.

Portland to Have Light by Sunday

Portland, Me., Dec. 27—Complete restoration of lighting service in this city before Sunday night is promised by Fred D. Gordon, manager of the lighting company, who says that of 30,000 subscribers whose service was crippled after the storm, only 2500 are not being supplied.

Nearby towns will not be so fortunate as so many poles have been upset that the job is more exacting, but Gordon hopes to have the damage all repaired by the end of next week.

MORE LIBERAL SUNDAY LAW ON SALE OF FOODSTUFFS URGED

SCARCITY OF BREAD IS CITED

License Board Declares That Living Conditions Have Materially Changed

A more liberal law governing the sale of foodstuffs on Sunday was advocated today by the Boston Licensing Board in its annual report for the fiscal year ending November 30.

The board points out that in some sections of the city it is difficult to buy bread or other bakery products on Sunday because of the scarcity of retail bakers.

Living conditions have so materially changed that the law permitting certain stores to sell only fruit, ice cream, confectionery and soda water on the Sabbath might well be made more liberal, the board's three members, David T. Montague, Arthur J. Selfridge and Mary E. Driscoll, advise.

NO CHANGE ON AMUSEMENT.

Advocating no change in the law governing entertainment, the board says:

"Wonder or criticism is sometimes expressed by visitors to the city and others that the hours of entertainment are restricted and that dancing is not allowed on Sunday or during the early hours of Monday morning. The board is of the opinion, however, that the laws and its rules in that behalf are liberal enough and that the wider latitude allowed in some large cities is not desirable here."

The board finds the lodging houses of the city "as a whole respectable and well conducted."

LIQUOR LICENSES

Of all classes, the board granted 11,906 licenses during the year and rejected 315 applications. Of those granted, by far the largest number in any single class was for lodging houses—3642. Innholders and common victualers were next at 2656, soft drinks third with 2425 and special Sunday sale licenses fourth with 2258.

Retail druggists were granted 250 third class liquor licenses. Only 16 licenses were granted for the sale of firearms.

A table of license holders arranged according to their nativity is an interesting highlight of the report.

American-born predominate in every class, but in the matter of licenses for sale of fruit, ice cream, etc., have a plurality of only 114 over the Russian-born, while the Italian born are in third place by the margin of a single license.

73 INNKEEPERS' LICENSES

Canadian-born holders of lodging house licenses are 760, less than half of the American, but 209 more than the Irish-born. There are nearly four times as many American-born holders of common victualler licenses as there are Grecian-born, who are in second place. The Russian-born are third.

Of 73 licenses to innkeepers, 63 are held by American-born, four by Canadian, two each by French and Irish and one each by Italian and Russian.

There are only 16 licenses for the sale of firearms held in the city, nine by American-born, three by Italian, two by Russian and one each by English and Scotch.

The Welsh have the smallest representation among the license holders with only two, both in the lodging house class. The Japanese have three, one lodging house license and one common victualer permit.

Wife Says Husband Imprisoned Her in Tomb

A wedding day photo of Joseph S. Dobbins of Pawtucket, R. I., and his wife who claims that he imprisoned her in a cemetery vault when she refused to assist him in a robbery. Dobbins has been sentenced to four months in jail for larceny of $125 from his mother-in-law.

The cemetery vault in which Mrs. Dobbins says she struggled for two hours before opening the door. Her husband, who had fled after the robbery of her mother, induced her to walk thither on the pretext of a Christmas eve reunion, she says.

NEGRO CADET IN MATH. TANGLE

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—The New York World today said Alonso Souleigh Parham of Chicago, the only negro cadet at the United States Military Academy at West Point, has been obliged to take a second examination in mathematics because of his failure to pass on the subject in the December examinations.

Parham was one of more than 50 first-year cadets who failed to pass all subjects. Whether he passed the second examination will not be made known until the return of Maj.-Gen. W. R. Smith, superintendent of the academy, from the Pacific coast, where he accompanied the Army football team. If he failed to pass his case will be referred to the academic board, which has the power to suspend him for 60 days, at the end of which time he has the right to apply for still another test. If a first year man fails in the third test he is automatically dropped.

Officers at West Point in denying recently that Parham was being discriminated against by other cadets, said he was having difficulty with mathematics. Parham also denied any unfair treatment.

CHINESE-JAPAN BREACH GROWS

Tokyo, Dec. 27 (AP)—Diplomatic relations between Nationalist China and the Japanese government became increasingly strained today as the Nanking government persisted in its refusal to accept Torikichy Obata as minister to China from Japan.

Obata is former ambassador to Turkey. Nanking's objection to him is that he was Japanese charge d'affaires in Peking at the time of the famous 21 demands on the Peking government in 1915.

The Tokyo government, it was learned officially, has determined not to withdraw its nomination, considering it a vital test of Sino-Japanese relations. Nanking has been asked to reconsider its decision, with consideration of possible serious consequences arising from further rejection of Obata.

PREFER HORROR TO CRIME

Pawtucket, R. I., Dec. 27—While her husband languished in Providence County jail for robbing his mother-in-law, Mrs. Joseph S. Dobbins, told police a story of being locked in a cemetery vault rather than submit to his plans for another robbery.

After she regained consciousness Mrs. Robbins struggled for two hours before she tore the door open.

She told the police that she met her husband the day before Christmas, the first time she had seen him since he vanished several months ago after taking $125 from her mother's apartment.

She also agreed to stroll through the cemetery after he had explained that he might be seen by police, who were seeking him.

Girls Battle Death on Icy Mount as 2 Die

Huntsville, Ala., Dec. 27 (INS)—Besieged in their delirium by chimerical imageries of four days' hunger and exposure in the frozen fastness of the Alabama hill country, Minnie Marcum, 17, and her seven-year-old sister, Pearl, were near death today.

They are the survivors of a party of four which started from Huntsville December 17 to spend Christmas on Sharp's Mountain. Other members of the little band were Mrs. Frank Marcum and an infant son.

They began the 25-mile journey in an old automobile, but at the base of the mountain were forced to leave the machine and try to climb the icy slopes, and they became lost.

For three days they wandered about inthe scrub growth without food or shelter. Next morning the weary mother fell in the snow, exhausted. She could go no farther, and soon she died. Later in the day the pangs of hunger and cold became too intense for the baby, and the last spark of its life left his numb body.

The n little Pearl became ill, and Minnie took the clothing from her dead mother and wrapped it around the little girl to shield her from the intense cold. They placed the bodies of their mother and baby brother in the hollow of a log, and fought on through the snowdrifts. Two more days they wandered. Then the sunshine melted some of the snow, and they found the trail and reached the mountain shack, where they gasped out something of their story and collapsed.

A runner was dispatched to Huntsville. Physicians and an ambulance were rushed to the mountain and the girls were brought here.

NAB POLICEMAN AS BOOTLEG

Lowell, Dec. 27 (AP)—Harry Lee, a special policeman in Andover, today was held in $1500 for the United States District Court by U. S. Commissioner Richard B. Walsh on charges of illegal possession and manufacture of liquor. He waived examination.

Lee's arrest came after federal officers had seized a 500-gallon still and a small quantity of liquor in Andover two weeks ago.

Bride of Count to Be Just Plain 'Mrs.'

Frederick Franz Grote is a German count, but Miss Rachel D. Smith of Commonwealth ave., society beauty, will be just plain Mrs. Grote after the wedding ceremony.

Miss Smith, who is 26, and a member of the Junior League and the Vincent Club, and a graduate of Bryn Mawr, made this plain after Assistant City Registrar Joseph A. Cahalan had scratched out the Graf, which means count, from the marriage intentions by Frederick Franz Grote.

Titles count for nothing in City Hall, the assistant registrar told the German count when the latter sought to have his title accompany the rest of his name. Count Grote protested but his protest was of no avail. It was then Miss Smith declared herself.

She assured her husband-to-be that as far as she was concerned the title didn't have to be appended to the name she plans to take on January 18.

Next she assured Assistant Registrar Cahalan that affixing one's title to a name was customary, and was nothing to be perturbed about. Finally she assured both the assistant registrar and her husband-to-be that just plain Mrs. Grote—and not countess—will be good enough for her.

In the application, the count gave his occupation as landowner, giving his father's name as Otto Graf Grote of Hanover, Germany, and his mother's maiden name as Alice von Bergen, born in Paris. The count gave his age as 28.

Count Grote met his fiancee for the first time in Berlin, last April, while Miss Smith and her parents were making a tour of the continent. The couple were attracted to each other and their friendship was spontaneous, the girl's father said.

They corresponded following Miss Smith's return to America, and a month ago Count Grote came to Boston. The ensuing courtship resulted in the announcement of their engagement a week ago.

After filing marriage intentions, the young couple went to New York, where they will visit friends for a few days.

MARY MINTER'S MOTHER TELLS OF MURDER

Mrs. Shelby Declares She Was Not at Taylor's Home on Day He Was Slain

Los Angeles, Dec. 27—"The time for action has come. I'm not going to sit idly and be a target for base rumors and vicious innuendo. There must be some justice in this world, even for a helpless woman."

Breaking a silence of years, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter, former screen star and one of the dramatic figures of the William Desmond Taylor murder inquiry, has struck back at the "whispers and theories" linking her and many others to the murder mystery.

Mrs. Shelby, for the first time since her director's death, revealed heretofore unknown phases of the baffling case. Of Mary Miles Minter she had little to say.

"I have made complete statements to the authorities in the past and I stand ready to do so again if it will help in a sincere and honest effort to solve the mystery of Mr. Taylor's death," Mrs. Shelby said.

Mrs. Shelby declared:

She was not in love with Taylor.

She did not make threats against his life.

She did not, shortly before the murder, purchase a pistol and practice with it.

"I know that some of these things, with many vicious details added, have been whispered around," Mrs. Shelby said.

$125,000 in Uncut Liquor Seized in Raid

New York, Dec. 27 (INS)—Uncut holiday liquor, conservatively valued at $125,000, was inthe possession of police today following a raid on a Bronx garage.

The whiskey, found in a burlap covered truck, was said to have been imported from Montreal. It constituted the largest holiday seizure of liquor made this year.

Five men were arrested in connection with the finding of the liquor and will be arraigned in police court today.

IN the controversy between Borah and Atty.-Gen. Mitchell I hate to take sides—but Mitchell is right. The personnel of the "dry forces" are honest men, doing their best to uphold the law.

However, the attorney general must admit that the liquor we are getting now is inferior to what we got several years ago, and the prices are a bit higher.

You cannot fool the American people on liquor.

They've had both—good and bad, mostly bad.

3 NATIONS JOIN EIELSON HUNT

Fairbanks, Alaska, Dec. 27 (AP)—Aviators of three countries today were participating in the hunt for Carl Ben Eielson, Arctic flier, and his mechanic, Earl Borland, missing since November 9 in the icy wastes of northeastern Siberia.

One Russian plane was on its way from Moscow to North Cape, Siberia, where Eielson and Borland were last reported. Other Russian planes were detailed and Soviet officials announced a reward of 2000 rubles (about $1000) would be paid for information as to the whereabouts of the missing Americans.

Three powerful cabin planes were being assembled here for six Canadian airmen assigned to participate in the hunt. They will fly to North Cape to establish a base.

Two American pilots at North Cape, Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam, have made several scouting trips, but have been limited in their efforts because of insufficient gasoline. Their planes are of the open cockpit type, not well suited to Arctic flying. The planes of the Canadians and the Russians are equipped for cold weather operations.

ORTIZ RUBIO AT U.S. SHRINES IN ARLINGTON

Places Wreaths on Tombs of Washington and the Unknown Soldier

Washington, Dec. 27 (INS)—Pascual Ortiz Rubio, president-elect of Mexico, ushered in his second day as the honored guest of the American capital with a pilgrimage to Mt. Vernon and Arlington. He placed wreaths on George Washington's tomb and on that of the unknown soldier in Arlington Cemetery.

A luncheon in honor of the president-elect and Senora De Ortiz Rubio was given by Secretary of State Stimson at Woodley, the Stimson colonial estate. Later the president-elect was to call officially on Vice-President Curtis, who will return the visit at the Mexican embassy.

President Hoover will give a state dinner in honor of the distinguished guests tonight, when the President and President-elect will have opportunity for a longer chat than they had yesterday.

"The relations between the two countries are so cordial that we can only speak of that cordiality," he told newspaper men.

Although he speaks English, he answered questions through an interpreter, Carlos Barrera, secretary to Ambassador Tellez and Mexico's most prominent playwright.

He told the 30 or more reporters that on leaving Washington Sunday he will go to Buffalo and Niagara Falls and later to Detroit. There he hopes to see Henry Ford.

Tomorrow Oritz Rubio and suite will spend the day at Anapolis, Md., visiting the naval academy. They will be guests at a luncheon to be given by Rear Admiral S. S. Robison, superintendent of the academy.

Tomorrow night Ambassador Tellez will hold a reception in honor of the President-elect and Senora de Oritz Rubio at the Mexican embassy.

TROOPERS TO GUARD PRISON

Providence, Dec. 27—Anticipating trouble in State Prison at Howard tonight when the 350 convicts learn there will be no movie show, 15 heavily-armed State troopers were detailed today to the prison.

The motion picture show, and possibly all others scheduled on Friday and holiday nights, will be cancelled because of the disturbance and demonstration staged Christmas night by the prisoners.

This demonstration was also over a movie show, and it resulted in 20 long term men being straitjacketed and placed in solitary confinement.

Warden Charles Linscott announced today that these 20 had been released and were back at work in the shops, but that they were sullen and apparently bitter.

The 15 State troopers will be stationed in the main dining room, where the prisoners eat. In addition there will be the regular force of guards, also armed.

Mexico to Suppress Propagandists

Mexico City, Dec. 27 (AP)—The newspaper Excelsior said today that the circulation of seditious propaganda among troops in Mexico City garrison had been discovered, and that the government was taking steps to suppress it and arrest those responsible.

The paper added that former Gen. Federico Barrera, recently arrested and charged with plotting against the government, was deported to Laredo by a regular train yesterday accompanied by a military guard.

NO. 1 WIRES HER JOY TO LOWELL SHERMAN'S NO. 1

Hollywood, Dec. 27 (INS)—Pauline Garon, stage and screen actress, today telegraphed congratulations to Helene Costello on Miss Costello's forthcoming marriage to Lowell Sherman, movie actor and ex-husband of Miss Garon.

The telegram said:

"Congratulations on your forthcoming marriage to Lowell. May you both have years of happiness. Holiday greetings."

Miss Garon said:

"Helene is a very sweet girl. If Lowell will be good, he will be able to keep a mighty nice girl."

FINDS NEW BIG SALT LAKE

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—A dispatch to the New York Times from Adelaide, Australia, today said that Cecil Madigan, Australian explorer, had certified existence of a vast salt lake which may be one of the wonders of the world.

The lake is known as Lake Eyre and is located in the middle of the sun-baked desert of Central Australia. Mr. Madigan believes the lake to contain limitless salt, with at least 3,000,000,000 tons of salt in the northern part alone.

Should chemical analysis show potash in the salt, the Times said, the lake would be found to be enormously valuable. The explorer said there probably was no other lake in the world with a surface like that of Eyre which is covered with encrusted patches of crystal salt, like ice floes on an Arctic sea.

Krupps to Raise Flowers, Vegetables

Cologne, Dec. 27—Krupps, the famous gun makers, are starting on an enormous scale as raisers of flowers, fruits and vegetables. At Hugel, the seat of the family, acres upon acres of greenhouses will be extended next year until more land will be under glass than in any other district anywhere. Within a few years, the Krupps expect to supply all the markets in industrial west Germany with all the flowers, fruits and vegetables needed.

The market gardeners are willing to give the vegetable market to the Krupps, but they want the flower and fruit trade.

Bauer to Urge Tariff on Shoes

Requesting that trade politicians and agitators step one side and give the rank and file of the people interested in the shoe industry their inning, Mayor Bauer of Lynn has posted public notice that a mass meeting would be held Thursday night in I. O. O. F. Hall, that city.

"Our problem," he said, "is to conquer this constant turmoil in the shoe industry. For nearly 200 years generation after generation of shoeworkers have lived here.

"We must consider a tariff that will keep out low-priced foreign labor."

The Weather

COTTON SALE CO-OPERATION IS PLANNED

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—A concerted movement of the American cotton farmers toward co-operation was pictured today by Carl Williams, farm board member representing cotton, as board members and representative growers gathered to confer on the final draft of a charter and by-laws for the new $20,000,000 cotton corporation.

Williams explained the eagerness of non-members to enter the co-operative field as a reaction to the fact that all the privileges of the independent dealer to buy and sell are to be enjoyed by the new corporation. It may buy a farmer's cotton outright and pay him the cash, thus relieving him of further market problems, Williams said.

The new organization will direct the sale of every member's product and Williams said that by this unity of action the corporation hopes to command sufficient quantity of the cotton crop to give it bargaining power. He added that no one knew how large that quantity must be or how long it will take the corporation to acquire it.

"Under the farm board set-up," he said, "the cotton of all co-operatives will be fed out to the world in a central stream under central control. Then the seller will be bigger than the buyer and cotton will be put where it is needed and in only the quantities which people will buy at a fair price."

SCOFF AT A BIG LIQUOR 'PLOT'

Chicago, Dec. 27 (AP)—Dry law enforcement officials frowned today upon reports of a $60,000,000 diversion of industrial alcohol ultimately poured out in the East and West by a reputed illicit liquor syndicate.

The investigation into the reported diversion, three Chicago newspapers said, was so widespread in scope as to include more than 100 business men, prohibition officials, politicians and bootleggers.

However, Mr. Jamie said that "as far as I know, there isn't any particular truth to the report."

On the other hand, U. S. Dist. Atty. George E. G. Johnson gave both denial and admission, saying: "What there is to it is before the grand jury and cannot be discussed."

French Cable Ship Mends Broken Line

Paris, Dec. 27—The French Cable Company announced today that the cable ship Edmund Jerome has made preliminary repairs on one of its cables broken by the submarine earthquake of November 18 and that communication will be re-established shortly.

Three cables of the French company were broken by the earthquake. For a time the cable ship had difficulty in picking up the broken ends, and it was erroneously reported by the Associated Press Wednesday that it might take two years to restore service. This fear has proved groundless, and the Associated Press is glad to make public the corrected information.

Fascist Deputy Ousted From Party

Rome, Dec. 27 (AP)—Deputy Michele Crisafulli Mondio has been deprived of membership in the Fascist party because of "a grave act of indiscipline."

Notice of this action was contained in a communique from the press office of the Fascist party. It stated that Mondio at first had been given a sentence of indeterminate suspension, but that this had been changed into "withdrawal of his party membership card."

Seek Writ Against Dam at Vernon, Vt.

Brattleboro, Vt., Dec. 27—In a chancery action filed in Windham County Court, the White River Chair Co. of Brattleboro seeks to have the Connecticut River Power Co. enjoined from maintaining and operating its dam and power plant at Vernon in a way to cause damage to the plaintiff's premises and buildings.

The action probably will be tried next February.

Bandits Tie Up 2; Get $25,000 in Furs

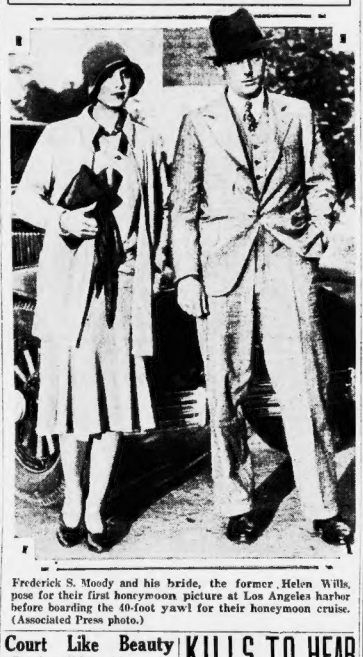

New York, Dec. 27 (INS)—After tying up a watchman and an engineer, five armed bandits today robbed the plant of the Gotham Fur Co., Georgia ave., Brooklyn, and escaped with furs valued at $25,000. With the engineer and the night watchman dropped into a huge packing case, the robbers bundled the furs into an automobile.

French Premier Chats With Edge

Paris, Dec. 27—Premier Tardieu made a long Christmas call Wednesday upon Walter C. Edge, new American ambassador to France.

The premier chose the holiday so that he could present his greetings personally to the Edge family and at the same time have a lengthy chat about many questions interesting to France and to the United States.

Court Like Beauty Parlor When 'Agent' Forces Theft Trial

Suffolk municipal court resembled a beauty parlor today when eight students of a Tremont st. school for the art of making woman more attractive appeared as witnesses against William Rolfe, of Hancock st., West End.

Rolfe was charged with larceny in having taken subscription money for magazines and never delivering the magazines.

He was found guilty and the case continued for sentence until Jan. 10 when court was informed he was suspected of having participated in other fraudulent collections.

KILLS TO HEAR HIS GUN 'POP'

New York, Dec. 27 (INS)—Because he wanted to hear his gun go off, Private Louis Galvano, 21, of the First Engineers, U. S. A. told the police today, he shot and killed his buddy, Private Arthur Cline, at Fort Dupont, Del., on Christmas Eve.

Galvano was arrested at the Coney Island home of his parents today at the request of the police of Wilmington, who have preferred a charge of murder against him.

Pierce Arrow Head Will Retire Dec. 31

Buffalo, Dec. 26 (AP)—Myron E. Forbes, president of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company for seven years, has resigned, effective December 31, it was announced today. When the company was reorganized in June, 1928, under a plan which gave the Studebaker Corporation a substantial interest, Mr. Forbes was active in the negotiations. In August, 1928, A. J. Chanter, who came from the Studebaker organization at South Bend, Ind., was elected vice-president and general manager.

John D. Sr. Will Have Big Party Tonight

The annual party will be attended only by a few friends, including Gen. Adelbert Ames, the capitalist's famous golfing partner. It will be an old-fashioned Christmas party with a large tree as a background for the singing of old-fashioned songs by a quartet, and the exchange of gifts.

Padlock Ordered for Troy Brewery

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 27 (INS)—Federal Judge Frank Cooper today ordered the Quandt Brewing Co. plant padlocked for one year and equipment, valued at $50,000 destroyed.

The brewery has been raided several times in the last few months and is alleged to have supplied real beer for eastern New York.

U. S. Board to Open Ship Crash Inquiry

New York, Dec. 27 (INS)—Subpoenas will be issued today for the captains of pilot boats and other witnesses to appear before the board of United States Inspection Board regarding the sinking of the Fort Victoria by the Clyde-Mallory liner Algonquin in the fog in Ambrose channel on December 18.

Helen of Troy Will Appear in Opera

New York, Dec. 27—Helen of Troy is to be in opera. It is being written by John Erskine, provost of English at Columbia and president of the Juilliard school of music, in collaboration with George Antheil, composer.

The libretto is in English.

For Most Homes Furniture Is a Lifetime Investment

That is particularly true of young couples buying into life. It represents one of their first financial obligations. In every home, however, the furnishings are most intimately related to the development and happiness of family ties—and grow dearer in the succession of years. Usually, buyers of furniture rely entirely upon the dependability of the store from which they purchase, in the matters of quality and value. For that reason, far-seeing furniture retailers in Boston, who also are investing—in future good will—are scrupulously truthful in their advertising and selling. Go to their stores with full confidence. You can depend upon their printed word.

Reliable Boston furniture retailers condemn the practice of "bait" advertising to lure you to a store with attractively pictured furniture at low prices with no intention of selling it but of "switching" you to something else. Help yourself, the public, legitimate dealers and this Bureau by reporting any experience you may have with misleading advertising or unfair selling practices.

SEEK SECRETS OF RUINS OF YUCATAN

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—Unexplored ruins of romantic cities and roads in Quintana Roo, on the eastern coast of Yucatan, described as the wildest and least known section of the New World, will be studied soon by a small group of scientists confident of bringing to light secrets of an old civilization.

With information from the leading archeologists and explorers of the Carnegie Institute and the Museum of the American Indian in the Heye Foundation of New York, the party will leave New Orleans January 2 to spend most of the winter in what Capt. Robert R. Bennett of Washington, its leader, says is a section rich in the ruins of a cultured civilization.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

He is confident of finding something really big in the hieroglyphics and other remains.

"We are going to live like gentlemen," he said today, "as he wrinkled the corners of his eyes, "with many of the luxuries of civilization. Why, I am going to have a good Chinese cook, a folding table and a big, cosy comfortable armchair."

The captain says that from the old capital city of Coba seven stone roads probably nearly 2000 years old, believed literally lined with dead cities, trek in all directions.

UNEXPLORED ROAD

The unexplored road going south nearly 500 miles into the interior, he says, is fringed with rich ruins. Some of these cities, he points out, were sighted by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose exposits in his belief will contribute immensely to an exhaustive exploration of the region.

Quintana Roo, bearing the name of Don Jose Quintana of Merida, the George Washington of his country, and his wife, Donna Rio Roo, according to well authenticated manuscripts, was a mecca of culture about the time Richard the Lion-Hearted sat on the English throne.

Coba, Capt. Bennett says, is surrounded by some eight beautiful lakes upon one of which Col. Lindbergh landed. The water, he says, is infested with small fish which have the annoying habit of attacking bathers.

SCHURMAN TO QUIT BERLIN

Berlin, Dec. 27 (AP)—Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, American ambassador to Germany, has received word from the State Department that his resignation has been accepted.

Ambassador Schurman, who celebrated his 75th birthday last May, was appointed ambassador to Germany in June 1925, and has been there ever since. Previously he had been American minister to China. From 1892 to 1920 he was president of Cornell University.

TRACE WOMAN FOUND IN SNOW

Jamestown, N. Y., Dec. 27 (INS)—Photographs of a woman found lying in the snow here, believed to be suffering from amnesia, were sent to Utica, N. Y., today to ascertain if she is Mrs. Beecher M. Crouse, society leader of that city, missing since November 14.

In addition to the strong facial resemblance of the woman to Mrs. Crouse she also has a crooked finger on one hand, said to be a distinguishing mark of the missing Utica matron.

She was found by three boys, who called police. Officers said her mind is a blank and that she is unable to account for her recent actions.

Deputy Sheriff Dies

Newmarket, N. H., Dec. 27—Deputy Sheriff Richard A. Starling died following a shock he suffered 11 days ago at Dover. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 from the Congregational Church here.

Police Arrest 60 Radical Pickets

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—Sixty Communists, 28 of them women, were arrested today when, as part of a group of 150 radicals, they gathered in front of a loft building in West 26th st. to picket a shoe company.

Police reserves broke up the demonstration and made the arrests when the picketers blocked the street and sang communistic songs.

All the prisoners were charged with disorderly conduct.

W. H. Vanderbilt Wed in Jersey Today

West Orange, N. J., Dec. 27 (INS)—Miss Anne Gordon Colby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Colby, will be married at the Colby home to Llewellyn Park today to William H. Vanderbilt.

Mr. Vanderbilt arrived accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons, and Mr. Fitzsimmons. The young couple will take only a short wedding trip, as Vanderbilt must attend the opening of the Rhode Island General Assembly, being a senator from Portsmouth.

Branding His Wife No Joke, So It's to Jail

San Leandro, Cal., Dec. 27 (AP)—Sentenced on a charge of having branded his wife on the chin and chest with an electric iron, John Silva, 28, today faced a 90-day term in jail.

Silva was arrested when screams from his home on Christmas day summoned neighbors who in turn called the police. Mrs. Silva said her husband had been drinking, tore an electric iron from her hand and branded her.

In court, Silva denied his wife's accusations and said he was "only playing." He insisted the iron slipped in his hand, searing Mrs. Silva severely.

Rum-Runner Slain in Border Battle

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 27 (AP)—This city faced a more or less dry New Year's day as a result of a gun battle between alleged rum runners and border patrolmen which cost the life of one man and the freedom of another.

An unidentified Mexican, about 25, was slain as he rose from a barricade and another man was captured when patrolmen surprised a gang of eight or ten men attempting to carry liquor across the river about five blocks from the city's business district.

Had Perfect Bridge Hand; Threw It Up

Bosworth, Mo., Dec. 27 (AP)—In the niche of the Hall of Fame occupied by Roy Riegels and Fred Merkle place Wes Stafford, hardware dealer. Stafford drew a perfect bridge hand in hearts—and bid diamonds.

His hand was "all red," so Stafford, the dealer, bid one diamond without inspecting his cards closely "just to get the game started." The other three players passed. When Stafford looked again at his hand he found 13 hearts. He laid the unplayed hand on the table.

'HERO TO ZERO; THAT'S FAME!' RICKENBACKER

(Copyright, 1929, by International News Services.)

New York, Dec. 27—"From hero to zero is about the average hero's future. This hero business should not be taken too seriously."

Smiling broadly, one of America's illustrious heroes—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, greatest "ace" during the World War and now vice-president of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation of America—made this philosophical observation today.

"Very few heroes stay on their pedestals for any great length of time," said Rickenbacker. "This generation moves so terribly fast! A fellow is up today, half forgotten tomorrow.

"Heroes of the hour are quickly relegated to posterity for their proper rating. Future generations will record them in an altogether different light than their own generation."

SHOT DOWN 26 PLANES

Rickenbacker grinned. There was an easy tolerance about this tall, genial, athletically-built man, now 39, who achieved undying fame during the war for having shot down 26 German planes. He discussed the fickleness of the public as any layman might, understandingly, with detachment, without the slightest trace of bitterness.

Ten years ago his name was on every tongue. He knows how it feels to receive a nation's homage. Then the heroes of the war were being idolized—Wilson, Pershing, Foch, Lloyd-George. And then came the peace-time idols: Lindbergh, Coolidge, Byrd, Hoover, Babe Ruth, Einstein, Jack Dempsey, Mussolini, Al Smith, Ford, Edison, the Prince of Wales, Gertrude Ederle and many others.

Lindbergh! That magic name caught Rickenbacker's attention.

"Isn't it great," exclaimed Rickenbacker, "to think that the world is now lauding peace-time achievements rather than war-time exploits.

"I am glad to see the world's emotions changing from war to peace. It is all right to talk about patriotism and, of course, all good citizens are patriotic. But, after all, patriotism is a form of hysteria inspired by the pens of writers. It fires the imagination of men and gives them opportunity to win a lot of medals and come back from the battlefields with their chests covered with ribbons.

FAME SOON FADES.

"Heroism is specialization. If the same inspiration and reward could be given in peace time as in war time, you would automatically eliminate the glory that causes war."

"Never be too sure you can stay up on any pinnacle. I had experience with public fickleness prior to the war. I was a race driver at the Indianapolis speedway and, of course, we so-called 'dare devils' had a following. The war came and my success as a race driver was forgotten overnight. I was no longer a sports hero.

"So, in another field, I went through the same fundamentals of building to the top. I specialized in war and apparently 'got there.'

"Now I've tackled a third field, the toughest of all to reach the top—peace time industry. Here there is more competition than in sport or war.

"A man who expects to stay up on his record alone is fool-hardy. He is almost sure to have his pedestal shot from under him. You've got to keep doing things."

Mother and Two Children Die in Fire

Farrell, Pa., Dec. 27 (INS)—A mother and her two children were suffocated here today. Mrs. Rose Capson, 22, Marie Capson, five, and Paul, two, were dead when firemen reached the bathroom where the woman had taken refuge with her children when she saw the flames.

Paul Cataldo, father of the dead woman, rescued two other Capson children, John, three, and Sarah, one, as well as his own son, Rocco, eight.

Nab Pal of Barry, Hub Jail Breaker

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 27 (INS)—Joseph Caprico, 20, Rochester robber, who escaped during the riot at Auburn prison on July 28, is held in Los Angeles, according to an announcement at the prison today.

His capture leaves only one of the four who escaped in that riot still at large. The missing convict is Arthur Barry, Boston jewel thief.

FOCH WARNING ON RHINELAND STIRS BRIAND

Paris, Dec. 27 (AP)—Secret warning of the late Marshal Foch against premature evacuation of the Rhineland was revealed in the French Chamber of Deputies today and precipitated a parliamentary storm.

The marshal's warning was made in a note to President Doumergue and Premier Poincare in October, 1926.

M. Briand reproached M. Reibol, former Under Secretary of State for the liberated regions, for reading the note. He said it created a "sorry situation."

Marshal Foch's letter said that Germany daily was becoming a more populous and stronger "vanquished nation which wishes revenge."

"Guided by a temperament different from ours, for her, might is right," he wrote. "She remains a redoubtable neighbor and peace will be maintained only by the risk she runs in revenge."

The letter declared that the Rhineland occupation guaranteed France's security, but added that when the French troops return to their territory France would find herself in an exceptionally grave situation.

Fresh Air to Be Taken With What Is in It

Or it may be seasoned with rock powder hurled by a volcano years ago, with acids sprayed in by lightning, or the ashes of millions of shooting stars that daily flit across the heavens.

Dr. W. J. Humphreys of the United States Weather Bureau, at Washington, today sifted "pure air" before the American Meteorological Society, meeting with the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and found it "pure fiction."

"The ocean, through its evaporated spray, makes a salt mine of air that we breathe," he said, "with every breath we inhale millions of microscopic salt and micro-atoms.

"From spring to fall we must take into our lungs the tons of pulverized rock that winds sweep up from the deserts, bits of thousands of trees and plants, and spores and microbes that are everywhere.

"A volcano explodes and tons of rock powder will drift far away for weeks, months or years. As it the dust the world itself stirs up is not enough, the atmosphere to its outermost limits is filled with the ashes of millions of shooting stars that daily flash and die.

The dust sphere of the world makes "the chimney sweeps of the bronchial tubes" work overtime, includes the smudge of soot and dirt that in Chicago alone palls the city with four tons a day per square mile.

Again Heads City Council

Alexander E. Smith, president of the Waltham City Council, has been nominated to succeed himself as president of next year's council. The election will take place at the first meeting of the council on Monday morning, January 6.

LINDY AND WIFE HOP ON TOUR TO PACIFIC

Valley Stream, N. Y., Dec. 27 (INS)—Delayed by unfavorable weather conditions for several hours Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh finally hopped off into the fog today on the first leg of a new transcontinental air tour.

The famous troupers of the air will stop first at Columbus, O. As technical adviser of the Transcontinental Air Transport Lindbergh will inspect the line to the coast. The survey will take him approximately two weeks.

Dr. James H. Kimball, weather expert, said Lindbergh would find the weather overcast from here to the Pennsylvania mountains. It is partly cloudy from there to the Mississippi.

MYSTERY IS KEYNOTE OF PLAY

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IT'S a tough old season that fails to raise its own ghostly crop of mystery farce. For the moment we have "The House of Fear" at the Plymouth. If the hair-raisers of the earlier months have seemed tame in comparison with last year's output, here is one that leaves nothing undone in the way of stirring gooseflesh and in keeping the main facts of the drama pretty thoroughly masked until the big, vital moment. In its happiest way the evening turned out to be a field day for the spirits.

• • •

AS you might have suspected from the start, the spirits were too good to be real. The author, of course, must have had his own reason for all the ensuing complications, but to the simple minded layman who isn't particularly impressed with demonstrations in the occult the whole affair could be taken as a pretty fair evening in parlor magic. There was no question about the play's mystery—it started early and ran late. When you consider that the whole thing was put together in drama form just to clear an innocent man's name and pin an old crime on the real culprit, you are bound to wonder why the author left so much to nature's invisible elements.

Nicholas Young

• • •

STILL, there was the good old drama detective always on the job and getting nowhere. But even he, like the spirits, turned up in the final analysis as a swindle; just a trick to clear the widow's son and discover, if possible, who had killed the beautiful Spanish dancer some time before the play started. By the liberal use of hidden doors and intermittent lightning, both men and women and chattels disappeared; by other methods spirits that sent squeaks and squeals all over the house almost joined hands with the audience. It was no place for a sensitive, nervous soul.

• • •

THE players, measured by their talents, were greatly superior to the work at hand. The performance was well acted in detail. Lorna Elliott played the spiritualistic medium with all the art you could expect of the role, while William E. Green contributed more than his share of the fun, if not total mystification, as the man from headquarters. Cecil Spooner, cast as a girl with night club experience, but bent on doing a little private sleuthing, was responsible for much of the evening's spectral gaiety. She made a buxom wraith.

• • •

IF you have a preference for surprises in your drama and can hold your seat while visible spirits float overhead, "The House of Fear" will just about complete your menu. In it you will find much to occupy your mind besides reading the program.

Is He Scared?

REX CARLTON AND CECIL SPOONER

WHO WOULDN'T be scary in a similar situation? The "loving" couple are prominent in "The House of Fear" now at the Plymouth.

MARY ASTOR TO "GO TALKIE" WITH GEORGE BANCROFT

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27—Mary Astor has been booked by Paramount for her first talkie. I couldn't believe that she hadn't had at least one little piece over a microphone until she told me that "Ladies Love Brutes," George Bancroft's next picture, will be her very first try at speaking dialogue for the screen.

Miss Astor isn't as nervous over this debut as she might have been if she hadn't had a chance to try her voice before the footlights. She is playing with a local stage company in "Among the Married." She was lunching at the Embassy Club with Herman Mankiewicz so I suspect Herman is writing the dialogue.

Louella O. Parsons

They tell me, speaking of George Bancroft, that his discovery of Europe is one of the best adventure stories of the season. He saw Paris and after 24 hours it was his. Ditto London and Berlin.

• • •

I HAVE on my table now a copy of "Louis Beretti," Donald Henderson Clarke's new story, sent me by John Ford. But there are so many Christmas cards to read and telegrams that I haven't had a chance to get beyond the title page. Now that Christmas is past I will get down to serious reading and have a look at this story which the Fox company is to produce. Paul Muni, the man with so many faces and who is considered the last word in versatility, will have the title role. The picture, however, will not be called "Louis Beretti." Fox is looking for a title on the order of "Dressed to Kill," something snappy. John Ford is already discussing appropriate titles.

• • •

FINE PROGRAM ON MET STAGE AND SCREEN

The Cast

Robert Courtland	William Powell
Lora Nixon	Fay Wray
Dot Nixon	Helen Kane
Dash Nixon	"Skeet" Gallagher
Donald Ogden	Phillips Holmes
Kay Wilcox	Adrienne Dore
Joe Clark	Eugene Pallette

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"POINTED HEELS," a program picture, takes the lesser place on the Metropolitan's bill for the new week, the lion's share falling to a colorful Publix Revue, "Streets of Bombay," and to a wealth of short screen subjects. The latter include a beautiful South Sea Island reel, in technicolor, showing the natives in dances and other festivities. This is a highlight, particularly in that it also gives one a chance to hear their music and chants. Another is the newsreel, finishing with a review of the year's happenings. Interesting it is to note, after the audience has applauded all the world figures pictured, that Col. Lindbergh leads. Proving that he still has a big hold on the public's attention.

• • •

THE feature film is another one of those backstage affairs. It is a program picture, meritorious if it be regarded as a satirical laugh at the long procession of the same kind of offerings that have hogged the silver sheet for the past nine months. If satire, it is a good hearty laugh; many will hope that it is a case of he that laughs last, last best. For the theme has been worn thin, so that it doesn't seem possible that there can be anything new to be told by shadowland's players. There are big names in the cast, like Helen Kane, William Powell, Fay Wray and "Skeet" Gallagher. Miss Wray is the showgirl who gives up the stage to wed a wealthy composer (Phillips Holmes). Mr. Powell is supposed to be the villain, but he is the most gentlemanly bold, bad man we ever saw. In reality he is the hero. His acting, when he has something to do, the work of Eugene Pallette as the dance director, and the comedy contributed by Miss Kane and Mr. Gallagher, are the best spots.

• • •

OF high excellence is Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird," exquisitely filmed. In the revue Al Mitchell has charge, and he is aided by his band and Pasquali Bros., Johnny Perkins, Madelyn McKenzie, Hasoutra and the Dave Gould chorus. A novel "cobra dance" is one of the number of features. Rimsky-Korsakov music is effectively used. The settings are fine and the talent is clever. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Martel compete in the song period, and Mr. Geissler conducts the big orchestra through an overture, "Auld Lang Syne the World Over."

"Bright Lights"

Production on "Bright Lights" will start at First National as soon as Dorothy Mackaill completes work on "The Flirting Widow." Frank Fay is to have the male lead.

ZEPPS' DRONE REPRODUCED

SOME of the sound and picture sequences in "The Lost Zeppelin," the Tiffany production featuring Conway Tearle, Virginia Valli and Ricardo Cortez, which is to be shown at the Park, beginning tomorrow, were taken from four airplanes which trailed the Graf Zeppelin when she reached the Pacific coast on her round-the-world flight.

"The Lost Zeppelin," a talking and sound picture, tells the romantic story of the flight of a Zeppelin to the South Pole, where it is wrecked.

The romantic side of the story deals with a young naval officer on the Zeppelin who believes he is in love with the wife of the commander.

MARIE FOUND FAME VIA FARCE

BECAUSE she discouraged of attaining the beauty she felt was necessary to success in leading roles, Marie Dressler, appearing with Rudy Vallee in "The Vagabond Lover" at the New B. F. Keith's tomorrow, turned to farce and found fame.

"Some 40 years ago," she says, "I burned with an ambition to become a grand opera star. I had a trained voice. I was called the 'dance cyclone.' I had sufficient egotism, too, but I had a mirror.

"This mirror told me I was too homely for a prima donna, and quite too stout for soubrette roles, and that I should have to compete with comedians if I were to have a ghost of a show in the entertainment field."

So Miss Dressler made up her mind to be Queen of the Slapstickian School. That she succeeded is testified to by "Tillie's Punctured Romance," made some years ago by Mack Sennett with such players as Charlie Chaplin, Mabel Normand and Ben Turpin in minor roles.

However, Hollywood has been kind to Marie Dressler, and she is in a position to choose her own parts now. In "The Vagabond Lover" she plays a society dowager

Five Sister Teams in Orpheum All-Girl Show

Besides holding the distinction of being an all-girl show, Grace and Marie Eline's novel revue, now featured on the stage at Loew's Orpheum, is regarded as a great big theatrical family.

There is more than one reason for looking at this show as a "family" affair. In this aggregation are five sister teams, headed by the clever Eline sisters, stars of the revue. Miss Jerry Stevens, leader of the popular girls' band, is associated with her sister, Dorothy. These girls are both of the famous Stevens family of Neponset.

GUILD ACTOR HAS RECORD OF MERIT

DUDLEY DIGGES, one of the prominent members of the Theater Guild Acting Company, which at the Hollis Street will present Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara," next Monday, has received high praise from critics for his recently completed work in the talking picture, "Condemned," in which Ronald Colman is the star. Mr. Digges has appeared in more than 30 plays with significant success during the past 10 years. He also has directed many notable stage productions. He is the founder of the Irish National Theater, later to become the Abbey Theater of Dublin.

Dudley Digges

He came to America in 1908 and first acted as stage manager with George Arliss. Among the plays in which he made distinctive appearances are: "John Ferguson," "Heartbreak House," "Jane Clegg," "Rose Bernd," "Outward Bound," "Liliom," "The Dance of Death," "Mr. Pim Passes By," "Peer Gynt," "Juarez and Maximilian" and "The Brothers Karamazov."

MANY IN COOKING CLASSES

Our Christmas mail was almost equally divided between lovely cards from thoughtful friends and enrollments for our January cooking classes. And now, unless we have some unexpected cancellations, it looks as though our lists were full and we shall have to start enrollments in our spring classes, which will open April 1.

The lessons in each series of classes are entirely different from any preceding or following lessons, you know, so that even those who have attended other of Martha Lee's classes are sure to find new and interesting recipes explained and demonstrated.

The brides' and business girls' class will open Tuesday evening, January 14, at 6:30 p. m., and our homemakers' class on Wednesday, January 15, at 2 p. m.

Spring classes will open on Tuesday, April 1, at 6:30 p. m., and Wednesday, April 2, at 2 p. m. If we are unable to enroll you for the January classes we will put you on the waiting list for the spring school, unless you advise us to the contrary.

COVER A WIDE FIELD

New friends may be interested in knowing that these cooking matinees and evening classes by Martha Lee are given to the girls and women of New England without charge of any kind, by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser. The evening classes are primarily intended for prospective brides, business girls and young mothers unable to leave home in the afternoon. The Wednesday afternoon school is a homemakers' class. Tickets of admission are issued upon enrollment and are presented for credit when you come to class.

It is necessary to attend seven of the nine lessons which will make up the winter term of the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery, to be eligible for a diploma on graduation day. If for any reason these already enrolled find they cannot attend the classes, please let us know so that we may fill your places from the waiting list.

VISITORS CAN COME

Visitors are welcome at both schools after the opening hours of 6:30 p. m., on Tuesday, and 2 p. m. on Wednesday, but we cannot always guarantee vacant seats. The two opening lessons are always crowded.

In applying for enrollments, please give your membership number in the Martha Lee Women's Club—or if you haven't a number, let us send you a membership card and registration number in this interesting club of no dues but many privileges.

Over 37,000 New England homemakers are now banded together in this wide awake organization for women interested in home economics. Address all mail to Martha Lee, care of this paper, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Baked Rice and Cheese Is Good

BAKED RICE AND CHEESE

3 cups cooked rice
3 cups cheese
1 tsp. salt
1 cup milk
3 tbsps. butter
Dash of cayenne

Put a layer of cooked rice (you can use the new canned rice if you wish) in a greased baking dish. Cover with a layer of grated cheese. Season with salt and cayenne. Continue adding layers of cheese and rice until the dish is almost full. Add enough milk to come half way to the top of the rice. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven slowly until the crumbs are brown. Balance this with crisp lettuce with your favorite salad dressing and you have all the necessary elements for proper nutrition.

CLOVER LEAF ROLLS

1 c. scalded milk
3 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. sugar
3 tsps. salt
1 yeast cake, dissolved in ¼ c. lukewarm water
About 8½ c. bread flour

Add butter, sugar and salt to milk. When mixture is lukewarm add the yeast cake, dissolved in ¼ c. lukewarm water and 3 c. of the flour. Beat thoroughly. Cover. Let rise until light. Cut down and add enough flour to knead (about 2½ c. more). Let rise again. Toss on slightly floured board. Knead, pat and shape into balls. Drop these balls in well buttered muffin pans. Brush with melted butter. Let rise and bake in hot oven 12 to 15 minutes.

PINEAPPLE DELICIOUS

Mix together in a large bowl, 12 marshmallows cut in quarters (wet your scissors in hot water before cutting each one), 4 slices of pineapple diced, 1 cup of canned cherries, coarsely chopped, and ¼ to ½ cup of chopped nut meats. Let stand for one hour and drain. To the fruit mixture add stiffly whipped cream (about 1 cup), blend lightly, chill for another hour and serve in tall glasses with a slice of plain cake or vanilla wafers.

"Afternoon Tea" Is Feature on B. & M. Through Trains

Traveling from Portland to Boston on the Boston & Maine Railroad recently, we were agreeably surprised at the announcement: "Afternoon tea is now being served in the dining car."

With feminine curiosity we joined the group for the diner, and found that the menu offered a pot of tea, crisp brown toast and orange marmalade for 50 cents.

We noticed from the tags that India Tea was the choice of the Boston & Maine, as it also is of the New York Central and the Pennsylvania on the Twentieth Century and Broadway Limited.

We hope that the pleasant afternoon tea habit will be a permanent feature, for it certainly makes an appealing break in a long train trip.

PLAN CHAIN OF MEN'S STORES

A huge network of men's retail clothing stores is now being organized by Rogers Clothes, Inc., a new million-dollar corporation with executive and buying offices at Fifth ave., New York.

The new organization is incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware and is headed by Carl A. Adler, formerly director and merchandise manager of the men's and boys' clothing department of the Samuels Stores, and head of that firm's real estate department. Other officers are: Walter H. Hawes, vice-president, and M. Lester Fleming, secretary.

Negotiations are now under way to purchase men's clothing chains with units in the larger cities, particularly those groups specializing in popular-priced apparel, ranging from $22.50 to $35. The individual units are being selected on the basis of their present earning power, their location and their reputation with local clientele.

RISKS LIFE TO SAVE DOG

A great affection for a neighbor's police dog caused Patrolman Joseph Preston of Wakefield police to risk his life in entering the smoke-filled room of Stephen Azarian at Preston st., Wakefield, to rescue the animal.

Although the dog was big and heavy, Patrolman Preston carried him to his own home and summoned a veterinarian. The firemen extinguished the blaze, of undetermined origin, after a brief fight. The fire had got a very good start owing to the fact that the sender of the alarm could not open the door of the alarm box, which was frozen with sleet.

Here Is a Dessert for Sunday Dinner

Why not give the folks complete real fancy pies and puddings next Sunday? You probably still have some Thanksgiving fruit cake, plum pudding and mincemeat ready for the New Year dinner, but for Sunday—especially if you have company—don't you think the folks would enjoy these Frosted Cream Puffs? You can purchase the cream puff shells or bake them yourself by the recipe I've given you so often. When cold, cut them across in half and fill the lower half with any desired flavor of ice cream. Put on the top and serve with hot or cold chocolate fudge sauce. Yum! Yum!

Another nice Sunday dessert is an ice cream sandwich made by cutting half-inch slices of sponge cake or angel cake and placing a half-inch slice of ice cream between two pieces. Pour over this either hot fudge sauce or crushed, sweetened fruit, and garnish with a teaspoon of whipped cream and chopped nuts or a chocolate shot.

Legion Posts Bet on Member Drive

Concord, N. H., Dec. 27—Officials of the New Hampshire department, American Legion, are fighting hard to make their current membership drive the best in history.

They have a wager with the World War veterans of Idaho whereby it will cost the Granite Staters two full barrels of nice red McIntosh apples if they do not take in more members than the Idahoans. If the New Hampshire vets win they will be the richer by half a dozen big 10-gallon hats, of the type Tom Mix now and then flaunts.

W. H. Fry Dead at 99

Cincinnati, Dec. 27 — William H. Fry, 99, artist and noted wood carver, is dead at his home here. He would have been 100 years old on next February 5.

BEST OIL TO FRY ONIONS

Take good-sized onions. Peel and cut in crosswise slices one-fourth inch thick. If strong, soak in milk and water one hour. Strain; dust with salt. Dip in slightly beaten egg mixed with ½ cup of cold water. Then shake in a paper bag half full of fine, dry crumbs. Fry in deep fat until golden brown. Serve with Hamburg Balls or steak.

In the Martha Lee Kitchen, we find a pure corn oil ideal for deep fat frying of this kind, since, after straining, it can be used again and again without carrying odors or flavors from one food to another.

The chefs of many fine hotels and restaurants tell us that they, too, find this pure corn oil perfect for frying, since it contains no moisture to flash, sputter and smoke. It heats quickly without burning, quickly sears over the foods to be fried, sealing in their natural goodness and preserving their full richness and nutrition. Foods deep fried in this vegetable cooking oil—as sweet as the corn from which it is made—are always free from grease—appetizing and digestible.

Perhaps you'd like me to tell you how, for 10c, you can get your copy of a splendid book of nearly 300 practical, economical recipes, published by the manufacturers of this splendid product? It's a book that, to my mind, is easily worth a nice crisp dollar bill.

Two Easy-to-Make New Year Candies

By this time there's probably a pretty big hole in your supply of Christmas candy and with New Year right around the corner, perhaps you'll be interested in these two recipes for home made candies that are as delicious as they are easy to make.

The first—cocoanut candy—has a foundation of one medium-sized potato, either boiled or baked. This should be put through a coarse sieve and should give you a half cupful of dry, flaky potato. To this add 2 cups of confectioners' sugar and 2 cups of shredded cocoanut and 1 tbsp. of a reliable vanilla. Mold this in the bottom of a well-oiled pan, rather narrow and deep, having it at least an inch thick. When it is hard, cover with a layer of melted, sweet dipping chocolate. The color contrast in the creamy cocoanut candy and the chocolate topping is attractive and the candy itself is certainly good.

Uncooked fudge is equally easy and delicious. For this 2 ounces of unsweetened chocolate (you'll always find the number of ounces marked on the chocolate package), is melted over hot water just below the boiling point. To this is added the beaten yolks of 2 eggs, 1 cup of confectioners' sugar and 1 tbsp. of vanilla. Last of all add the stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs. Stir until smooth and spread on a buttered tray to harden. This fudge will always be creamy.

DATE DAINTIES

5 tbsps. flour
1 cup chopped nutmeats (chopped coarse with knife)
1 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla
1 lb. pitless dates, put thru food chopper
¾ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
3 eggs

Sift flour and measure out 5 tbsps. Sift the 5 tbsps. again with baking powder. Combine all other ingredients, adding eggs unbeaten. Bake in shallow greased pan in moderate oven (325 F.) about 45 minutes. Cut in squares and sprinkle with powdered sugar. This will make about 25 squares, ¾-inch thick.

Chicken King Is Best for New Year's Party Luncheon

ONE GOOD RECIPE HERE

Of course you're planning to welcome Baby 1930 with a New Year's Eve party? Who isn't — if they're fortunate enough to have a few square feet of space to call "home"? To me, New Year's is a homey, intimate time — with soft candle lights and our best china and glass.

There's a big thrill in greeting the New Year—with all its possibilities for happiness, fame and fortune. New Year is a good time to shut the door on troubles, and to plant in their place the seeds of live, new thinking and practical plans for better days.

"It's not how you fall that counts but how you rise," says the old poem, and so from past mistakes we rise with a stronger purpose and clearer vision than before.

But in forgetting misfortunes, let's not forget to remember the simple things in our every day life, our neighbors' kindnesses in time of trouble, the loyalty of our friends.

NOW THINK OF THIS

And almost forgetting the party she was trying to egg you into giving. If I'm fortunate enough to be invited out this New Year, here's what I hope they'll have for eats:

Chicken a la King
Finger Rolls
Chocolate Ice Box Cake
Punch

And, of course, I hope they'll make the Chicken a la King by my own favorite recipe. Will it bear repeating for those of you who haven't tried it?

MARTHA'S CHICKEN A LA KING

Clean and wash one bunch of celery, cut into half-inch slices, cover with boiling water and boil until the celery is tender. Peel half a pound (or a pound if you feel flush) of mushrooms and cook them with the celery until tender (about 20 minutes). Unless they are very small, you will want to cut them in several pieces.

Melt a large tbsp. of butter in a smooth saucepan and add 2 cups of milk; stir till smooth. Add the water in which they were boiled. Next add 1 small can of pimentos, cut in bits, and one-half pound of clear chicken meat cut in inch pieces, or larger, if you prefer. Season to taste with salt, paprika and just a dash of Worcestershire.

Last of all add 2 eggs, well beaten, cook for just 1 minute longer, and serve with hot waffles or on toast points.

If 1 c. of cream is substituted for 1 c. of milk, the dish will be much richer.

I admit that this is an extravagant recipe, but it is for occasions when you really wish to splurge a little. I'm sure that the praise of your guests will more than compensate for the dent in your pocketbook.

New Year's suppers are usually served a la buffet or tea wagon, with the one hot dish from the table or chafing dish. And the hot dish may be omitted and tiny sandwiches, cake, nuts and coffee suffice. A cheese and nut and pepper sandwich mixture is hard to improve on and another is of chopped cold chicken and chopped pecans moistened with salad dressing. These are scrumptious served with macaroons, ice cream and Russian tea which is simply your favorite tea poured boiling hot over a spoonful of flavorful juice such as raspberry or strawberry in each cup.

Tiny fancy cakes, petit fours, are always in order and easily made by this silver cake recipe:

PETIT FOURS

Cream ½ cup of butter, add gradually ½ cup of sugar, then ½ cup of milk, which has been mixed with 1-3 tsp. of soda, alternately with 1 cup of pastry flour sifted with ½ tsp. of cream of tartar and ½ tsp. of salt. Last add whites of 2 eggs stiffly beaten, 1 tsp. of almond extract and ½ tsp. of vanilla. Bake in a shallow pan 6 by 6 inches. Cut in small squares, oblongs or rounds. Ice with a simple icing made of 1 tsp. of water, 1½ cups of confectioner's sugar, and one tsp. of lemon juice. Before icing hardens, sprinkle crushed candied violets over some, over others crushed candied rose petals or red sugar, and over the remainder chopped pistachio nuts. The varied coloring makes them desirable for fancy cakes.

SMALL CHOCOLATE CAKES

An inexpensive and not very rich mixture. May be baked in small cakes and iced with either white or chocolate frosting.

Put into the top pan of double boiler ½ cup of milk, mixed with 1 yolk of egg. Cook over hot water until thickened, then add 1 cup of sugar. When cool, add ½ cup of milk, ½ cup of butter (not sifted) with 1 tsp. of soda and ½ tsp. of salt. Into this mixture stir 2 squares of melted bitter. Fill muffin pans only half full and bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven. This rule makes 18.

When cool enough to handle, remove a small portion of center from the top of each and insert a half marshmallow in the space thus made. Then cover cake with icing.

ICING

Melt 2 squares of chocolate in a saucepan set over hot water. Remove and add confectioners' sugar to make stiff; then add 2 tbsp. of warm milk, more sugar, and 2 tbsp. more of milk. Add enough sugar to be able to spread, having mixture soft as possible for a thin icing.

Only lack of space draws the New Year's party to a close — with my very best wishes to you all for the best of everything in 1930.

Martha Must Have Told Someone What She Wanted

Here's the pride of them all—an electric refrigerator that Santa placed in Martha's Kitchen. It's a godsend to many a late and hungry person, for all you have to do is press a button and the electric lights go on

Letters From Our Readers

Says College Women Make Good Wives

Editor Boston American:

When that pastor in Boston launched out upon marriage in this country, calling it Pagan, not Christian, I think he had no other motive in view but to stir up a hornet's nest of controversy. But he added that: "No woman with a college education ought to be expected to cook meals and make beds, unless she wants to."

Women do not get cheaply over a college education like some men. I have an A. B. pinned on me, but I am very glad to cook meals and make beds. I am glad to do these things, because I am a college graduate. I am more competent to cook better meals, because what I learned at college makes me think and plan. I can make a meal like a problem in geometry. I have five cook books and work them as I worked a Latin grammar some years ago in college. A woman because she is a college graduate, does not think herself above making beds. She is not a clinging vine to her husband. Education makes you use your head where it is most needed today in making income stand ahead of expense.

Why Women Like to Work for Men

Editor Boston American:

George Bernard Shaw, you're right! You never said a truer thing in all your life than when you said, "Women like to work for men."

Why? Because men are more sympathetic with women in their work. This is not so with some women, who are managing a business. They do not know how to handle the women working for them. I have heard these words, "Copy Cats," thrown again and again at women in doing their work, because they have not original ideas about some part of their work.

You wouldn't find a man treating a woman like that. They are in many ways more considerate of women workers. Some women like to humiliate other women that are better looking than they are. They know this and they would work them to death sometimes, if they had the chance. Men have their faults but they are known to treat women in business better than women treat one another.

Kissing in Public Cost Money in 1631

Editor Boston American:

I much enjoy reading Ed his about the Tercentenary in your Editor's Letter Column. I hope you will give us more of them. I have some to give, dug out of an old book that we have had in our family for generations. Here they are:

"In 1640, Captain Stone was fined 100 pounds and prohibited from coming to Boston without the governor's leave on pain of death, for calling Justice Ludlow 'Just Ass.' He was in Senator Ines' class in calling his colagues "Wild Asses."

Here is another bit of old news:

"In Boston, 1631, a captain of a certain vessel who had been on a long voyage happened to meet his wife on the streets of Boston, hugged and kissed her, for which he was fined 10 shillings and forced to pay."

Then some of these modern guys speak of the "Good old times." Piffle!

Would Use Million for Cancer Relief

Editor Boston American:

The Brookline pastor who told on the front page of a Boston newspaper what he would do, if he had a million dollars, just moved me to tell what I would do.

I would multiply, in every large city, hospitals for the care of cancer patients and provide laboratories for the study of cancer. There is much being done for those afflicted with this disease, but there are very few hospitals that will admit cancer patients, even in Boston or Massachusetts. I pity the poor who suffer from cancer.

Then, with a million dollars, I would erect homes for aged couples where they are most needed. Giving libraries to towns and cities that cannot compete with the dire necessity of providing for aged couples. This is my idea of spending a million or more of dollars.

JOHN J. SLOCUM.

Need Perseverence to Win Success

Editor Boston American:

That young man in a Massachusetts city who has had a manuscript of a love novel rejected on account of its technical statements, should not be discouraged. Keep on trying! Virgil spent seven years in writing his "Georgics". Laurenus gave a whole lifetime to a single poem; Thucydides rolled off 20 years in his history; Rudyard Kipling rewrote his stories many times; Hall Caine made it a rule to revise every novel he wrote a dozen times." "The Raven" lay in the desk of Edgar Allen Poe for 10 years, before it was considered fit to publish; Plato spent weeks over a sentence; Charlotte Bronte, hours over one word, and so on.

You cannot get anywhere in writing novels or anything else unless you "screw your courage up to the sticking point' and stick till you succeed. It is nonsense giving up anything that is worth doing, and that is what this young writer must not forget.

Working Girl Knows What Home Requires

Editor Boston American:

What H. J. K. said in your letter column, just pleased me, because it came in the defense of the working girl proving that she is better fitted for married life than the mere doll.

I don't see why Prof. Rogers says such things. I wonder if he is married. Probably he doesn't any in his home life what he says in his talks. I hope his wife, if he has one, will give him a good scolding for saying such things about the working girl.

I work daily in a store and get up very early to start breakfast. Mother is not very well, so I get things ready for her. I do not have much pay, but I tell you I make it go a long distance. Every working girl can run a home economically. She gets more experience than the girl who reads love novels all day and spends most of her time chatting. Working girls know what home life is and what it needs. They are the best for marriage.

C. D. R.

Woman's Position in Life of Today

Editor Boston American:

Why all this hallabaloo over modern women? A professor here in Greater Boston is proclaiming his super knowledge by saying that women teachers are not on a level with men teachers and lately this technical sneak declared that a working girl is not fit for marriage. Then an Englishman called philosopher, that goes by the name of "Bert" said lately in Boston that "The scientific attitude towards life can scarcely be learned from women."

Will these prevaricators please notice this: There are today in the United States over 2800 women lawyers, 9000 women physicians, over 9000 women authors, editors, reporters, 313,000 women librarians, 73,000 women musicians, 270,000 social workers. Now will these public speakers stop hammering women.

Snoring Has Virtues, Doctors Regardless

Editor Boston American:

Notwithstanding what was said in a recent copy of the Boston Evening American by a physician about snoring and how to prevent it, I want to take up the cudgels for a good snore.

As you don't know me from Adam and will not mention my name in this letter, I'll let you in on a great secret.

My landlady is an aged woman. She rents the room to me and is very kind and thoughtful. She does not like to have me stay out too late, as I have to do at times. She says she can't go to sleep knowing that I am not in the house in bed. Often I come in quietly and find her sleeping in her big arm chair down stairs, and then get soon to my own bed and go to snoring. When the dear old lady recovers from her nap and hears me sawing wood, why she is assured that I am in the house safe and sound. Then she sleeps.

Wishes Information on Raw Food Diet

Editor Boston American:

I heard the other day that there is a growing colony of men and women in Boston who are eating uncooked food only and never have dyspepsia. I met one of them the other day and he maintained that the most suitable nourishment is uncooked food because it contains vital electric fires which are directly derived from the sun and have accumulated in the plant cells. These fires have very strong effect upon the activity of the glands and through them upon the whole of life process. I would like to know about uncooked food from someone who has followed this kind of food for some time. Some of us have no way to get information except through your paper. Please answer.

Dynamite Ice Jam

Ausable Forks, N. Y., Dec. 27—A two-mile ice jam in the Ausable river is yielding before the determination of 60 men using dynamite with the possibility that the barricade may be cleared away late today, thus freeing the village of Jay, near here, from further damage by flood.

TURKEYS NOW AT REST

The New Year's dinner is always more difficult to plan than either the Thanksgiving or Christmas feast as by this time the family has grown a bit blase about turkey and mince pie. There are, however, still many dishes served seldom enough so that mouths water and eyes glisten when they appear on the holiday board. Game when it is available is appreciated, as are geese and ducks, the crown roast of pork (New England fresh dressed, of course), roast little pig and brown clove-dotted whole baked ham.

For our dinner, let's choose the following dishes:

MENU
Crab Flake Cocktail
Baked Ham Baked Sweet Potatoes
Spinach
Stuffed Pimento Salad
Raisin Pudding Peach Hard Sauce
Fruits Nuts Candies
Coffee

CRAB COCKTAIL

Flake one cup of crab meat, two chopped hard cooked eggs. Serve with cocktail sauce made by mixing one-third cup each of catsup and chili sauce with the juice of one lemon. Season with one-half teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and two drops of tobasco.

BAKED HAM

Prepare ham as usual, but add one-half cup of molasses to the water in which it is boiled, in addition to the vegetables and spices. This will greatly improve the flavor. Cook the ham in its liquor, cut off skin, stick with cloves and cover with moist brown sugar, and bake until browned.

BROWNED SWEET POTATOES

STUFFED PIMENTO SALAD

To one-half pound of cream cheese add gradually one small can of tomato puree. Season slightly with salt, cayenne and Worcestershire, and add one tablespoon of gelatin softened in one-fourth cup of cold water and melted over hot water. Carefully open canned pimentos and fill with the cheese mixture, chill, and when firm, cut in slices and serve on lettuce with French dressing.

FRUIT HARD SAUCE

Cream one-third of a cup of butter, add one cup of confectioner's sugar and beat until smooth. Add one-fourth teaspoon of lemon extract and two-thirds of a cup of canned peaches, drained and cut fine. Top with a grating of nutmeg and chill.

A thick slice of uncooked American cheese is heaped upon these, slightly rounded in the middle, dotted with pepper and salt, and a hot oven until the cheese has formed a golden brown crust. Serve immediately.

CRANBERRY SALAD

Cook two cups of cranberries in one cup water 20 minutes. Stir in one cup sugar. When cool add two tablespoons gelatine dissolved in one-half cup cold water. Stir well and as soon as the mixture begins to thicken add one-third cup nut meats and one cup chopped celery. Pour into small molds and set in Kelvinator. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

CREAMY COCOA ROLLS

For many moons, whenever I passed a certain candy shop that also specializes in fine cakes and cookies, I paused to enviously admire the chocolate whipped cream rolls which are one of their specialties.

Several times I went home and struggled with an ordinary chocolate sponge cake recipe in a vain attempt to duplicate these attractive and tasty rolls, but invariably the cake would break just at the critical moment of the rolling.

At last, however, I have a perfect formula for the cake part of these chocolate rolls, and I'm glad to share it with you. Don't be alarmed that the recipe calls for only 3 tbsps. of flour. This is quite correct. And be sure to spread the batter very thin in your jelly roll pan.

Yes, there is a special pan made for jelly rolls, very shallow and just the right width for easy rolling.

If, however, you are not the proud possessor of one of these pans, select a cake tin considerably longer than it is wide, as it is much easier to roll a narrow cake.

If you will work quickly, covering your cakes with sweetened and flavored whipped cream just as soon as it comes from the oven, cutting off the crusts all the way round and rolling quickly as for a jelly roll, I am sure you will have success. Especially if you do your cake rolling on a piece of wax paper or damp cloth liberally sprinkled with granulated sugar.

COCOA CREAM ROLL

½ c. powdered sugar
2½ tbsps. cocoa
3 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. baking powder
⅛ tsp. salt
3 eggs
1 c. cream, whipped

Sift together sugar, cocoa, flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks until light and thick. Add gradually the sifted ingredients. Fold in the egg whites beaten stiff. Spread very thin in greased shallow jelly roll pans. (Batter should be not more than ¼ inch thick). Small pans are better than large ones, making the roll easier to handle. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 15 minutes. Spread with cream, sweetened and flavored to taste. Roll up as for jelly roll. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Cut into 1½-inch pieces to serve. The roll can be turned out on a damp cloth liberally sprinkled with granulated sugar and the cloth can be pinned around the roll while it is cooling, to hold it in shape. It may be frosted with chocolate frosting if desired.

Easy to Have Sea Bathing in Your Tub

All through the Christmas rush I've been finding fresh "swim, wiggle and wetality" in the salt baths I've been enjoying every morning and every often at night as well.

Probably you, too, enjoy sea bathing and wait anxiously for warm weather to bring the beach season around again.

While of course I don't mean to say that I'd just as soon paddle in the home tub as at my favorite beach under summer suns and soft breezes, I do want to tell you that for tired, aching feet, weary muscles and frayed nerves a salt bath at home works wonders. A 300 bag of salt will give you three good baths and the resulting sense of rest and well-being can't be valued in money.

Take plenty of time to rest comfortably at least 10 minutes in your warm salt bath. You can suit yourself about rinsing off in fresh water, but personally, I like to leave the salt on for full benefit and do not find it at all sticky.

Try one of these warm salt baths when you get home after a day of exchanging Christmas gifts!

Holiday Ice Box Cakes Are Tasty

Into a double-boiler shave 2 squares of cooking chocolate, add ½ c powdered sugar and yolks of 4 eggs. Mix well and cook over boiling water until thoroughly blended and smooth. Add 1 tsp. of vanilla and the whites of the 4 eggs, beaten stiff. Line a mold with wax paper, if you are using an ordinary pudding mold, and then cover the paper with lady fingers.

If you are using an ice box cake mold, line the bottom with thin slices of sponge cake or lady fingers around the edge. Over this sponge cake arrange a layer of crushed, stale macroons. Over this pour a layer of the chocolate mixture, then a layer of macaroons, then a layer of chocolate, and a layer of lady fingers; and repeat until the mold is filled.

Arrange lady fingers in wheel effect on top and decorate with blanched almonds and maraschino cherries. Be sure to let this ice box cake stand over night in a cold place.

TURNIP BALLS, HOLLANDAISE

1 pint turnip balls
2 tbsps. of butter
3 egg yolks
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. fine chopped parsley or chives.

With a French potato cutter cut out a pint of turnip balls from pared turnips, or dice in neat half-inch squares. Cook until tender in boiling water, drain and stir through them three tbsps. of butter, beaten to a cream and mixed with the beaten yolks of two eggs, half a teaspoon each, of salt and pepper, and one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Sprinkle the dish with a teaspoonful of fine-chopped parsley or chives or a mixture of the two.

SPEED IS BIG ITEM IN THIS

Tired out with Christmas entertaining? And vowing that you won't do any special catering for New Year's?

But wouldn't you feel more comfortable if you knew you had two loaves of lusciously moist nut bread on hand to serve with a cup of perfect coffee to the friends who are sure to drop in on New Year's Eve or New Year's day? And the nut bread I have in mind is so easy and so inexpensive really it takes less than six minutes for the mixing from the time you measure the flour until the loaf is ready for the oven.

SIX-MINUTE NUT BREAD

1 cup white flour
1 cup graham flour
1 tsp. soda
Scant cup of walnuts
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup molasses
1½ cups milk
Pinch of salt

This mixture should be as stiff as soft bread and should be baked in a very moderate oven (350° F.) for one hour. This will make one large loaf in the usual long nut loaf pan or two small loaves in the usual bread pan. Too hot an oven means that your nut bread, instead of being moist and delicious, may be dry and humpy in the middle.

Get Milk Into Them, Somehow

The National Dairy Council of Chicago sends us the following: "In America, at present, over 33,000,000 children, or one out of every three, are suffering from an insufficient supply of milk and its products. Malnutrition retards their growth and development.

"Milk is not only an infant food, but one that should be in the diet of every adult, since it promotes health and furnishes nourishment. The milk way is the health way."

Mothers, here is a lesson you should take to heart. If your children don't like to drink milk, make them eat milk by supplying it through cooked dishes. In this way you will be sure they are getting the vitamines that they must have if they are to have their heritage of health and rugged childhood.

Ford Plant to Turn Out 500 Cars a Day

With an increased capacity of 150 cars daily the assembling plant of Ford Motor Co., at Somerville, will resume operations next Wednesday, changes in plant layout and machinery having been completed. Three thousand men are to be employed and 500 cars will be turned out daily.

During the present year the plant produced 75,000 Model A cars, of which 40,000 were distributed in this State and the remainder in other New England states.

Water-Tight Wrist Watch Paris Latest

Paris, Dec. 27—A water-tight wrist watch that should be part of the outfit of each of next summer's expected crop of English channel swimmers has been placed on display in a Paris novelty shop.

M. Lancel, Parisian leather dealer, is the inventor. His product, for purpose of advertisement, is placed in a large goldfish bowl, and a magnifying glass is placed between the exhibit and the passerby.

Ralph S. Hendrie, Yachtsman, Dies

Ralph S. Hendrie, widely known as an amateur yachtsman, died of pneumonia in Quincy City Hospital. His home was on Pilgrim Boulevard, Merrymount, and he was the son of Charles J. and Eva S. Sherman Hendrie.

Hendrie for a number of years was associated with H. L. Boyden in sailing yachts of the famous "Havoseo" class of boats. After the death of Boyden, Hendrie sailed the yacht of Dr. Morton L. Prince of Boston and last year he sailed the yacht Gypsy for Frank C. Paine of Boston.

Hendrie was a member of the Corinthian Yacht Club.

He is survived by his wife, Helen Sturgis Hendrie, and two children, Patricia Hendrie and Ralph S. Hendrie, Jr.

RAPS LIMITING ENTRY PORTS TO CANADA

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—Representative Pittenger, Republican, Minnesota, today announced that he would oppose the proposal of the Treasury Department to limit the number of ports of entry from Canada.

Undersecretary Mills of the Treasury has announced that a plan for a unified border patrol and to reduce the number of ports of entry from Canada would be placed before a congressional joint committee now in the process of formation. Mills said however that it would be necessary to consult Canada about reducing the number of ports.

"I can see a lot of dangerous possibilities," Pittenger said in a statement, "in the plan of Undersecretary Mills to close the highways to Canada and it is possible that great inconvenience may be caused many [illegible]"

Pittenger said the proposal came as a surprise to him and asserted he would not endorse it without further information.

He said that already much complaint had been directed at the customs, immigration and border patrol regulations to the effect that they needlessly interfere with persons who have lawful business that take them across the border. He asserted the tourist business was also to be considered.

"My district," he said, "extends for a considerable distance along the Canadian border and it is only fair that the people affected have a chance to know what the government bureaus plan to do."

MAYOR DENIES RUM BRIBES

Lowell, Dec. 27—Mayor Thomas H. Braden today issued a statement in which he denied rumors that he was receiving money for the protection of liquor sellers.

The Mayor said it was reported an increase of $1 a gallon in the price of alcohol was to go to him. He said he had instructed police to arrest anyone offering protection [illegible]

[illegible] No one has been, will be, nor is authorized by me to collect any money in my behalf or offer protection of the Mayor's office to those engaged in illegitimate pursuits.

"I have no protection to give and no person has the right to hold any such assumption.

"I have heard that the price of alcohol has been increased from $6 to $7 a gallon and it is being stated that the extra dollar is going to me for protection.

"Let me make it very, very clear that the mayor is protecting no one and is not receiving $1 a gallon for alcohol protection.

"I have called this matter to the attention of the superintendent of police and instructed him to have his department do all within its power to apprehend and bring to justice any person or persons offering protection to law-breakers of any sort."

Drinking Among Students Declines

New York, Dec. 27—Sigmund H. Steinberg of Philadelphia, supreme master of the Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity, said that efforts by college and university officials had brought about a marked decline in drinking among students.

Bates Coach Weds New Britain Co-ed

Lewiston, Me., Dec. 27 (AP)—Bates College authorities announced that Clinton R. Thompson, track coach at Bates, and Miss Dogma Carlson of New Britain, Ct., were married today at the home of the bride.

Both are graduates of Bates, Thompson of the class of 1925, and Mrs. Thompson of the class of 1928. Mrs. Thompson was prominent in debating.

Watertown Club Guards Tax Rate

The Jefferson Club of Watertown, newly formed Democratic organization, has gone on record as opposed to the use of town funds for the celebration of the tercentenary, urging that the money for the purpose be raised by public subscription.

"We recommend that on account of our desire to keep the tax rate down all moneys for the public celebration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of the town be paid by public subscription, and that not one cent more be taken from the town treasury," was the resolution adopted by the club.

Sculptress' Death Laid to Hemorrhage

Chicago, Dec. 27 (AP)—Tennessee Mitchell Anderson, Chicago sculptress and divorced wife of Sherwood Anderson, novelist, was found dead in her studio in the artists' colony on the near north side.

Despite the appearance of blood stains on the pillows of the bed on which Mrs. Anderson's body was found, death was believed to have been from natural causes. Death, according to coroner's physicians, was caused by hemorrhage.

Officer Slain; Another Wounded by Bandits

New Castle, Pa., Dec. 27 (AP)—One State highway patrolman was shot and killed and another wounded near here today in a gun battle with two men and a woman, who were believed to have robbed a store at Butler.

The bandits were riding in an automobile bearing Ohio plates. After killing Patrolman Brady Paul and wounding Patrolman Ernest Moore, they fled. They later held up a motorist, took his car and continued in flight toward New Castle.

ROOKIE FIREMAN CRUSHED TO DEATH, MANY HURT

Capture of Two Small Boys Bares Sad Plight of Family

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN beautiful, young brunette meets the lad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator Guy is developing a perfect airplane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow ith Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure.

Pat's father dies and Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest, but Guy gets them back. Bryce stops financing the plane factory. Suddenly three persons vanish, Guy, Pat and Mrs. Bryce's little boy. A note is received demanding $20,000 ransom for the boy. The place where the money is left is watched by the police, but is taken mysteriously, presumably by the kidnapers. Guy is found and arrested kidnaper of Bryce's grandson. Meanwhile, the captors of Pat and the boy flew the Grand Canyon. Pat escapes by leaping from the cliff with the boy in her arms and lands safely with the aid of a parachute.

Now Read On

CHAPTER 46.

Pat pressed herself deep into the niche of rock. Her heart flew about and the arms holding the little boy were leaden.

They seemed to have stopped right there on the other side of the wall. Their voices cut through it with afflicting sharpness.

Ace. "Looks like a big son of a gun—probably half a dozen galleries. Better go back for the flash."

"And lose the rest of the day? Put off the start another 24 hours. You—damn—fool! I tell you the little . . . used the radio! I know I didn't leave that cover off! It's find her and shut her up or leave her here to squeal and send us across for life! Gimme that lighter! She's not gone far. She'd not dare!"

"She dared that leap!"

"Gimme the lighter!"

Muffled steps gliding down the incline.

"Hush—they won't find us—hush," timing her words to those steps cautiously, ruthlessly approaching.

A pause. An instant of flashing silence followed by an abrupt, shocking sound as of a body falling. Then a curse—a wild, screaming curse. The whole cavern echoed with the groan—prolonged, infuriate, agonized.

Slim had fallen. He didn't see that drop. He went down it.

Pat's brain whirled with the black, dizzy image. Slim coming suddenly to that break, toppling over it, lying there crushed.

She brushed her eyes against the child's soft hair. She told herself, weeping:

"That ends it! They're finished!"

And she listened, almost suffocated, to Ace proceeding with enraging slownes down the incline; listening to Slim's blasphemous, appalling moans.

"God—where are you?"

"Gimme a hand—damn you!"

"Shut up! Gimme a hand!"

A long, shuddering quiet—then thump, a body dragging with sickening thuds along the rocky floor.

"Here—I'll left you—got the lighter?"

Thud—thud. Now and then a fist tapping at the wall. This fist seemed almost to strike on their heads. It came nearer. It brought Pat upright with a jolt.

"Make them stop— make them go!"

She sank low to the floor, the child half buried in her arms—her lips smothering him. She sobbed against his mouth.

"Hush—oh, hush—"

She was too withered now to think, even to wonder. Had they heard?

"Hello Billy. Pretty dark in there, isn't it? The bugaboos gonna catch you. Better come out. Ace will give you a nice bar of chocolate . . . nice bacon—nice glass of water. Are you thirsty, Billy?"

Pat imploring, holding him to her:

"Don't answer—mousey, dear—hush—little pussy—hush—"

She began to crawl—flashing her light and crawling further back—further away with him.

"Billy—answer! There's a terrible black giant lives in this cave. He's gonna eat you up. Scream and I'll come get you—"

"Hush — Billy — Hush — he's fooling—he only wants to find us . . . he's the giant—"

She crept on—she wouldn't move her mouth from the child's lips. He was crying now—he was push-

STAIRS CRUSH FIREMAN TO DEATH

Investigation of $80,000 Blaze in High St. Is Started by Authorities

While an investigation of a three-alarm fire at 76 High st. was under way today, the fire department was mourning the death of a hero rookie, who was crushed under a blazing staircase during the battle with the flames.

Two other firemen were seriously injured and several were overcome by smoke in fighting the blaze, which threw the entire leather district into darkness.

The dead fireman was William F. Emmel, a member of Ladder 8, and who lived at 4261 Washington st., Roslindale.

He joined the department six months ago.

The injured at the hospital are William Tracey of 1580 Tremont st., a member of Engine 3, and Michael Quirk of 56 Percival st., Dorchester, attached to Engine 35.

William Ivers, 29, of 249 Lydon st., East Boston, a hoseman attached to Engine 25, returned to his station at Fort Hill sq. after the fire complaining that he did not feel well.

Ivers went to bed, only to become worse, and he was taken to City hospital, where he was treated for smoke inhalation.

Seven other firemen were cut and injured, and several were overcome by smoke. They were treated at the scene by doctors from Haymarket Relief Hospital and City Hospital.

BUDDY RISKS LIFE

The fire started just after the fire apparatus throughout the city had been given a wild run through the sounding of false alarms and alarms for a stubborn blaze at the Animal Rescue League on Carver st.

The removal from the ruins of the body of Ladderman Emmel after the fire had been put under control was witnessed by a throng of several thousand persons.

A brother fireman risked his own life to bring Emmel out, being obliged to descend from the third floor of the building to the street down a narrow, rickety fire-escape which threatened at any minute to collapse.

After firemen, under the direction of Fire Chief Sennott had found it impossible to remove Emmel's body from the ruins by any of the extension ladders or down the stairway, which had been destroyed in the fire, Daly offered his own body on which to tie the form of Emmel. After this was done Daly slowly made the descent.

HOT AIR BLASTS

The other firemen received their injuries from the hot air explosions which showered them with flying glass, cutting them about the face and hands.

Damage caused by the fire, according to police estimates, amounted to $80,000. The cause of the fire was determined following an investigation by Chief Sennott.

He stated that two hydrogen tanks used in filling toy balloons in the toy shop in the building exploded. This started the fire, he reported.

Flames shot through the structure immediately after the two explosions rent the building, blowing the front and rear doors of the structure out and shattering windows on all the floors of the building.

The building is occupied by a paint shop, a silversmith shop and a toy shop.

According to firemen who responded to the first alarm, lack of water allowed the fire to rage for more than 15 minutes without much interference.

Firemen responding to the first two alarms, were unable to reach within some distance of the building because of the thick clouds of smoke which filled the entire district.

Because of the presence in the building of chemicals, including mercuride, special precautions were taken against any possible poisoning. Friemen donned their gas masks as they fought the fire.

Low Stocks Help Him Fly High on Trail of Summer to the South

TANGLE ON TAXI INSURANCE

Independent taxicab drivers have been experiencing some difficulty in getting their 1930 automobile registration plates, due to an insurance situation.

The 800 members of the Independent Taxi Owners' Association and about 300 small non-members have been notified that most of the stock companies will decline to accept taxicabs as risks next year unless the owner can pay $300 in cash. The law requires companies to accept a cash offer. They refuse to sell on time.

The vast majority of the independents must insure by aid of a broker, paying him monthly.

Hit-and-Run Ship Sought in Harbor

A hit-and-run vessel, unidentified at present, damaged the Norwegian steamer Sama, chartered to the United Fruit Company, in the darkness as she lay moored across the end of Long Wharf.

The offender, either a beam trawler, or a large tug, according to a man who says he saw the occurrence, kept on its way after bumping the steamer's stern.

Products of Hub Over Half Billion in 1928

These statistics were carried in a census of manufacturers compiled under the direction of the State Department of Labor and Industries.

The average number of wage earners was 75,468, which was a reduction of almost 2000 in comparison with the previous year and more than 5000 less than the number employed in 1926. The 2603 miscellaneous enterprises represented a capital investment of $378,3[illegible],763, while the value of stock and materials used in manufacture is placed at $303,524,960.

The principal industry, according to the value of products was printing and publishing, although the boot and shoe industry, with the addition of its cut stock and findings branches, outranked the printing and publishing industry.

There were a total of 304 printing and publishing industries in Boston during 1928, and second in that respect came the bread and cake manufacturers, of which there were 226.

The greatest number of workmen were employed in the manufacture of boots and shoes, with the statistics showing 6804 employes, and another 1283 attached to the cut stock and findings branches.

GIRL'S LOCKET LED TO ARREST

The photograph of a Cambridge girl in a small locket was the clue that caused police to arrest Michael Herman, 21, of Fifth st., Cambridge, today for attempting to force the safe in the Eagles fraternity home on Prospect st., Cambridge.

He was arrested by Officers Joseph O'Connor and Cornelius Lehan. Police charge he dropped the locket while trying to force the safe.

Where the locket was found the two officers visited the Inman sq. section of Cambridge and since the night of the fraternity home break interviewed several hundred young women.

They finally found a girl answering to the photographic likeness in the locket. She gave her name as Miss Ida Russi of Bristol st., Cambridge. There are no charges against the young woman.

Confronted by the police and the locket she admitted that the photograph in the locket was her picture. Then, police say, she said she had given the photograph and locket to her "boy friend."

Services Tomorrow for Boston Lawyer

Funeral services for Herbert F. Elkins, member of the Boston Bar Association, who died of pneumonia at his home, Greenwood ave., Wakefield, Christmas night, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at his late residence. He was 52 years old, and leaves his wife. Interment will be at Guildford, N. H., in the spring.

For some years he was attorney for the London Guaranty and Accident Company, with offices in Boston and was prominent in Masonic circles.

WOMAN 'ANTI' GETS 6 MONTHS

For the second time in as many months, Mrs. Jeanette Brown of Hancock st., Cambridge, faced Judge Stone in East Cambridge district court today on a charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

She was given six weeks in the House of Correction and fined $50. A suspended fine of $50 imposed when she last appeared in court was put into effect.

HOLD FUNERAL OF FR. GRADY

The funeral of Rev. Henry C. Grady, who was pastor of Church of the Most Precious Blood, Hyde Park, was held today from the church with Bishop J. B. Peterson and 50 priests in attendance. Rev. M. J. Cuddihy, pastor of St. John's Church, Quincy, was celebrant of the solemn requiem high mass.

Rev. David F. Regan, pastor of St. Ann's Church, Readville, was deacon, and Rev. Richard J. Cushing, diocesan director of propagation of the faith, was sub-deacon and preached the eulogy.

Music was by the priests' choir of which Rev. J. W. Lambert is director. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Vet Proofreader to Be Buried Sunday

McDevitt was a veteran of the Crimean and Civil Wars and was one of the oldest residents of Dorchester.

He was born in Dublin, Ire., in 1837, and served in the Crimean War as a bugler.

Funeral services will be held at his niece's home Sunday afternoon, and burial will be at Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Beverly Assessor for 40 Years Quits

After having served 40 years as an assessor in Beverly, John F. Murney has announced he would not be a candidate for re-election by the City Council next January.

His withdrawal served to bring a number of candidates into the race for the office, among them former Mayor James McPherson, Alderman Timothy J. Hayes, former Representative Martin C. Lane, Leon Doble and Charles B. Gross. The election will be held January 6.

NAB TOTS AS THEY STEAL XMAS CARDS

Lads Wanted to See "Pretty Pictures"; Police Speed Aid to Parents

Capture of two little boys rifling Back Bay mail boxes to get "the pretty picture cards" today led to uncovering a family in dire want and eventually to obtaining assistance for them.

The boys, aged 6 and 8, whose names the police refused to divulge, were caught in a Peterborough st. building by Patrolman Paul Klouse of Back Bay station while they were taking holiday greeting cards from tenants' mail boxes.

The broke down and cried and said: "We wanted some of the pretty picture cards."

Glancing at their dilapidated shoes, the patrolman noticed their feet were on the ground.

"You'd better come with me," he said. He called a taxi, took the kiddies to Back Bay station and explained the situation to Capt. John M. Anderson.

"Go over to their home and bring back the facts," said Capt. Anderson. Klouse did as instructed and found the family, consisting of husband and wife and five young children in dire want. The father was ill in bed.

When Klouse made his report, Capt. Anderson gave him $10 and instructed him to buy shoes, stockings and rubbers for the two youngsters.

He then telephoned a clergyman, explained the predicament of the family and was promised sufficient clothing for the entire family. Capt. Anderson next got in touch with a Back Bay welfare organization which promised to care for the family further.

DANFORTH HOPS FOR FLORIDA

William Danforth, Brookline stock market operator, took off from Boston Airport today for Florida in his Bellanca Pacemaker cabin monoplane powered with a Wright 300-horsepower whirlwind motor.

The ship was piloted by Danforth's aerial chauffeur, Lyle "Slim" Halstead, and carried Joe Fluett as mechanic. A brief stop was to be made at Newark, after which the ship was to fly to Washington where the night will be spent. The party hopes to reach Savannah tomorrow and Jacksonville on Monday. Danforth plans to spend a month or two in Florida.

Soon to Wed

The engagement of Miss Charlotte Spencer, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. George Hazelton Spencer of Upland rd., Cambridge, to Warren Hosely Bateman of North Adams was announced at tea at the girl's home.

ALLEN TO TAKE HISTORIC PEW

Governor Allen will occupy the governor's pew at the regular 11 o'clock service in King's Chapel tomorrow, following a custom that was revived last year and dates back to the old colonial days.

The chair in which he will sit is that of Governor Hutchinson, the last of the royal governors in this State.

In the old Colonial days, when the governor was a member of the English Church he and his family always worshipped in King's Chapel and if his own church was of the Congregational order, he went to the chapel for special occasions. The last governor to occupy the pew was Governor William Sullivan.

AMERICAN RESCUE WORKERS' MISSION CLOSED IN STATE PROBE

MONEY WENT IN SALARY, IS CLAIM

Atty.-Gen. Warner Says Little of the Collections Was Used for Charity

The American Rescue Workers, conducted as a mission at 475A Tremont st., has been closed by Maj. B. Entsminger one of its officials, following an investigation of complaints against the organization by Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner.

The complaints, the attorney-general said today, alleged that the organization used only a small portion of moneys contributed to it contrary to the purpose intended, namely, charity.

There was evidence that solicitors got half of the amounts collected [illegible] from [illegible] public and that after payment of salaries of officers and [illegible] expenses out of the other half only a small percentage went to charity, the attorney general declared.

In connection with the closing of the American Rescue Workers, Warner [illegible] that Albert L. Riddle, director of the Church of the American Rescue League, recently located at 78 Fort ave., is surrendering his charter of the church.

It was said at the attorney general's office that Riddle, formerly connected with the rescue workers, conducted his church affairs in a manner similar to that charged against the workers.

Theodore Roosevelt and Corinne Roosevelt Robinson were elected honorary vice presidents.

Somerville Rights Slight of Murphy

By a vote of 18 to 1 the Somerville board of aldermen adopted a resolution that Mayor-elect John Murphy should be invited to participate in the radio program arranged by the Somerville tercentenary committee for next [illegible] night.

The program had included [illegible] Conwell as a speaker, but omitted the mayor-elect.

Representative Joseph J. Borgatti protested to John F. McGann, chairman of the committee, but a subsequent vote of the committee turned the mayor-elect down.

Then the aldermen took up the matter on a resolution submitted by Alderman James F. Stynes.

Retires After 52 Years in Library

Miss Etta Lois Russell, assistant librarian of the Cambridge Public Library where she has completed 52 years of service, will be retired from that position on the last day of this year at her own request. The condition of her health compels her to give up active work.

A reception was given in her honor two years ago on the occasion of her 50th anniversary as an attache of the Cambridge Public Library. At that time 300 friends including members of the city government gathered.

Become a Blonde, Is Hairdresser's Advice

At last it is possible to be a blonde and look natural whether Nature intended it or not.

In fact 85 per cent of [illegible] are [illegible].

[illegible] director [illegible] of [illegible] Academy, speaking at the preparatory hair style show [illegible] of the Ladies Hairdressers' Association of New England at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, disclosed the secrets of the advanced new hair styles, which will be displayed by living models at their annual show, January 27, 28 and 29.

"Only the woman of the Spanish type looks best with dark hair. All other women look more attractive with light or brown hair.

[illegible] the [illegible] peroxide blonde with her [illegible] of straw hair has disappeared. That was caused from overbleaching, but now through the medium of white henna, the expert hairdresser no longer makes the tragic mistake of overbleaching the hair. Only the roots are touched. The hairdresser can lighten the hair to any shade."

He stated that the demand for red hair has died out. Red hair, he stated, is attractive to certain types of women, but blonde hair [illegible] except the Spanish type.

[illegible] woman has [illegible] used to bring out the glints in her hair, but we [illegible] for the brassy henna effect of a few years ago. However, I think it is safe to say that a natural blonde past 20 years old is [illegible]. The hair starts to [illegible] between the ages of [illegible] if a woman [illegible] her [illegible] artificial means, 85 per cent of them would [illegible] brown hair at 20."

He stated that there is no such thing as the old-fashioned long hair. "Every woman to be smart today must have her hair cut and thinned out, even if she wears a [illegible] length bob."

TWO IN FIGHT FOR CITY JOB

[illegible] Rourke and [illegible] C. Emerson, consulting engineer of the finance commission, are named as the two men still in the running for the [illegible] under the new [illegible].

The members of the [illegible] commission, Richard J. Lane, Dr. Francis D. Donoghue and Stephen W. Sleeper, have considered the qualifications of a long list of applicants for the position and are understood to have eliminated all. Rourke's name has been prominent among those mentioned for the place ever since the commission was created by vote of the people at the last city election. Friends of some of the other applicants have sought to block Rourke by contending that he is too far advanced in years and that a younger man should be selected.

Now the opponents of Rourke are exerting strong pressure to bear for the selection of Emerson who is several years older than Rourke, who is 56.

LAY STONE FOR NEW WHITE HEALTH UNIT

Mayor Among Leaders Who Take Part in Exercises Marking Event

The cornerstone of the new George Robert White health unit at Blossom and Parkman sts. was laid today with appropriate exercises, in which Mayor Nichols and other notables participated.

George E. Phelan, manager of the George Robert White fund, under which six health units have been provided, presided, and the invocation was given by the Rev. Charles P. Heaney, pastor of St. Joseph Church.

The exercises took place in the original experimental station, the Blossom st. dispensary, and the party then adjourned next door for the actual laying of the cornerstone.

The first address was by Herbert Parker, president of the Boston Bar Association, one of the trustees of the Fund, who said the city was fortunate to have the services of a citizen who advanced fortunes to dedicate such a home for happy childhood. He extolled the generosity of George Robert White, whose name he said lives in the hearts of the citizens.

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, health commissioner of Boston, told of the birth of the health unit idea in that building in which the exercises were being held.

He praised Mayor-elect Curley for giving $1000 for a trial of the experimental health unit, and also Dr. Charles L. Wilinsky, superintendent of Beth Israel Hospital, who serves in an advisory capacity to the health units.

City Councillor John I. Fitzgerald told how his district had fought for 14 years to obtain a new health unit in place of the Blossom st. dispensary, and thanked the mayor for starting the work.

Mayor Nichols claimed no originality for the health unit, stating it had developed into one of the greatest ideas in preventive medicine. He praised George Robert White highly, and as his last official act went outside and taking a silver trowel placed mortar under the cornerstone.

A copper box in the cornerstone contained copies of the daily newspapers in Boston, other publications, photographs of the mayor and different parts of the city, and information concerning George Robert White, together with silver coins with date of his birth and death. The mayor presented the trowel to Mrs. Harriet J. Bradbury, sister of the philanthropist, and praised his "good friend," George E. Phelan.

Stork Flies Aboard Racing Ambulance

The Somerville police ambulance clanged away from Jacques st., Somerville, today with one passenger inside. It clanged up to Somerville Hospital with two.

On the way to the hospital, a girl had been born to Mrs. Agnes Laird with Patrolman Walter C. Oesting as the somewhat flustered emergency "doctor," attending.

The ambulance was called by Dr. James McDonald, also of Jacques st., supposedly in plenty of time. But the stork arrived before the vehicle had rolled two blocks. Both the child and her ma are doing nicely at the hospital.

WALTHAM MAN AND FORMER WIFE TO WED

Divorced in 1927, When She Charged Cruelty, They Will Remarry

Divorced in October, 1927, Harold Bennett, of Waltham, and Geraldine "Jerry" Bennett, 23, today filed intentions to remarry with the clerk at Waltham city hall.

The couple were married in April, 1925. Mrs. Bennett was given a decree nisi and custody of her two-year-old son, following the hearing of her charges of cruelty and abuse.

During all the time that they lived together, Bennett was grouchy and nagging, his wife told Judge Legget at the time of the divorce action. "He found fault with every thing I did, even to taking the baby out for a ride in the carriage," she testified.

"He was so jealous I was afraid of him."

On one occasion she testified her husband pulled her out of bed and threatened to kill himself. She told the court during the eight months she had lived apart from him previous to the divorce, she gained in weight from 95 to 133 pounds.

MR. FREDERICK JACKSON

"Take REM" Is his advice

Mr. Frederick Jackson of 118 Newburgh St., Buffalo, N. Y., has only one regret in regard to REM. And that is that he didn't know about it sooner! He had been troubled with a bad cough for several weeks when he happened to see REM in Jenczka's Drug Store on Genesee St. He bought a bottle and that very night he slept without coughing—the first really restful night he had enjoyed in quite a while. Now Mr. Jackson is so enthusiastic about REM that he says, "I would tell anybody I heard coughing to try REM, whether I knew them or not." No other cough medicine has the same formula as REM, and after all, "It's the formula that counts!" Ask for REM for prompt cough relief.

FALLS WITH LADDER IN WATER

Ice Gives Way Before William Jorgensen, 14, Drags Terrier to Safety

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jorgensen of 61 Park Boulevard, Arlington, is a scribe in Troop 9 of the Arlington Boy Scouts.

Therefore when he saw a Boston Terrier struggling in the ice-filled stream he ran for a ladder at the home of Joseph M. Cormier, 39 Park Boulevard.

Cormier gave the boy a hand with the ladder and they hurried to the brook, which at that point is six feet or more deep. They ran the ladder out on the ice, and while Cormier held the land end young Jorgensen crawled out after the dog, still battling in the center of the stream.

The ice under the ladder gave way and the boy got a wetting but he continued his efforts and managed to get a grip on the terrier and dragged him to safety.

After a few yelps of gratitude the terrier raced away, while the Boy Scout went home for dry clothing.

WOMAN NEARLY HEADS COUNCIL

After 36 ballots, the members of the 1930 Malden City Council elected Councilor Harry N. Lewin of Ward 7 to be president of the body next year. A woman came very close to being elected to the office. Mrs Mattie R. Fillebrown, councilor from Ward 6, led in most of the ballots, but in the final ballot she was given only eight votes while Councilor Lewin received 11.

Congregation Plans for Anniversary

The 40th anniversary of the Congregation Saarei Jerusalem and the 50th anniversary of the ordination of Rabbi M. J. Friederman will be simultaneously celebrated at the Saarei Jerusalem Synagogue, Jerusalem place, off Salem st., Sunday, at 7 p. m.

President Barnet Kaplan will preside and Morris Alman will act as toastmaster. Abraham Alpert will deliver the anniversary address. Orthodox congregations and other organizations, led by the Council of Orthodox Rabbis of Massachusetts, will be represented at the celebration.

Ex-District Fire Chief Lally Dies

Following two months' illness, former district chief John N. Lally of Boston fire department died today of a heart attack at his home, 145 Belgrade ave., West Roxbury. He was 70 years of age.

He was attached to Engine 28, Center st., Jamaica Plain, when he retired June 24, after 42 years' service in the Boston department.

The former district chief leaves a wife, Rose A.; daughter, Marion; son, John, and grand-daughter, Marion A. Walsh. The funeral will be held Monday with a solemn requiem mass in Sacred Heart church, Roslindale, at 9 a. m.

Jews Observe Feast of Lights

Members of the Jewish faith began last night the celebration of the Feast of Lights, known in Hebrew as Chanukah, which continues for eight days until January 3. This observance is featured by the lighting of candles in homes and synagogues, the number of candles being increased by one each evening.

Chanukah commemorates the preservation of the Jewish religion and the Jewish people by the heroic zeal of Judah the Maccabee when Antiochus Epiphanes, in control of Palestine, sought to rule out their religious practices.

Revere to Greet 1930 With Display of Fireworks

The city of Revere will try something new in New Year's celebrations next week when an exhibition of fireworks will greet 1930.

"The people like a good fireworks display in the summer, so why not in the winter?" Mayor Andrew A. Casassa propounded.

The exhibition will be staged in Paul Revere Park, Park ave., and will begin at 11:30 p. m. on the last day of the year.

Maine Woman Seeks Frog Pond Ducking

Antiquarian tastes take strange twists as is made evident by a middle-aged housewife of the village of Dark Harbor, Me., on the island of Islesboro, in Penobscot Bay, going on record seeking the position of "duckee" in the ducking stool to be set up and operated at the Frog Pond, Boston Common, next summer, as part of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary observance. Hers is the initial application.

She is Mrs. E. H. Marshall, about 45 years old, now living with her parents, Mr and Mrs Philip Hatch. She is described by neighbors as "very, very nice," and a cheery, bright, woman, among the most respected on the island.

Mrs. Marshall, who has devoted much of her life to writing, returned a year or so ago to her native town from New York where she was engaged in various literary activities. She always cherished a love for the little Penobscot Bay island village, and has now returned to care for her father and mother who are among the best beloved of Dark Harbor's inhabitants.

Her letter to the chairman of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary celebration committee follows:

"Dear Sir: Having read that the tercentenary celebration will include among its features a ducking stool, in which authentic 'ducking' will be made at stated intervals, for the entertainment of those visiting the exposition, I wish to make early application for the job of 'duckee.'

Will you please advise me if this letter is sufficient to cause my application to be placed on file or if I should apply to some sub-committee. Yours truly, (signed) Mrs. E. H. Marshall, Dark Harbor, Maine."

Mrs. Marshall's application has been given the place of honor at the Tercentenary headquarters, as the first applicant for the ducking stool, and Mr. Rogers would like to have her photograph to file with it, he said, for the committee to finally select the "duckees" probably will want to see it.

AHERN TO HEAD MOTOR SERVICE

The appointment of Harold C. Ahern as motor coach manager of the Boston & Maine Transportation Co. is announced by H. F. Fritch, passenger traffic manager of the Boston & Maine Railroad. Fritch is president of the Boston & Maine Transportation Co., which is the automotive auxiliary of the railroad.

R. J. Littlefield, who has been manager of the Boston & Maine motor coach service since it was organized in 1925 has resigned to enter that service of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Ahern entered the service of the transportation company in 1926. In July, 1926, he became chief clerk, and has been assistant to the manager of motor coaches since 1928. He is the son of J. A. Ahern, superintendent of the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine.

The promotion of Ahern to the position of motor coach manager results also in the promotion to assistant manager of J. S. Conlon, who has been superintendent of the Boston division. E. A. Chase, who has been manager of the Portsmouth division, is promoted to superintendent of the Boston division and Ralph Ramsdell is promoted to manager of the Portsmouth division. He has been chief clerk at Portsmouth.

Checker Tourney Opens Next Week

Checker enthusiasts all over the New England states are all set for the annual get-together New Year's day at the Wells Memorial Checker Club. This meet will be the first of the season and one of the largest turnouts of checker experts is anticipated.

The state of Maine will be represented by Roger Taylor. Other entrants in the class A tourney are "Willie" Ryan of New York, M. Seavey of Flint, Mich.; Walter S. Pribe, champion of Wisconsin; Maurice C. Hammar, New York; Frank L. McClellan, Connecticut; James J. Sheffield, Rhode Island, and "Sam" Levine, ex-champion of Massachusetts.

Legion Officers to Be Installed

State and city officials will be invited for the elaborate exercises Monday evening, when officers of the Corporal James C. Shea Post, No. 190 and the Ladies Auxiliary will be installed at their new home Hyde Park ave., Roslindale.

Dancing will follow the installations conducted by Comdr. William E. McMorrow of the Suffolk County Council for the Post and by Miss Anna Manion, president of the Ladies Auxiliary for her lodge.

MAYOR NICHOLS' CAR TO SPORT NO. 299

Friends Present Auto, Parker Agrees Coveted Number Shall Be His

The battle for registration number 299 has ended in victory for Mayor Nichols.

The registration plates will be attached to a new sedan, a car which will entitle the mayor for the first time to the standing of an automobile owner.

This notable victory, which will bring to Mayor Nichols the same coveted number which he has had on the mayoralty car provided him by the city, was brought about through the co-operation of friends.

As a mark of their esteem, they will give him the first automobile he ever owned, equipped, and through the courtesy of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Parker it will have plates bearing the number 299.

Some time ago Mayor Nichols applied to Captain Parker's registry for the 299 plate, but his application was turned down.

Captain Parker publicly declared that the mayor has no official standing because he was not a car owner, and on these grounds he refused to hold the number, which several other prominent residents of Massachusetts had already applied for.

Mayor Nichols was keenly disappointed. It was at this point that his friends came to his assistance by deciding that he needed a new car and that they would give it to him.

The automobile is now on the way and the plates are ready for it.

DEPUTY NORTON PASSES AWAY

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. in the Mission Church, Roxbury, of which he was a member since boyhood. For many years he was active in Roxbury politics. He was born and lived most of his life in the Mission Hill section of Roxbury.

For the past few months he had been living with relatives, Mr. and Mrs. George Hurley in Jamaica Plain. He was a widower.

365 Freshmen Enroll at Northeastern

When registration closed at Northeastern, 365 Division B freshmen had been admitted in the Day Division. Of this number, 304 were enrolled in the School of Engineering and 61 in the School of Business Administration.

Twenty-five prospective freshmen are expected to appear before the registration committee before the week ends. Classes begin Monday.

DARTMOUTH FACES CLUB SEXTET

Arena Club Out to Stop Schaaf-Friedman Bout

CLAIMS PRIOR CONTRACT WITH AL

By JACK CONWAY

COL. BOB McKIRDY of the Arena Club dragged out the heavy artillery today and announced he would fight to attempt of the Boston Garden to stage a bout between Al Friedman and Ernie Schaaf on January 10.

McKirdy declared he has a prior contract with Friedman and that he will insist on the boxer living up to it.

The Arena Club plans to ask the boxing commission to prevent Friedman battling Schaaf at the Garden until he first boxes under its direction.

Jack Conway

When Friedman signed to box with Big Boy Rawson, Al Lappe, his manager, gave the Arena Club a 30 day option on Al's services. The Arena Club named Joe Monte as an opponent for the Roslindale boxer but he was not acceptable to Lappe.

McKirdy asserted that Lappe would only consent to match Friedman with boxers whom he knew it was impossible to secure.

"Lappe" signed Friedman with the Garden the day following his victory over Rawson," said Col. McKirdy. "He never intended to go through with his Arena Club contract. I have a good case and intend to appeal to the boxing commission for a fair deal. I believe I shall get it."

Meanwhile the Garden is going ahead with the plans for a meeting between Friedman and Schaaf on January 10. It has been announced that instead of the boxers receiving a total purse of $12,500 that they will battle on a percentage basis.

MATCHMAKER Eddie Mack of the Garden is in New York to attend the 10-round battle between Tuffy Griffith and Johnny Risko which will be staged in New York tonight.

Mack is anxious to sign Risko for a return meeting with Jim Maloney at the Boston Garden January 17. Shamus and Risko have already clashed on two occasions. The first tussle was staged in this city a year ago last month and resulted in a win for Maloney. More recently in Cleveland the South Boston warrior was knocked out in two rounds by Risko.

While in New York Mack will also make an effort to sign Ace Hudkins to battle Arthur Flynn and Primo Carnera to tackle some outstanding heavyweight.

JACK SHARKEY plans to leave for Miami Fla on January 3. The American champion has already been named as one of the principals in the Battle of the Palms which will be staged at Miami Fla on February 27.

Sharkey's opponent will be either Victorio Campolo or Tuffy Griffith. It is likely that Young Stribling will be pitted against Paulino or some other first class heavyweight in the semifinal. Henry Lamar may be signed to tackle Otto von Porat in a third 10-round set to.

The New York Garden has constructed a new stadium at Miami which is capable of seating 50,000 persons at a boxing match. Bill Carey looks for a capacity crowd when he presents his second Battle of the Palms. When Sharkey and Stribling collided at Miami Beach a year ago they drew a gate of $405,000.

THE hand which Jake Zeramby injured in his torrid skirmish with Andy Callahan is okay once more. The Lynn youngster will resume training the first of the year. He is carded to appear at the New York Garden on January 17. Matchmaker Tom McArdle has not yet selected Zeramby's opponent.

New Bedford Club Plays West End Five

For the first time in many years the strong New Bedford Boys' Club team will play the West End House quintet at the local boys' club gym tomorrow.

The West Enders have been going great guns, winning the first three starts thus far this season and at the pace that they have set will go through the entire season undefeated.

Stanford Star Out of Game

Stanford, Cal., Dec 27. With but two more days of practice remaining, Coach Glenn Warner of Stanford and "Biff" Jones of West Point officially approved the starting lineups of their respective teams.

At the same time it became known that Walter Heinecke, stocky Stanford center, is not likely to get into the game tomorrow because of illness.

His place in the line is being taken by Perry Taylor, who has been showing well in practice, although his passing has been somewhat erratic.

How the Army team is shaping up after its long trip from the East is a matter of conjecture. Biff Jones is showing, or rather not, the West something in the way of practice that is secret practice.

Stanford of course is concentrating on the business of stopping Cagle, Army ace. He was stopped by the Cardinals at New York last year, but some of the effective stoppers are missing from the Cardinal lineup this year.

Whether their substitutes can do the job as effectively will be seen Saturday when the elusive Cagle gets going places.

NEGRO BAR IS POLICY OF THE U. S. L. T. A.

New York, Dec 27 (AP). The exclusion of two young negro players from the National Junior Indoor Tennis championships is in line with a policy of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, Executive Secretary Edward B. Moss said today in replying to a letter of protest from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Moss' communication follows:

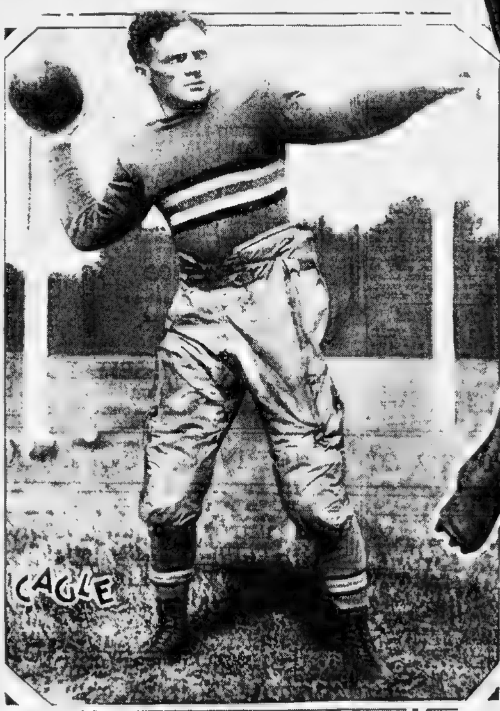

"Answering your letter of Dec 24, the policy of the United States Lawn Tennis Association has been to decline the entry of colored players in our championships.

In pursuing this policy we make no reflection upon the colored race but we believe that as a practical matter, the present method of separate associations for the administration of the affairs and championships of colored and white players should be continued."

The players in question were Reginald Weir of the City College of New York and Gerald L. Norman, Jr., captain of the Flushing high school tennis team.

MAKE FINAL STAND IN FRAY WITH STANFORD

Christian Keener Cagle and Johnny Murrell, great backfield men of the Army grid team, make their last appearance as Army gridmen, on Saturday, when they face the Stanford Cardinals at Palo Alto, California. These are Associated Press photos. Cagle and Murrell have been consistently fine players during their years at the military academy. Cagle, for the last couple of seasons, has been a member of many of the all-America teams of the country. The Army will miss its heroes after this year. They will be out to wind up their grid play with the best work of the season. Stanford is in for a tough time.

Many Frosh Athletes Join Husky Squads

WINTER sports squads at Northeastern will be swelled in numbers and competition made keener by the advent of nearly 400 freshmen now enrolling. Three hundred and sixty-five already have registered.

Freshman athletics at the Back Bay institution have expanded to such a degree in recent years that the yearlings now have a separate sports schedule in track and basketball.

Physical examinations for the incoming freshmen, under the supervision of Athletic Director Edward S. Parsons, close today. Gymnasium classes will start Jan 27, the next divisional period.

Varsity track competition will commence with the Y M C A meet, Jan. 11, at the Boston "Y," while the yearlings have a dual meet scheduled with the Lowell Textile plebes, Jan. 18, away.

The husky first-year men also will run Huntington School, Jan 31, on the Y track, besides entering a relay team in the B. A. A. games at the Arena, Feb. 15. Another dual meet for the Red and Black neophytes is pending.

Varsity track practice will be resumed next week on the boards. The yearlings will work out four times a week in the gym until the squad is cut.

The third varsity basketball contest is to be played at home, January 4, with the Newport Naval Training Station as opponents. At noon on the same date the freshman court quintet will open its season against Salem Normal at home.

The complete yearling schedule comprises 14 games. Daily practice sessions will be resumed next week when the freshmen will start drilling.

Coach Raymond's hockey team, the first varsity ice sextet ever to represent Northeastern, will face off against University of New Hampshire, at Durham, on January 4 in the season's opener.

Five other conflicts are listed. The puckmen will continue to practice three times a week, from 5:30 until 7 on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning, until the initial conflict.

Numerous freshmen ice candidates are expected to report at tomorrow's session.

By BILL GRIMES

ONE of the finest amateur attractions of the season is offered tonight at the Boston Arena, when the University Club and Dartmouth wage battle.

The University Club is represented by a big, fast and well conditioned aggregation. The Grads have been practicing diligently for Dartmouth and hope to break into the games won column at the expense of the Big Green. The University Club has played two games this season but has been on the losing end of both contests, losing to both Yale and Harvard.

Bill Grimes

Against the Elis the Grads were minus the services of the Bigelow twins, Johnny Chase and Clark Hodder, but managed to hold the wearers of the Blue to a lone tally.

GOALIES GOOD

Ted Learnerd, a former star goalie for Dartmouth, will be in the nets for the University Club, but Newell, an ex-Harvard goal minder, will have a chance to show his wares.

Learnerd and Newall will be protected by the Bigelow twins, two of the best defense men developed at Harvard in years. The Bigelows are big and rangy and are both outstanding in the amateur ranks. Eben Clark and Holland will spare for the twins.

Johnny Chase, Curtis and Hilliard will start on the front line for the Grads. This trio has been playing together well this season and displaying marked improvement weekly. The second line will be composed of Doug Everett, a former Dartmouth captain and one of the best right wings in this part of the country, Bill Blaney, who won his spurs at Williams and Clark Hodder, prominent a few years back at Harvard.

GRIMES SUES FOR DIVORCE

Canton, O., Dec. 27 (INS): Charging his wife's jealousy handicapped him during his baseball career, Burleigh Grimes, star pitcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates, filed a counter divorce petition in common pleas court here today to a suit which was started by his wife several weeks ago in Pittsburgh.

Grimes in his petition, claimed that his wife's jealousy caused his transfer from Brooklyn to the New York Giants several years ago. The couple were married Aug 10, 1916 in Chattanooga, Tenn., according to Grimes' petition.

Minor Leaguer After Shires

Rochester, N. Y., Dec 27 (AP)—Jimmy "Rip" Collins, star first sacker of the Rochester club of the International League, who headed the league in 1929 as a first baseman, home run hitter and in batting in runs, announced today through his manager that he had started training to enter the ring.

Collins expressed hope that he might arrange a match with Art Shires, White Sox first baseman, for the first base boxing championship of baseball.

St. Augustines Want Court Games

The St Augustine A. A. of South Boston wants basketball games away from home with any semi-pro teams in New England. Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook, Framingham, Natick and Milford preferred.

Any team that desires a good attraction may call Manager William Benson, 319 Dorchester st., South Boston, or telephone South Boston 0067-M at night or Kenmore 9?90 by day.

INJURIES HURT EAST ELEVEN

San Francisco, Dec. 27 (INS). Injuries today were hampering the efforts of the eastern all star coaches in welding together a team to meet the western stars in their game here on New Year's Day.

Both Tommy Dowler, Colgate, and Bill Calderwood, Northwestern halfback, have been injured in scrimmages which may necessitate the using of Yablock, Colgate quarterback, as a blocking half.

Benny Lom, California half, and Tommy Churchill, Oklahoma, were also on the injured list, but their injuries were not so serious as to prevent them from reporting for practice today.

The Easterners romped through a night practice at Palo Alto last night, with Peters, Illinois; Glasgow, Iowa; Edwards, Brown, and Holm, Alabama, in the backfield.

The Westerners are reported to be making good strides in perfecting a formidable offense, building their attack around Hunting, Gonyra and Clark, of Colorado.

U. of Toronto Sextets Play Great Hockey

FOR consistently high-class hockey, no team that Canada has sent to the United States in the last 20 years holds the rating enjoyed by the University of Toronto.

This team, known as Varsity, made its first appearance in Boston 11 years ago in the Ice Pavilion, Cambridge.

On that Toronto team was Bill Carson, present Boston Bruin center. In those days Carson was the outstanding collegian of Canada and the United States.

TORONTO WON

In their first test in the Pavilion Toronto defeated Princeton 11 to 1 and the following night defeated Harvard 4 to 3.

Then followed annual pilgrimages to this city with every succeeding Toronto team appearing stronger and faster. For the past 10 years Toronto has won the intercollegiate championship of Eastern Canada.

The first Toronto game this season is scheduled for Monday night at the Boston Garden when the Canadians play Dartmouth varsity. For genuine pep and zip the game last Christmas between these teams was a knockout. The teams went 70 minutes to a 2 to 2 tie.

PLAY HARVARD

So many football stars are included in both the Harvard and Dartmouth hockey lineups that thousands of students home for the holidays will attend these matches to follow the work of these gridiron heroes on the runners.

The entire first balcony sections will be sold at 50 cents, which insures a generous attendance of schoolboys.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BATTLE WITH SHARKEY IF HE WINS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—A young fellow to whom fighting has been instinctive since his parents named him Gerald Ambrose Griffith goes to the post in Madison Sq. Garden tonight, grim and eager for an evening of waterfront fisticuffs.

He has many scores to settle, first and foremost with rubbery Johnny Risko, the party of the second part in tonight's ten-round heavyweight imbroglio.

Gerald Ambrose, who fought for and won the honorable title of "Tuffy" at an early age, still seeks satisfaction from Risko for a passage at arms won in Detroit last June when the bouncing Bohemian baker from Cleveland sank a couple of mittens into foul portions of Gerald's anatomy.

Risko is more than eager to give him satisfaction, but Griffiths is a 7 to 5 favorite.

HAD FIGHT WON

Tuffy believes he was winning that fight, one of his earliest engagements as a heavyweight, when Risko's artillery wandered into forbidden territory. Johnny thinks that Griffith is just another one of those fighters that he has poked in the body and made to holler "foul."

But aside from the feeling between the two, Tuffy has two other important points to prove. He is anxious to show that he can fight as well as the faithful believed he could before Jimmy Braddock saddened the Griffith debut in the Garden last year. Tuffy was promptly ironed out by Braddock in two rounds.

Now Griffith is eager to wipe out that stain and prove that he is the only logical contender to oppose Jack Sharkey at Miami, Fla. If Tuffy disposes of Risko in workmanlike fashion the Madison Sq. Garden management has assured him it will look no farther for the Boston gob's southern playmate.

Risko, However, is just about the roughest proposition an ambitious youngster can face in the heavyweight ranks. Beaten often by second raters, the baker boy always manages to come back and nip the top notchers. Only a ten-line defeat by Tom Heeney prevented him from facing Gene Tunney in the heavyweight champion's last title defense.

STOPPED TWICE

Only twice has Risko been stopped. Chuck Wiggins scored a technical knockout over him years ago and Max Schmeling blasted him under in the garden in a bout that brought fame to the German for the first time.

Heavyweights also will provide the remainder of the evening's entertainment. Paul Cavalier and Harold Mays, New Jersey belters, meet in a ten-round semi-final, and Larry Johnson, negro stablemate of Griffiths, opposes Joe Sekyra, the Dayton blonde, in the first ten.

STARS TO WAR IN COAST TILT

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 27—Interest in the Southern California-Pittsburgh football game at Pasadena on New Years Day was in the ascendancy in these parts with local fans particularly keen about comparing the play of Trojan stars against a quartet of Panthers who were frequently selected as all-American players.

The Trojans have but one player, Tappaan, an end, who gained recognition as an all-American. Pittsburgh has four, Donchess, an end; Montgomery, a tackle; Uansa, halfback, and Parkinson, fullback.

So a close watch will be kept on the individual battles waged between Tappaan and Donchess, Barrager and Montgomery, Saunders and Uansa, and Musick and Parkinson.

Occasionally, Barrager plays his tackle position in true all-American style, but he has a tendency to wilt as the game progresses.

Knute Rockne Up and About Again

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 27 (INS)—Coach Knute Rockne, veteran Notre Dame football mentor, was up and about today after being confined to a sickbed several weeks due to a leg infection.

Keep Fast Yearling Racers Under Cover

Jefferson Park, New Orleans, La., Dec. 27—Trainers at the two local tracks are rather secretive this winter as to the activities of their new yearlings, youngsters who will become of racing age January 1 at Fair Grounds.

As usual the early racing of two-year-olds is to provide an interesting bit of sport for the older track. This has been the order in other years.

BATTLES BAKER BOY IN N. Y. RING

Passing the Puck

—By BILL GRIMES—

THE Bruins continued their winning streak against the New York Rangers last night, hanging up their [illegible] victory. In spite of the fact that the Bruins had [illegible] Toronto the previous night, they found little trouble defeating Lester Patrick's charges 4 to 2.

Manager Art Ross and his Stanley Cup holders will leave New York today for Montreal where they have an engagement with Les Canadiens tomorrow evening, in the Forum.

After losing to three American Division teams, Detroit, Bruins and Rangers, the Chicago Blackhawks staged a comeback by defeating both Ottawa and the Montreal Maroons.

Chick Shea, the former Cambridge Latin and Westbrook Academy star, will coach the Dartmouth freshman team. Shea played on the Big Green varsity for three years, and is ineligible this season.

Myles Lane, who was with the New York Rangers and Bruins last season, will matriculate at the Harvard Law School after the holidays. Lane has been at Tuck school all fall, but decided that he preferred law to business, so shifted to Cambridge.

Through Col. Hammond, the New York Rangers are dickering for the services of Dick Rogers, the ex-Dartmouth captain and right winger. Rogers is one of the best wingers the college game has ever produced and if he decides to join the professional ranks there is little question but that he will make the grade. Rogers is very fast, packs a wicked shot and has plenty of fight.

As Frank Synnott has received his first Canadian American League assignment of the season, the former United States Olympic player is now back in the field.

With the return of Capt. Hal Booma, Dartmouth will have six football letter men on its hockey team. Ellie Armstrong, Hal Andres, Eddie Jeremiah, Henry Johnson and Bill Morton are all well known on the gridiron and are doing as equally a clever job on the runners.

Due to their recently constructed enclosed rink, Dartmouth should be particularly strong in hockey this season. The Green has been handicapped in the past through uncertain weather conditions, but from now on they will have the same advantages as Harvard, Yale and Princeton, although they will play on natural rather than artificial ice.

Manager Eddie Powers [illegible] [illegible], other than the Tigers were completely outclassed after the defeat by the Rhode Island Reds. Eddie did admit that Sprague Cleghorn has the Reds playing like a bunch of big leaguers and that it would take the very best efforts of any minor league and some of the major leaguers to stop Providence.

The Bruins are so far superior to most of the N. H. L. clubs that Manager Art Ross can [illegible] players around in such a manner as to have them all in the [illegible] of condition during the entire season, barring accidents.

Bill Regan, the [illegible] defense player, picked up in [illegible] bury, Ont., is living up to the preseason predictions made by Eddie Powers. There is no better judge of a hockey player's ability than this same Eddie Powers, and through his rare judgment he has more than paid for his keep since he took over the managing of the Tigers.

60 BOXERS IN ST. JOE'S SHOW

The final elimination in the New England Golden Glove boxing tournament will be held in Mechanics Building tomorrow night when more than 60 boxers will compete in every class from f[illegible] weight to heavyweight.

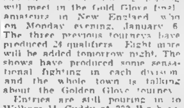

The show will be the final in the series of elimination tourneys calculated to select the 32 leading amateurs in New England who will meet in the Gold Glove final on Monday evening, January 6. The three previous tourneys have produced 24 qualifiers. Eight more will be added tomorrow night. The shows have produced some sensational fighting in each division and the whole town is talking about the Golden Glove tourney.

Entries are still pouring in to William H. Cuddy at 333 Washington st., room 314, and because of the tremendous interest the bouts will be started promptly at 7:30 o'clock so that the show may be finished at midnight.

Cambridge Y on Top

Cambridge Y hung up its fourth straight victory of the season by edging out the Providence Y 3[illegible] to 33 in the Cambridge "Y" gym. It was a close game all the way with the score knotted at 20-20 at the half.

Tigers Tilt With Reds for Can-Am Lead Tomorrow

REDS IN TIE FOR LEAGUE TOP BERTH

RHODE ISLAND REDS of Providence, undefeated in their last six games, come to Boston Garden tomorrow night to fight it out with the Tigers for leadership in the Canadian-American League.

At present the Reds are tied with New Haven Eagles at the crest, with the Tigers in third position, only a point or half a game behind.

BEAT TIGERS

Reds gave Tigers a walloping in Providence Wednesday night, and the Rhode Island is keyed up with the idea of getting even.

In all the games that have met four times this season, and each has won once on the home ice and once in the rink of the others.

Reds have not lost a single game since Sprague Cleghorn took up the managerial reins on Dec. 10.

When he came down from Montreal to succeed Jimmy Gardiner, he brought with him Gordon Fraser, on 21-day loan from Les Canadiens to the Reds.

MANAGER IS CLEVER

His direction and Fraser's work on the defense are the two agencies which put the club up where it is, so this will be Fraser's last game for the Reds.

The 21-day period will be up Tuesday, and Les Canucks have given Fraser to Pittsburgh for Roy McCaffrey.

Inasmuch as the Reds do not play again within the period, Fraser will report to Manager Frank Fredrickson of the Pirates on Sunday.

CLUB SIX PLAYS DARTMOUTH

ent in club hockey. Everett and Hodder have not been able to practice regularly with the University Club or they would have earned regular berths. Hodder has been located in New York and is home for the holidays, while, Everett commutes from Concord, N. H., for his hockey.

Dartmouth will be without two of its defense men, Capt. Hal Booma, who is out on the Pacific coast with the all-Eastern football team and Ellie Armstrong, who captained the gridiron team last fall. Armstrong received a bad leg cut in the Yale game a week ago in New York and will not be available for another week.

The Green squad has four football letter men, Capt.-Elect Hal Andres, Eddie Jeremiah, Henry Johnson and Bill Morton. Andres, who captained the freshman team, has been shifted to the forward line, where he works with Jeremiah and Morton, while Johnson is on the outer defense.

Coach Benny Bower will start Guilfoy, Fisher and Grant on the front line with Andres, Jeremiah and Morton in reserve. Jeremiah is one of the craftiest players in the college ranks and has been a star since his sophomore year. Johnson will pair up with Ben Wentworth on the defense, and June Hawkes, a Belmont boy, will be in the nets. Hawkes did a wonderful job against Yale and the followers of college hockey in New York rate him with the best that has ever performed in the Madison Square Garden.

Due to the lack of ice, Dartmouth was far from being in shape for the Yale game but the Big Green held the well-conditioned Five to a 3 to 2 defeat, and Yale has one of its strongest teams, one which has been practicing daily since the close of the football season.

From a spectator's viewpoint, the University Club-Dartmouth game should offer a fine evening's entertainment, as both teams play a rugged brand of hockey, featured by some heavy checking.

Operate on Brother of Hal Andres Today

Phil received the injury last summer, but in spite of it he played football all fall. He was one of the finest prep school gridmen of the season.

JOHNSON FIVE PLAYS IN HUB

The basketball team of the Samuel Johnson Academy of Stratford, Conn., will meet the team of the Boys' Club of Boston tomorrow at the River D. Jordan Memorial Gymnasium, Charlestown.

The academy team, consisting mainly of players who have made an enviable record in football for their school during the past year is looked upon as the possible basketball champions of their state and are quite confident that they can take the measure of the local club boys.

The team is coached by Frank Silva, the former East Boston school athlete and tutor of many championship preparatory and college teams. The five has several former Greater Boston athletes in its lineup. The club team will have to watch closely if it expects to turn back the invaders.

Shikat Is Choice Over Hagen in Go Tonight

DICK SHIKAT, the recognized world's heavyweight wrestling champion in New York and Pennsylvania, will battle that seu-sational "bone-crusher" from Brooklyn, George Hagen, at the Mechanics Building tonight, in the feature attraction of Billy Avery's all-star card.

Shikat, reputed to be one of the greatest heavyweights of all time, will go into the historic Mechanics' ring a slight favorite to defeat the Brooklyn challenger, who is figured to give the spectacular German a gruelling struggle. Hagen made a tremendous hit here several weeks ago when he fought Jimmy McMillan a sensational duel.

The Shikat-Hagen match was originally scheduled for December 19, but the Brooklyn star was caught in the toils of a northern New York blizzard and so prevented from arriving here on time to meet the champion. Hagen is certain to be here this time as he reached the Hub yesterday morning and engaged in a short workout at a local gymnasium in the afternoon.

The challenger informed Promoter Avery that he felt confident of defeating Shikat. Hagen looked in the pink of condition. He expressed satisfaction when informed that Cy Burns, former mat star and present Andover Academy boxing and wrestling coach, would be the third man in the ring. "Burns is a most capable official and I'm certain he won't favor Shikat the least bit. For once I'll have a real shot at the title," he chirped.

BESIDES the Shikat-Hagen bout there will be four other mix bouts, each a windup, in many cities throughout the country.

In the semifinal George Calza, the Italian idol, will be put through one of the severest tests of his career against Charley Fox, the Cleveland police sergeant. Fox has won 42 straight matches and is being heralded out in Ohio as the coming world's champion.

The third tussle will bring together Jimmy Londos, the Greek champion and Buck Olson, the Swede. The latter will be remembered as the man who fought Calza to a draw here several weeks ago.

Tiny B. C. Trackman on Two-Mile Relay Team

TOMMY MEAGHER, Boston College's tiny track flash, is expected to have one of his best years on the boards this winter as a member of the Eagle two-mile relay quartet.

Meagher is the leading candidate on Coach Jack Ryder's long distance baton toters. Ralph Ward, Brendon Moynihan and Jack Carew are the other likely regulars.

During the football season Meagher was busily engaged as a sports correspondent for a local paper but managed to get in his daily licks at the track while scribbling notes about Joe McKenney's gridders.

As a result he is in the best condition possible and has been stepping off some fast half miles in Ryder's time trials around the board track at Newton.

Meagher is now a junior at B. C. He showed great possibilities a year ago in his first try at varsity competition. He ran on the two-mile relay team and in a number of special events ranging from the quarter to the mile.

MEAGHER HAS COURAGE

A runner of Tommy's size seldom makes good. He's only five feet six inches tall and doesn't weigh over 140 pounds. But he has the vitality and the heart to make up for his lack of stature. Many a long-legged galloper would be a champion if he had Meagher's fighting qualities.

He prepared at English high school, where he burned up the boards at the East Armory and helped to land the Blue and Blue at the top of the local schoolboy track outfits.

He captained the English high school track team in his senior year and was considered the leading 1000 yarder in schoolboy ranks. Meagher gained a great deal of fame while in high school for the schoolboy writers were attracted by the winning qualities of the kid who could almost qualify for the junior division because he was so small.

RAN FOR HUNTINGTON

Meagher went to Huntington school for two years in order to build himself up. Once more he was elected captain by his mates, and Tommy turned in many brilliant performances on the padded Y. M. C. A. saucer on Huntington ave.

Then he entered Boston College and continued as a leader when he was chosen captain of the Eagle freshman team. Tommy captured points in all the freshman dual meets and had more success as a member of the yearling one-mile relay team.

He was good a year ago, as a sophomore, but didn't turn in anything out of the ordinary. But it was his first year of varsity running and he found his size a real handicap.

Meagher raced in many of the open events at the big meets, which usually carried a couple of dozen entries. He was frequently pushed out of the competition at the gun though in a limited field he might have been among the prize winners.

But he gained priceless experience in these outings and it should serve to make him a finer performer this year.

Tommy wants to wind up his career by captaining every track team he's been a member of. To do this he must run his head off this winter and show his mates at the Heights that he's worthy of the honor. And that's just what he plans to do.

STASIAK MEETS STECHER

Joe Stecher, ex-heavyweight champion wrestler of the world, who is in the midst of a campaign he hopes will bring the kings crown back into his household, has been signed by Promoter Paul Bowser to meet Stanley Stasiak, the Lion of Poland, in a finish match of a great all-star mat card in the Boston Arena next Wednesday night.

With his brother-manager, Tony, Stecher will come to the Hub from his farm at Dodge, Nebraska, where he has been devoting time perfecting new mat holds, which he believes will enable him to climb back to the throne where none but champions sit.

REPORT CAV AT FORDHAM IN '30

New York, Dec. 27—Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh, coach of the Fordham University football team for three seasons, will return under terms of a one-year contract.

Confirmation of this report was not available at Fordham but the report is generally credited by those close to the head of Fordham athletic affairs.

BARRY STARS AS BRUINS SCORE WIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (INS) —New York's hockey fans were just about ready today to award honors for the year to the Boston Bruins.

The league leaders made their second appearance of the year here last night, this time against the Rangers, and, after spotting the red-trousered boys to a two-goal lead, cut loose in the second and third periods to pound out a 4 to 2 win. It was their ninth straight win.

Seventeen thousand fans saw the Bruins hold scoreless until 18.01 of the second period, when Barry slipped one by Roach. Some five minutes later he broke loose again to shoot a long one into the Ranger net and offset Butch Keeling's earlier tallies for the Rangers. With the Rangers using a five-man attack in the final period in a desperate effort to score, Oliver and Weiland joined down the ice to pass Goalie Roach.

Pirates Rally to Beat Cougars, 3-1

Pittsburgh, Dec. 27 (INS)—The Pirates may be down, but they are never out.

Just when hockey fans were about to lose all hope, the Pirates came to life here last night to flash their best form of the season and turn back ten Detroit Cougars, 3 to 1.

Black Hawks Tighten Grip on Second Place

Montreal, Dec. 27 (INS)—The Chicago Black Hawks today held strong second place holding an seven-point place in the standings as a result of a 6 to 2 win over the Maroons here last night.

The Maroons twice tied the score in the third period, but each time the Hawks went ahead. Somers with two and Ingram and March did the scoring for the winners, Smith, Seibert and Stewart tallied for the Maroons.

"DRIVE YOUR OWN CAR IN 1930"

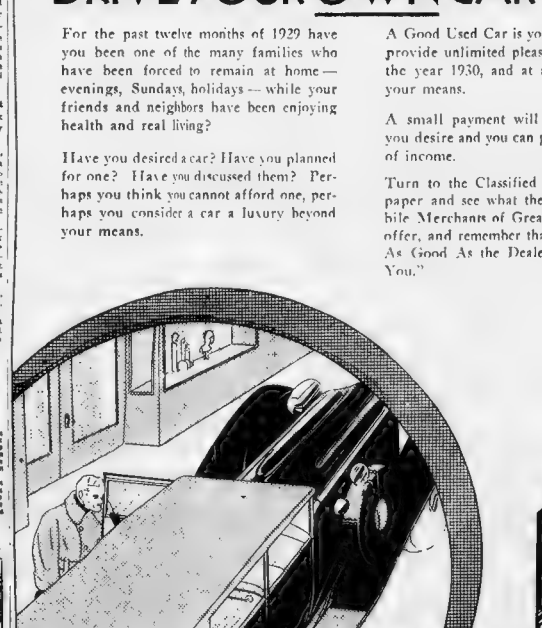

For the past twelve months of 1929 have you been one of the many families who have been forced to remain at home—evenings, Sundays, holidays—while your friends and neighbors have been enjoying health and real living?

Have you desired a car? Have you planned for one? Have you discussed them? Perhaps you think you cannot afford one, perhaps you consider a car a luxury beyond your means.

A Good Used Car is your answer. It will provide unlimited pleasure and health for the year 1930, and at a cost well within your means.

A small payment will hold just the car you desire and you can pay the balance out of income.

Turn to the Classified Section of today's paper and see what the reliable Automobile Merchants of Greater Boston have to offer, and remember that "A Used Car Is As Good As the Dealer Who Sell It to You."

HATS that are tight are bad for the circulation of the scalp. This applies also to tightly-fitting bathing caps, especially when worn for an hour or more. Also, and very often, to tight collars. These press on veins of the neck and retard free circulation to the brain.

This Day in Our History

ON December 27, 1848, the United States House of Representatives passed a bill to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia. However, it did not become effective as it was later reconsidered and postponed. Freedom came after Civil War and Lincoln's proclamation.

THE TRAGEDY OF A TOO YOUTHFUL ROMANCE

Women Hardly Know Minds Before Twenty-Five

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX,
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

WHAT is the best age to marry? This question has never been definitely settled and probably never will be because so much depends on the circumstances of each particular case. One girl may be quite grown up at 19, while another will not be ready for responsibilities until years later.

Beatrice Fairfax

The other day I heard a man defend youthful marriages on the ground that early youth is the time to enjoy good times and a young man and his wife can enjoy them together when they marry and will still be young enough to engage in rounds of social gaiety together again when the children of their family are past infancy and can be left without their mother.

This man explained he had married at 19 because he was afraid that if he waited someone else would get the girl he loved. Soon he was telling, however, of his domestic unhappiness. He and his wife, it seems, have entirely different tastes and look at life from different angles.

Here are extracts from the letter of a young man who, when very young, married a girl still younger.

"I was married for seven years," writes "Lonesome," "and have been divorced for two years. I earn a good salary, dress as well as most young men, am not bad looking. But I am lonely.

"I loved my wife perhaps too well. I mean by that she had everything a wife could want. She was 15 and I just past 20 when we married.

"I can truthfully say that in the seven years we were married she did not cook a dozen meals for me. We went out for our meals or I cooked them.

"We had no quarrels when she wanted a divorce. I think all that was wrong with her was that she thought she had spent the best years of her young life as a wife and wanted to feel free. Loving her as I did, I gave her the divorce without even appearing in court. Now you can see why I am lonely for a companion. One does not forget so soon.

"Before I was married it was no trouble to get acquainted with girls, but now I seem to be afraid to meet one. I don't dance at least, not well. And where would one go to meet young women of my age? I don't want to get married at least just now. But I would like to meet one really nice young woman of my age, to do a theater now and then with me or a dance for that matter. I have only lived in this city about two months. I thank you very kindly."

The deep experiences of life never leave us where they find us. Domestic failure and divorce leave scars on sensitive natures that heal slowly, if ever.

Your mistake, Lonesome, was in marrying a girl so young as to be scarcely more than a child. How could she know what she wanted? When she settled down to the routine of home life there came the feeling that marriage had cheated her of the good times, admiration and attention young girls like.

Do not despair. You will soon meet congenial friends in your new surroundings. Learn to dance well that may help. Take up some form of athletic sports that will keep you much outdoors. Take an interest in the work of the church of your denomination.

At 25 or more, a young woman has grown up mentally and physically. Her day dreams are no longer of gayety, dancing, admiration and attentions from many men, but of the love of one good man and a home and children of her own.

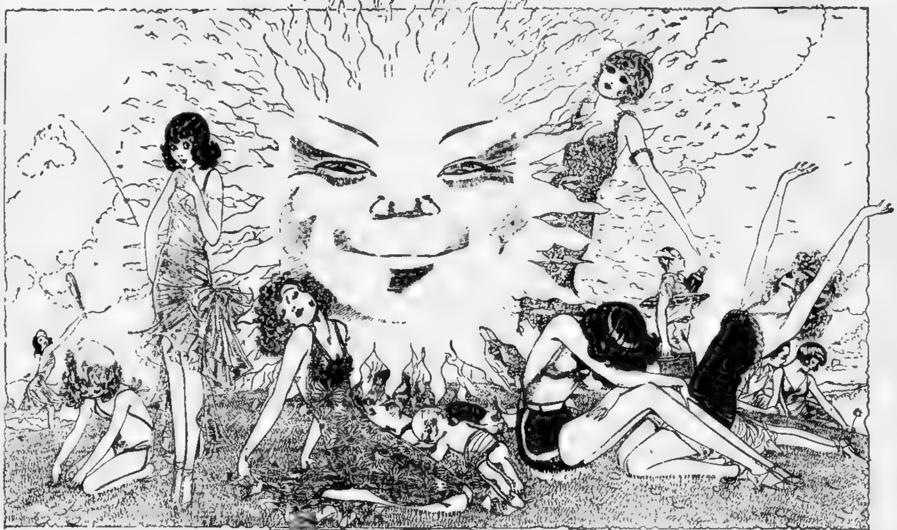

When you meet a young woman of this type, study her carefully. Try to become acquainted with the real girl and let her become acquainted with you. Win her respect and friendship, then love will take care of itself.

No matter how saddening your experience has been, you will have another chance at happiness. Make the most of that chance. When you find a suitable young woman, a true friend and read in her eyes love for yourself marry her and settle down to the peace and quiet happiness of home and family.

The Gift of Heaven—Sunshine -:-

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

SUCH, when you see her limned, is the face of Life—Madame Life. She is two-faced. One face is a mask, and beneath it is her real one. Our terrible difficulty in this world is to find out, each of us, which is her true face. I think, I hope, I believe that her true one is the happy one, the beautiful one, smiling, to-be-believed-in, sunny, good, worth-having, gay! I HOPE so for you as well as me. And that the perishable mask, the passing false face that you see is just an aspect, not a reality. The papier-mache covering for a sad space, the warm, sweet countenance of LIFE.

I have made the tragic mask she wears ugly—not the terrible but beautiful face that is sometimes put upon the poetic pictures of "Grief." For real grief, real fear, fear of poverty, disgrace, leaving a beloved child with no money and no one who can be trusted to love and understand it, fear for the work that keeps you, all the sadness and pain that life sometimes shows herself in, are NEVER beautiful! Pain and fear and grief and disillusionment are ugly, and so I have put on the mask's face ugliness, mixed with the paint, the makeup and the sorrow of the clown. Tragic—but ugly. On Life's other face—you remember, we hope it's the real one—is color, beauty, gaiety, sparkle, value; and she is crowned with roses for the perfume and the sweetness of life.

All the way along his highway man encounters, with each shock of change and adjustment, this terrible problem: Which is Life's true face? Is she worth the having, fair and candid, or gloomy, ugly and untrue? What is she?

A baby first born into the light and air objects strenuously to the change in his Paradisial condition of warmth and food and quiet with no smallest effort on his tiny part. For a little space he thinks life in the world a fearful disappointment, a thing of noise, bright lights and efforts; and he tells you so!

Again the small child who first has to do "as others say," who first faces that awful moment when Life is discovered to be not all play and a fellow has to study a book or two, or "practice"—fiendish word!—who finds that it sometimes rains when a picnic is on the calendar, that the world bucks you and does not always give you your way. Another rough place in the road where Life dimly shows her face to be not always rose-crowned and rosy. Poor child, to find she HAS another face is sorrow!

The youngster hears the word "work," along with his name being said at his house, or hers, seriously. And feels a dim terror of unknown things as if he were already far from home, unloved. People do not always tell the truth—people one loves, even! Nobody understands one—everyone expects so much—childhood is behind. Another change. Another glimpse of Life's troubled face. Another struggle, another adjustment.

From then on the grown-up is a warrior fighting for his faith in a lady! To prove to himself the beauty of her face. The beauty of LIFE, who shocks him over and over again with an unlovely or, at least, not perfect visage. There in the word "perfect" is his trouble, from the little boy to the old man; he expected her to be perfect, and, alas, Life is very human.

That one who battles along through many spots common to us all, where Life's beauty seems the falseface, her mask of disillusion the real one, and comes out triumphantly sure that she's after all a lovely thing, wholly desirable, has made a success of his own particular war. He's won it!

NELL BRINKLEY.

A Plea for Music

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

NOT so many years ago the girl or boy who wasn't taking piano or violin or vocal lessons was an unusual child. Either his parents couldn't afford a musical education, or he was adjudged as tone-deaf or otherwise utterly lacking in any musical appreciation. But the average normal child had his daily practicing to do.

Constance Cameron

The immediate vicinity of my home contains an unusual ratio of school children, but do I hear any piano lessons being toiled over after school, or the plaintive squeaks of an amateur Elman at his daily stunt of work? I do not.

What is the reason? Perhaps it may be the same one that I gave recently when a friend asked me why I played so seldom any more. I replied "The only time during the day when I can do as I like for an hour or so, the radio is always going full tilt."

Now, I'm not disparaging the radio nor the excellent programs we hear over it. I enjoy them immensely, but haven't parents sort of subconsciously leaned back and taken to merely enjoying music, rather than demanding or encouraging their children to make it?

The evenings of the "home-sing" have gone, it seems, and perhaps the neighbors will remark, "it is just as well."

The need for training children to play and sing is greater today than ever before. There are more lines of work offered them in these fields than their fathers ever dreamed of. The children of today are going to be the announcers, the musicians, the singers of tomorrow, unless, in our enjoyment of "canned" music, we forget to give them the advantage of a musical education.

We need music in our homes, and in our hearts. And we need to sing at our work, and be gay with our children.

Let us remember that we cannot stop with merely enjoying music. We must help the coming generation to be makers of music. It is one of the old-fashioned arts which we cannot afford to let atrophy from want of use.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ELIZABETH ARNOLD is one of the most successful business women I know. She is head of the personnel department of a big New York department store at a large salary. The other day I was asking her about her work.

"What's the biggest problem you have to meet, Elizabeth?" I said.

Elsie Robinson

I was amazed. I know Tom Arnold. He's a quiet chap, a lawyer, brainy, but not aggressive enough to have made a big mark. Everybody likes him and we've always thought they were a very happy couple.

"Yes, I know what you're thinking," Elizabeth laughed, noting my puzzled face. "Tom is devoted to me . . . and there isn't anyone else, for either of us. It's not that kind of jealousy . . . HE'S JEALOUS OF MY JOB."

"But I should think he'd be proud—"

"Yes, you'd think so—but that isn't the way most men's minds function. And I don't exactly blame them. It must cut into a man's pride to see his wife earning double what he is.

"Not that Tom really knows he's jealous. He'd indignantly deny it—but he is, just the same. It shows up in the queerest ways. A sort of condescension when people are around. And if we're invited to go some place where my work is bound to receive a lot of public commendation, Tom always manages to have a bad headache or an attack of indigestion.

"I don't mean that he deliberately manages—he'd be horribly hurt if anyone accused him of that—but deep down in his secret self he just can't bear the thought of having a woman, his woman, place him in an inferior position. It actually makes him ill. Like repressed worry or anger or fear will make you sick.

"I didn't understand it at first. I felt that there was something wrong—that I was hurting Tom in some way. Then one day I mentioned it to the psychiatrist we have on our staff here at the store. He smiled and said that it had become a common problem with women's increasing success in industry and the professions. He said that some men feel such an intense though often unconscious jealousy that they quit work entirely TO ESCAPE UNFLATTERING COMPARISON WITH THEIR WIVES' RECORDS."

But if you know that Tom feels that way and you really love him, why don't you give up your job, Elizabeth?"

"I can't. There are the three children. Tom's the dearest father in the world but he can't possibly earn enough to give them the chance they should have. And Tom himself has come to desire certain standards of living which would be impossible without my salary.

"And to tell you the truth," she added frankly, "I wouldn't want to quit even if I could. Why should I? What is there for me to do in the home? The children are away at school all day. Dish washing . . . cooking . . . sewing? The woman I hire can do it much better and more economically than I. Play bridge? That's deadly. Entertain? I do that anyway. I'm always available in my husband's leisure time. Then why shouldn't I do something really useful in the rest of the time? Why should I cut short my usefulness just to coddle a spoiled-baby feeling in a man? Men are bound to feel this way until things get readjusted. They'll just have to get over it . . . as women have had to get over unpleasant things."

So that's that. Think it over.

Express Your Own Thanks

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A man I go about with and myself quite frequently go out with a friend of ours. He does not take a girl, and we usually go in his car. When we leave him, should I thank him, or is it entirely up to my friend? I never have, as I think it is the duty of the fellow only. Please tell me whether or not I should.

2. Should writing paper be folded so that when it is taken out of the envelope, it is ready to be read, or should it have to be unfolded before reading?

BEATRICE.

IT is the gracious "duty," the social duty, of the person who has been offered any sort of hospitality or other kindness to thank the one who has been kind. It does seem rather foolish—doesn't it?—to delegate the expression of our thanks to another person. By all means, do your own thanking, as graciously, as charmingly and as expressive as possible. No fault can ever be found with too much thanking. But much can be found with too little thanking. And this kind friend, who takes you in his car, should feel that both you and your friend are appreciative people. When next you go with him, and thank him, watch how pleased he will be.

2. It is the custom to fold our writing paper so that the reader unfolds it as he starts to read it.

Miss Pat -:- Thrilling Romance of Airways

But she went on with her mad, wooing appeal. She kissed him. She crept on and on.

Then Pat lay quiet with the little boy hushed and folded in her arms.

After a long, long while she murmured:

"They've gone, pussy. But they'll come back—they may come back. No matter what happens, don't talk—don't say a word."

"Is there a giant here?"

"No, this is God's cave. An angel lives here—a beautiful angel. She'll take care of us."

"And will we see her?"

"Yes—after a while, we'll see her. But you mustn't talk—mustn't say a word."

"And will she bring us water? Will she give us something to eat?"

"Everything—she'll bring us everything."

And she gathered up little mounds of earth, talking to herself as she worked. These little mounds would mark the way back. She'd leave them at short distances—every 10 or 15 feet. Better to go on. If Ace did return with that other wavering flash, he'd have no trouble finding her. She was but 20 feet from that arch where Slim had fallen.

They'd want to make away with her . . ah, Slim . . guessed . . she'd sent out a radio message. Pathetic message! Who would ever hear it! Who would ever track her to this dungeon?

And they'd want the child. She remembered the gleam in Ace's drunken eyes when he said:

"Losha fun with $10,000. Whash a li' kid worth, anyhow!"

There were half a dozen of these little mounds now. She was farther in—buried in Plutonian dark.

He was hungry. She glanced at his throat, "Well, I'm cold. Why took a can of the milk from her pocket—a bit of the hardtack and some of the deviled meat. She fed him. But her own tongue was thick—her throat was scorched. It refused a single morsel of the food.

"Sleep a while, pussy," she urged. After a long while he did.

Then she went into a kind of dreaming doze. She dreamed that Guy got her message—that he was flying to her. She saw his silver plane.

She was leaden with weariness and dropped into these intermittent slumbers. The dark had weight. It moved about her like a presence, pressing down with heavy hands. She kept starting from these vague, half-waking dreams with terror, imagining voices whispered; steps advanced.

All at once she sank in collapse against the damp cavern walls. There WERE sounds. There was Slim's voice. She heard it as though the partition between them was but paper. He groaned. The groans intensified.

Terrible, assaulting sounds . . . like that wounded soldier who lay dying two whole days in No Man's Land. Just before last Monday Pat had read this book—Ramarque's book on the war. And that soul-hurting picture of the broken fellow lying out there and calling on his comrades. But none of them could reach him. And he had to die through a long 40 hours. Slim sounded like that.

He must be fearfully hurt. Suddenly he spoke: "Can you fix the light?"

"Dunno."

"Does the crack extend?"

"Yeh."

"Why can't you get them! God let me get these fingers on her! Gimmie a drink."

Quiet—a dead blanket of quiet. Then back there 20 feet or so, a muffled, digging sound. This gave place to a series of resounding thumps as though someone went along pounding at the rock. The digging was renewed.

Like an animal, half insane with goading, Pat crouched. Surely they couldn't hope to hack through the cavern wall. It was late—dark now. They were still here. They'd be here all night. This prospect laid on her with appalling weight. Suppose the two men couldn't get out?

If Slim had broken his leg, as she imagined, even a panther like Ace couldn't cary him up the all but perpendicular mountain. Even lithe and untrammelled, every step was fraught with peril. They knew it. They'd have to find an easier ladder up to precipice than the one down which they'd climbed.

Had Ace spent the afternoon searching for this?

What if there were no possible exit? And they'd remain here indefinitely. Camped at the mouth—menacing—inescapable. While she and the little boy starved in this black, living grave. Starved, and grew crazed. And died.

"Don't cry, Pussy."

He answered with a choking whimper, the words way down in his throat, "Well, I'm cold. Why can't we go out? I want it to be light. I wanna be warm."

Pat sank her face against the soft baby hair. She prayed, frantic: "God, don't let him shiver so. Oh God, don't let him die on me!"

She crept on blindly, persistently. Ace had some hope or he wouldn't be working at the cave. He was wise in the lore of mountain and wilderness. There might be a fissure here. And he was cutting along it.

Presently she lost the sound of the digging. She waited ten or fifteen minutes. The she was taut, drenched with alarm so incisively did the dread, ominous hacking recommence.

Nearly a thousand miles distant another man sent messages that Tuesday through the air—the query Guy asked Lee Templeton to radio everywhere.

"Has anyone picked up an S O S from Patricia Dawn? Wire collect immediately."

The witness being examined in a case where the defendant was charged with breaking a plate glass window with a large stone, was pressed to explain the size of the stone.

"Was it as big as my fist?" asked the Judge.

"Sure, it was bigger," replied the witness.

"Was it as big as my two fists together?"

"Much bigger."

"Was it as big as my head?"

"It was about as long but not so thick," replied the witness amid loud laughter.

The Real Truth

ABOUT CULTIVATING A RICH BACKGROUND

By ELINOR GLYN.

GIRLS, I am beginning to long very much for America again. I have been away for six months. I miss the crisp go-aheadness and the joyous view of life.

Old Europe has too many memories to be habitually joyous. There is such a thing as having too much background.

Elinor Glyn

But, on the other hand, Gracie and Maud, the suggestion of having no background at all is very uninteresting.

It is hard on some girls, born with naturally bright intelligence, but who have never had the chance to see any social life or refined and cultured communities beyond the home town.

And to these I would say, if they desire to rise and polish themselves and so become interesting, that they should study all the wonderful magazines which they can buy at the bookstalls.

Read those that show the interior decorations of the lovely homes of the best social leaders in America.

Study and try to understand the meaning of the decorations and their uses and learn the history of their origin.

Then imagine, girls, how you would act did you possess those stately homes. Realize how fitting it would be in such surroundings to walk with grace and sit in becoming attitudes.

And how would you use your leisure to cultivate your mind.

The very fact of your imagination being stimulated, and your knowledge of beauty being increased, will give you a more interesting point of view, and will react upon your powers of attracting the interest of others.

Convalescent Cookery

SO many entire families seem to be having a siege of grippe just now, that some hints on how to stimulate the convalescent's appetite seem quite timely and will also meet a number of special requests.

First — and this can be taken by even the seriously ill

Martha Lee

FROSTED BEEF TEA

¼ cup boiling water
¼ tsp. beef extract
Few grains salt
Few grains celery salt
White of 1 egg

Stir the beef extract into the boiling water. Beat the egg white slightly with a fork then pour the beef tea on slowly, stirring all the time. Season and serve with saltines.

Most of us make pretty good cocoa and chocolate but here are two extra good invalid methods. First

COCOA EGG NOG

Beat the white of 1 egg stiff. Gradually add 2 tsps. sugar, a speck of salt and 2 tsps. of cocoa. Add ½ of the beaten egg white to the milk and beat up. Frost the glass with the remaining white.

REAL CHOCOLATE

Melt ½ square chocolate in a pan over hot water, add 1 tbsp. sugar and speck of salt. Add ½ cup boiling water slowly, stirring well and let come to a boil. Pour in ¾ cup scalded milk. Stir well and serve with or without whipped cream.

Vegetables do not contain a great deal of nourishment for invalids but are valuable for their mineral salts. However, none of our winter vegetables, such as turnips, carrots, parsnips, beets or onions can be recommended in the invalid's diet.

Lettuce, of course, can always be obtained and is allowable and hearts of celery are appetizing but in the winter one really has to rely considerably on canned vegetables.

Asparagus is one of the most valuable among these. It is delicious just heated on buttered toast and moistened with the asparagus water, or if a little more nourishment is desired, serve it on milk toast and cover it with a little of the sauce.

Fads and Fashions

Necks Are Sympathetic to the higher aspirations of waist lines. Many stylists predict that the new dresses with tuckers that are shirred or tied at quite a high throat line are but the forerunners of the throat concealing neck line on the new spring dresses.

Blouses That Pretend to be waistcoats are the latest from Paris. A blouse of eggshell crepe satin simulates a waistcoat successfully with the front section plain and the sides and hip band tucked. The waistcoat opening is outlined with tiny self fabric covered buttons.

An important merger is that of white jersey with black satin. This combination forms a stunning afternoon frock. Loose tab ends of the jersey are marked by black ball buttons and the bodice is laid in heavy tucks. The skirt is of the wrap-around variety.

Sunlight or arc light, some of the new coats are designed to be worn regardless of the illuminant necessary. Such a coat is of galyak, manipulated in horizontal bands. The cape collar is completed by tuxedo revers, and can be adjusted high around the neck.

A sheer delight is an afternoon dress of very fine chiffon in a rich orange-red. Bands of shirring are employed to give the molded silhouette. With this frock is worn a black velvet hat with the under brim lined with orange chiffon and a silver fox scarf.

MAKES DEBUT AT LUNCHEON TODAY

THE ATTRACTIVE DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop L. Carter of Hammond st., Chestnut Hill, Miss Katharine Carter, made her debut this noon at a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton. The royal blue crepe frock that she wore was becoming to her blondeness, as was also her turban of eggshell silk. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses combined with larkspur. Mrs. Carter chose for the occasion a black velvet gown. There were about a hundred guests including a number of the mother's friends, among these, Mrs. George Lowe, Mrs. George Metcalf, Mrs. Howard Swift, Mrs. Edward Smith and Miss Evelyn Carter, an aunt of the debutante. Seven buds had the honor of being table hostesses. In this group were Miss Mary Potter, Miss Mary Cleveland, Miss Phyllis Vose, Miss Vyvyan Sears, Miss Mary Elizabeth Lowe, Miss Carolyn Hall and Miss Helena Hyde. These last two are freshmen at Vassar.

PRECEDING THE DANCE in Framingham Hall tonight Miss Clarissa Donham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Donham of Framingham, is to be hostess at a dinner of about 25 in her home. Miss Louise Spear, Miss Sally Dodge, Miss Margaret Kenderine, Miss Parmella Barnum, Miss Esther Sears and Miss Margaret Howe are to be among her guests, as are also Miss Nancy Jeynes of Hartford, Miss Susan Taylor of Philadelphia, her sister, Miss Elizabeth Donham, a deb of this season, and Mrs. Laurence Batchelder, the former Miss Nancy Thayer, whose marriage took place November 22. Most of these are students at Vassar, as is Miss Donham.

MISS EUGENIA FROTHINGHAM is to be one of the guests at the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Murray Keeler of Whitinsville are giving at the Worcester Club this evening to meet Miss Edith Bullock of Worcester and Miss Lora Thayer. Miss Bullock was presented at a dance at the Hotel Somerset in the fall. Following dinner, the party will go on to the Worcester Assembly. Miss Frothingham is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Crompton while in Worcester. Mrs. Compton was, before her marriage, Miss Hastings of Boston. Miss Eugenia Frothingham, an active Junior League and Vincent Club member, is well known for her talented dancing. On January 13 she is to dance at the Conservatory of Music's annual frolic. Her repertoire is to include at least one of her own creations and a dance which she has re[illegible]ed.

MISS SYLVIA PRATT, WHO had her "coming out" party in October at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Pratt of Upland rd., Brookline, is leaving today for the south. She is planning to make several visits in Virginia with former classmates of hers at St. Catherine's school in Richmond, Virginia. She will go from here to stay with Miss Eugenia Knox at her home in Richmond. Later she is to visit Miss Nancy Elder of Stanton, Va. Miss Pratt will for the most part be stopping with friends who are debutantes in their own cities. On her way home she plans to make a stay in Baltimore.

POLAND SPRINGS, ME., IS considered in New England quite one of the places to go for winter sports. The Mansion House there remains open the year around. During the Christmas holidays, in particular, many house parties are given there and large family groups gather to enjoy the privileges of snow and ice. Among those from Boston registered at this hotel at the present time are Mrs. James Lord, Mrs. Allison B. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell of Milton and their family, Mrs. Arthur G. Milton and her children, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Saltonstall and their family. Also having with them their children are Dr. and Mrs. David Cheever, Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, Mrs. R. R. Williams. Other guests include Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Weed, Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. S. Swan, of Brookline, Mrs. W. I. Badger and her son, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Rice of Milton, Mrs. John S. Bottomley and her family, Mrs. Harkness and her children, Miss Harriet Morse of Hyde Park and three friends and Mr. and Mrs. Talbot with a party of six are all expected on Saturday.

MANY CHILDREN BELONGING to Boston's elite families are to participate in the junior invitation horse show which is being held at the New Riding Club on Hemenway st. on Saturday at 1:45 p. m. Miss Betty Bird, prominent young equestrian and a daughter of Reginald W. Bird, president of the club, heads the horse show committee, which is comprised of Miss Lydia Rotch of Commonwealth ave., Miss Lydia Lund of Newton Center, Hugh Bancroft, John S. Ames, Jr., and Nelson Kimball, all of Boston.

A LONG LIST OF ENTRIES for the 11 classes includes amateurs under 21 only. The following named are of the enthusiastic group of young people taking part in the show: Miss Isabel Lawrence, Miss Helen Rotch, John S. Tolman, Miss Virginia Tolman, Miss Virginia Richmond, Miss Marjorie Danforth, Miss Betty Scudder, Miss Sally Scudder, Miss Patricia Bird, Miss Elizabeth Redmond, Miss Jeanie Paine, Miss Doris Foote, Miss Lydia Lund, Miss Polly Powers, Jack Lewis, Miss Carolyn Lewis, Miss Alison Kimpton, Nelson Kimball, Miss Leonora Kimball, Fred H. Tolman, Jr.

Miss Ellen Harding, Miss Marjorie Kimpton, Miss Betty Bird, John S. Ames, Jr., Miss Patricia Preston, Miss Leonora Kimball, Miss Isabella Gardner, Miss Virginia Lewis, Miss Margaret Spencer, Miss Louise Barbour, Miss Julia Barbour, Miss Mary Morrison, Miss Sally Pillsbury, Miss Betty Allen, Miss Margaret Goddu, Miss Martha Proctor, Miss Leonora Kimball, Miss Joan Harding, Miss Dorothy Preston, Miss Martha Harding.

The Quincy branch motor vehicle registry has issued 4036 automobile plates thus far this year, an increase of 547 over the number for the same date in 1928.

AUCTION BRIDGE
by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

Perhaps the most essential difference between Auction and Contract is that at Contract the bidding is carried to its logical conclusions whereas at Auction it frequently stops short of this mark. In the partnership bidding at Contract, the purpose of which is to arrive at the best declaration for game or slam between the two hands, the necessity of showing more that "a single string to one's bow" when held frequently produces a different and more satisfactory final declaration.

In the above deal this situation is well illustrated. At Auction the bidding stops short of its logical conclusion and fails to arrive at a game-going declaration, whereas at Contract, the bidding does so arrive without any difficulty.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: South, holding high card values in all four suits and a 5-3-3-2 distribution bids one No Trump. West has no sound overcall and passes. North also passes as his distribution and high card strength would seemingly best support this particular declaration. East passing, South plays the hand at one No Trump.

Contract: South bids originally one No Trump as at Auction. West passing, North advances the bid to two No Trumps, his holding of 2 1-4 Quick Tricks and a 4-3-3-3 distribution making such assist almost a matter of routine procedure.

South now takes the precautionary step of bidding three Hearts. While his actual high card values warrant a three No Trump bid, the fact that he holds but a single stopper in both Spades and Clubs suggest the advisability of showing partner his secondary Heart suit and putting the final decision up to North as to whether the hand should be played at a suit or at No Trumps.

While North realizes the South's Heart suit is of secondary nature he concludes that it is one of at least five cards and therefore that South holds a protected doubleton or possibly a very weakly protected tripleton. Holding three Hearts to the King (the equal of four small Hearts) and no protection in Spades, North chooses the game bid in Hearts rather than No Trumps. All pass thereafter.

Salient Points of Play

At Auction (No Trumps): It is not necessary to go deeply into the play at No Trumps. It will be seen that West's spade opening will drive Declarer's Ace of Spades on the second round and thereafter, when West is in with the Ace of Hearts, three additional Spade tricks can be brought in by the East-West partnership, thus giving them all four spade tricks and the Ace of Hearts, stopping game.

At Contract (Hearts): West leads initially the top of his Spade sequence, the Queen which South wins with the Ace, and starts the elimination of the adverse trumps in order that he may make his good Diamonds and Clubs without the possibility of an adverse ruff. Accordingly, South leads the 4 of Hearts, West plays the 10 and Dummy's King holds the trick. Declarer now leads the 2 of Hearts from Dummy. East plays the 8, and South ducks with the 9 as if West holds the Ace-Jack, he must make these two tricks no matter what South plays.

West wins the second Heart lead with the Ace, returns the Jack of Spades, which holds and follows with a third Spade which is trumped by South. Now, the lead of the Heart Queen by Declarer captures East's remaining trump and after laying down three Diamonds and three Clubs, Declarer wins the last trick with the remaining trump in own hand, thus making five odd, a vast difference between the outcome of this hand at No Trump.

While it may occur to some players that South should have bid his Heart suit originally as his side compensation is sufficient for this, the fact remains that when a player holds a choice between a sound No Trump and an extremely weak Major suit bid, that the No Trump is as a rule the preferential bid.

Watch Night at St. Paul's Tuesday

Colorful watch-night services will be held in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul Tuesday night, which will start at 11 o'clock and continue until the New Year has arrived.

Dean Philemon F. Sturges will conduct the service, and there will be special music by a small choir. At midnight, a trumpeter from the Boston Festival Orchestra will play Christmas carols for 10 minutes on the front steps of the cathedral.

SHAKESPEARE ENIGMA IS CLUB TOPIC

The first club ever to present this controversial subject will be enlightened by its own club president, Mrs. William H. Prescott, on Jan. 3 in Upham Memorial Church, Forest Hills. She will recite in part the results of more than thirty years of research.

That the Bard of Avon did not write the plays which have withstood posterity and for which he has been acclaimed, has been sounded by many scholars of European drama and Shakespeare students. But never before has any woman's club dared the unpopular subject or even questioned the authenticity of the works, let alone sponsor a program devoted exclusively to breaking down the traditions of Shakespertan drama.

The Woodbourne Woman's Club therefore stands alone. The club is a small group of 67 women, organized in 1926. Mrs. Charles H. Danforth, now chairman of the interracial unity department of the State Federation of Women's Clubs was the first president.

Mrs. Prescott will use in her lecture pictures taken from rare originals in her library. Dr. and Mrs. Prescott are both of the opinion that this proof leads to Baconian authorship. They, of course, are not alone in their belief, that Bacon and not Shakespeare wrote the Shakespearian dramas. However no one has ever proved it satisfactorily.

Mrs. Marion R. Neal, press chairman of the club, writing of the meeting, says: "We have the distinction, we believe, of being the first club to present to its members this much-discussed and unpopular subject."

LADIES' AID ASSOCIATION, SOLDIERS' HOME

The annual meeting is to take place Thursday, Jan. 2, at 2:30 p. m., in Parlor A of Tremont Temple, with Mrs. Lue Stuart Wadsworth in the chair. Routine business will take up most of the time. Mrs. Wadsworth, notifying me of the meeting, also gives latest report of the number of veterans in the home: Civil War 68, Spanish 229, World War 178, Indian War 12, total 487, in hospital 202.

NEW ENGLAND WOMEN'S CLUB

Illustrating her lecture on "Beautiful Objects Used in Japanese Homes," with stereopticon slides and dressed in costume, Mrs. Harriett Dickenson Tomita will speak to the club members, Monday, at 2:30 p. m., in the Crystal Room of the Hotel Kenmore. Objects of art, utensils and similar things will be on display, all pertinent to the substance of the lecture.

The entertainment committee, Mrs. Donald F. Merrill, chairman, is presenting this program. Tea is to be served after the talk with Mrs. Lilias Folger and Miss Agnes L. Dodge officiating at the tea tables. Mrs. Bertha N. Atwell and Mrs. Burton Todd are to assist. The French Group will continue their classes on December 31 and the Botany Group, on the same day, will discuss "Perennials."

MUNICIPAL ISSUES

Municipal exhibits will feature the January conference on municipal issues to be held at the Twentieth Century Club and backed by three powerful women's organizations of the city.

Miss Catherine E. Russell, Mrs. Charles G. Andrews, Mrs. Richard J. Lane, Mrs. Percy G. Bolster, Miss L. Gertrude Howes and Mrs. Albert B. Carter comprise the committee on exhibits and under their direction the displays will be important demonstrations of municipal conditions and improvements. Their plan is to have the exhibits illustrate the subject matter of the program, and while it is an ambitious desire, the committee are confident that their hours spent in research will bear sufficient fruit to carry the idea out.

The conference, a two-day one, will be held at the Joy st. club Jan. 8 and 9 with both morning and afternoon sessions for the two days. Luncheon conferences will take place at the Women's City Club. The dinner conference is to be held at the Copley Plaza the night of Jan. 8.

Under the joint auspices of the Boston League of Women Voters, the Women's City Club and the Women's Municipal League of Boston the conference is being arranged. It is said it is to be the first conference of its kind ever given in Boston.

AUBURNDALE WOMAN'S CLUB

Something different awaits the membership of this club, for on Jan. 9, a "Surprise Program" is to be given under the joint direction of the juniors and program committee. The meeting is to be held at the clubhouse and not a word has been advanced as to the program or what is to be presented.

Shrouded in secrecy, all that invites the membership is a "Surprise Program." Can you picture any Auburndale clubwoman remaining home that day? I am so curious I might go myself. This is just an aside for Mrs. Hector G. R. Gal, who wrote me of the special occasion.

STOUGHTON WOMAN'S CLUB

Miss Hope Elizabeth Case will read "Quality Street" at the December 30 meeting of the club in Chicataubut Hall under the direction of the literature committee, Mrs. Hugh P. Hughes, chairman; Mrs. Hattie H. Chandler, Mrs. Thomas Marshall, Mrs. Helen L. Metcalf and Mrs. Myron A. Pierce. The regular order of business will first be conducted by the president, Mrs. Paul A. Esten.

BOSTON DAUGHTERS OF MAINE

The kids thought it was the most wonderful party they ever had. Sixty youngsters belonging to the members of the club enjoyed a post-Christmas party given in their honor by the club at the Hotel Brunswick. Gifts were given the children, also candy. A miniature tree was displayed and then a program especially arranged by the children was enjoyed. Children participated in the program, too.

The regular business interests were first discussed with Mrs. Albert B. Carmichael, president, in the chair. Mrs. Ethel Morrell, chairman of the ways and means committee, reporting on the recent bazaar, told of substantial receipts which resulted and which have been placed in the general fund for club use.

Baskets and goodies were again distributed this year to the club's own shut-ins, members who advanced in years, are remembered at Christmas. Announcement was made by Mrs. Carmichael of the meeting, January 23, at the Hotel Brunswick, when Mrs. Southward, club historian, would tell of the history of the State of Maine and also of Maine Indians.

AMERICAN PEN WOMEN, BOSTON BRANCH

An unusual program to follow the regular business meeting has been arranged by Mrs. Nelson W. Howard, president, and will be held at the Hotel Statler, Monday at 2 p. m. At 2:30 the meeting will be open to friends and guests of the Boston branch and they will be entertained by a musical program arranged by Mrs. M. H. Gulesian. The guests of honor include Madeline Barrett, ex-secretary, of the American Poetry Association of Boston, and Mrs. William Ripley, member of the New York Branch of American Pen Women. Both women will bring messages from their respective organizations. Mrs. Joseph A. Mahoney (Bangs Burgess), clo treasurer and chairman of the reception committee, will read a paper on poetry. Marion Perham Gale will read from her own book of verse. The musicale will take the form of a New Year festival and tea will be served during the social hour.

ROCKPORT WOMAN'S CLUB

The community service committee have charge of the program of the meeting Monday night at 8 p. m. A. Chesley York, formerly of Rockport, now serving as assistant United States attorney at Boston, will tell of "Humorous and Serious Predicaments Under Dual Citizenship." Mrs. Sumner York Wheeler, president, will preside.

Would Increase Hingham Fire Dept.

A petition for the reorganization of the Hingham fire department to increase the number of paid men by three, will be presented to the town meeting in March.

In addition to the six drivers who are salaried at present, the new plan would provide salaries for 12 call men and the chief. The reorganization would be based on the systems now used in the neighboring towns of Hull and Cohasset.

This Modern World

A Department Devoted to Fashions, Decoration and Social Customs

Successful Fashions Will Prevail at New Year's Ball

THERE'S hardly a moment at a New Year's Eve party to think of your own clothes, let alone what the rest of your world is wearing.

But in the lull that follows upon a glorious mad dance you will find yourself looking about you to see if your new frock measures up to the others on the floor.

There's that saucy youngster across the room—that young sister of Pamela's—far too young for such a party you think, remembering your conservative upbringing.

But you find yourself nodding at her with approval for her own has the youthful gaiety, the very tinsel quality of this holiday evening. It's a frothy bit of white tulle with a wide-standing skirt under which her vivid slippers peep out demurely. A charming appropriate frock you decide for so youthful a girl and a lovely contrast to Pamela herself.

AND there's Jane whom you haven't seen for positive ages. Can't you just hear yourself exclaim "My dear, your frock is simply divine! So smartly soigne. Where did you find it?" And while Jane is telling you about the smart shop she has just discovered, you admire the long, smooth, satin lines of her gown, the cut of which has completely disguised her too plump figure.

It is Patou's "Today" you learn, and it cost—but Jane breaks off talking about her gown as she compliments you on your own. "You're perfectly darling in that [illegible] and it is so becoming and so delightfully shimmering for a gorgeous New Year's party."

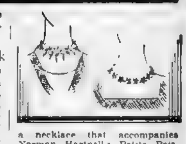

You secretly agree that you look just as nice as any one there and decide that this is probably the best party you have ever been to on New Year's Eve.

Daisy Chain Accents Quaint Evening Frock

THE demure bouffant skirts and quaint puff sleeves that appear in the evening mode need jewelry in keeping with their unique charm. The couturiers who sponsor these evening frocks complete the ensembles with dainty necklaces of jewels cut in the forms of diminutive flowers.

Daisies, singularly appropriate to the sophisticated simplicity of the frock, make the design of a necklace that accompanies Norman Hartnell's Petits Pois, a frock of green net. For Grandmother's Garnets, a quaintly named dress of dark red net, there is a necklace of garnet daisies.

SPECIAL SALE of Handbags at 12.50

An after-Christmas sale of better handbags at a remarkably low price. Friday and Saturday we are marking a special group of bags of suede, kid, calf, and antelope to $12.50. Finest of material and workmanship is incorporated—the quality immediately tells you that these bags are worth many times their sale price. One particular model sold formerly for $35. At this price they will go quickly, so come early.

Three months ago the dividend rate of the common stock was increased to $3 annually from $2.

President A. B. Chapin of the American Trust Co., former Bay State Bank Commissioner, has just returned from two months abroad, mostly passed in the land of Mussolini. He reports one of the changes in Italy since his trip there two years ago was the large amount of money being spent for large agricultural buildings, similar to fair buildings. There appears to be a drive on aiming towards the concentration of agriculture into cooperative selling as evidenced by these buildings to provide clearing houses for farm products.

And outstanding development is the large expenditures of public works. In lighting effects, one new highway is superior to those in the United States. Goose-neck lamps separated by approximately the same distance that separates our telegraph poles, are shaded in such a way as to cast all the light on the roadway, obviating the use of headlights on automobiles and thereby avoiding the glare.

Those interested in the aviation industry find cheer in a statement by President Williams of Air Investors, Inc. PROFIT-TAKING IN EVIDENCE IN WALL ST.

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

Scores of issues were marked up 1 to 10 points in the early trading but heavy profit taking, which started around mid-day, substantially cut down most of the gains and sent a sprinkling of issues below last night's final quotations. Trading turned dull on the decline.

BUYING IN MOTORS

Revival of activity and strength in the motor shares, based on reports of trade improvement, was one of the features of the early trading. Several blocks of 5000 to 16,000 shares changed hands as pool operators tried to attempt an outside following prior to the opening of the New York Automobile show next month.

Indications of organized buying also were seen in a few of the accessory stocks, which are expected to profit through the receipt of orders for the new lines of cars.

Business news of the day was rather spotty. Steel mill operations continue at relatively low ebb, although a brisk upturn is expected after the close of the inventory season.

U. S. Steel common, which was marked up 3½ points to 169½ in the first hour, later sagged to 167¼. Republic Steel also ran into some selling after an early gain of four points.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent for the first time since mid-November, with only a limited supply of funds available.

Money brokers expected, however that the official rate would be held at that figure. Time money and commercial paper were unchanged. Neither the New York nor Chicago Federal Reserve banks made any change in their rediscount rates.

OPINIONS ARE SPLIT

While there is still a sharp divergence of opinion among brokers as to the future trend of the market some improvement is generally looked for after the turn of the year on the theory that the completion of tax selling and the distribution of more than one billion dollars in dividends and interest next month will stimulate the demand for high-grade stocks.

Leading commission houses continue to urge caution in the making of new commitments, and many of them discourage trading for a turn at the present time.

Commonwealth Power, which fell 5 points yesterday to a new low for the year, rallied 10¼ points today. International Business Machines jumped 9 points. Safeway Stores 6, Columbian Carbon and J. I. Case 6½ each, and Air Reduction, American Water Works, American & Foreign Power, Auburn Auto, Brooklyn Union Gas, General Electric, Johns-Manville, National Biscuit and Simmons were among the many issues to sell 4 to 5 points higher, although many of the gains were reduced in the afternoon selling movement.

Oils showed signs of activity and strength in anticipation of further trade improvement early next year but several of the leading rails were heavy in reflection of the disappointing character of the large majority of the November earnings statements now being published. Union Pacific sold down 4 points below last night's close.

Lemon Chairman of Banking Committee

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—Hal Y. Lemon, vice-president of the Commerce Trust Co. of Kansas City, Mo., has been elected chairman of the newly created commission on banking practises and clearing house functions of the American Bankers' Association. The commission is to serve as an integrally organized department of the association, charged with the responsibility of studying and finding solutions to practical everyday banking problems and disseminating this information to the members of the association. Fred W. Ellsworth, vice-president of the Hibernia Bank & Trust Co. of New Orleans, is vice-chairman.

Am. Telephone Has $354,933,375 Surplus

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company's financial statement as of Sept. 30, shows total assets of $2,437,405,415 and surplus of $354,933,375, compared with $2,213,327 and $317,405,418, respectively, on Dec. 31, 1928.

Holding Company to Have Bond Sale

A Chicago dispatch to Wall Street today said that the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., holding company for several Insull public utility operating companies, will soon bring out a large bond issue. The bonds, it was said, will carry stock purchase warrants or be convertible into common stock.

How Railway Mergers Can Be Advanced

Let Commission Stop Its Obstructive Tactics and Be Helpful

—By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—Railway consolidations have been brought little or no nearer by the long-overdue Interstate Commerce Commission report. It has proved a dud.

R. C. Forbes

Actual consolidations will not be accomplished by any commission, but by railway leaders themselves once the commissioners cease being stumbling blocks to action. Heretofore they have been dogs in the manger; they cannot act constructively themselves and won't let others do so.

What most needs change is the attitude of the commission. Perhaps legislation may be necessary to bring this about.

* * *

Of course, it is something to know what combinations the commissioner—or a majority of them—are disposed to endorse. Even so, they are at such sixes-and-sevens among themselves that were specific plans in accordance with their half-hearted recommendations actually laid at their doorstep, they might fall out among themselves and once again indulge in their favorite diversion of hoisting obstacles.

* * *

Senator Fess proposed legislation permitting condemnation proceedings against any road or roads which might attempt to frustrate a desired combination. Such authority would appear to be necessary before the final aim of the Transportation Act of 1920 can be achieved, for it is almost inevitable that such attempts will arise. The interests of railway stockholders would be duly protected, as are the interests of others, when properties are condemned for other purposes.

* * *

America's scores and scores of railway companies, little and big, will never be consolidated by Interstate Commerce Commission decree into 19 or any other number of systems.

The commission at least had sense enough to refrain from attempting to clothe its recommendations with any suggestion of compulsion.

Incidentally, a test of its authority to issue arbitrary orders will come as a result of its peremptory instructions to a western railroad to construct a new line involving the expenditure of millions of the company's own money. The issue is clear-cut. Can anybody—such as the commerce commission—compel a board of directors to spend vast sums when such expenditures would not be in the interests of the owners, but might tend to drive them toward bankruptcy?

The United States Supreme Court has not hesitated in the past to overrule decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and other Washington regulatory bodies that have become unduly obsessed by notions of infinite power. To invest any regulator or regulators with the right to compel unlimited construction expenditures over the protest of the property owners, surely would be unconsciously dangerous.

* * *

First, let the railway leaders do their best to arrive at amicable plans. Then, when their agreed-upon plans are not against the public interest, have the commission act in harmony with the spirit of the transportation act, and sanction such combination. Where differences cannot be ironed out by railway managements, let them appear before the commission, sitting as adjudicators; the decision of the commission, if not objected to, would then take effect; if objected to, the case would go before the courts and a final ruling be obtained.

* * *

The knitting together of this continent's vast railway lines is such a complicated, many-sided task that it cannot possibly be accomplished all at once nor without some interests feeling sufficiently aggrieved to resort to the courts. This is all the more reason why the commission should do everything possible to be friendly rather than obstructive when definite mergers not injurious to the public are laid before it for approval.

Perhaps it may in time dawn upon the commissioners that if they cannot carry out the will of Congress, Congress may abolish them and allocate the job to some other body. Americans dislike stand-patism when it thwarts progress.

RALLY IN CURB MARKET IS SLOWED UP

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—The post-holiday rally on the Curb market faltered today, after yesterday's gains had been extended during the early hours of the session.

The rally appeared to have been promoted by short covering, and, with the covering movement over, long holders of stock apparently began to lighten their accounts at the more attractive levels. Liquidation on bulges has been characteristic of the market of late, and made upward progress difficult.

Electric Bond & Share sold up more than 2 points during the morning, but turned downward by early afternoon. Associated Gas A and United Light & Power were in demand for a time, but soon encountered selling pressure. American & Foreign Power warrants, American Gas & Electric and American Light & Traction were in fair demand. Hydro Electric securities bounded upward in reflection of the reorganization of the Standard Power and Standard Gas properties, which gives Hydro Electric a substantial interest in the group. Duke Power bounded up nearly 10 points in a few sales. Brazilian Traction dropped nearly 3 points at the opening, then rallied.

Investment trusts were inclined to be sluggish. Railway and Light Securities, however, firmed up in response to the $3 extra dividend. Utility Equities was in fair demand and Intrastate Equities was a little firmer. Overseas Securities sagged to another new low below 20.

Oils were steady to firm, but failed to make progress. The growing stocks of refined gasoline are an unfavorable factor which have had a restricting influence on these stocks despite the progress made in crude production curtailment. Gulf, Humble and Indiana sold a little higher, and Standard of Kentucky was firm in response to the large tax refund, amounting to about $1 a share.

Industrials and specialties were largely dull. Aluminum Co. rose a few points after showing hesitancy at the opening. U. S. Foil B, Neet, Inc., American Cyanamid A, Fox Theaters A, Dubilier and a few others sold a little higher. Ois de Vry was a soft spot, dropping more than 7 points to a new low. Safety Car Heating also penetrated further into new low ground.

NEW DIVIDENDS DECLARED

Royal Typewriter Co. declared an extra dividend of 50 cents and a semi-annual dividend of $1.50 on the common, placing it on a $3 annual basis. Six months ago, shortly after the stock had been split up two-for-one, the company declared a semi-annual dividend of $1.25 and an extra of 25 cents.

Company also declared regular semi-annual dividend of $3.50 on preferred. All dividends are payable Jan 17, the common dividends to stock of record Jan. 10 and the preferred to stock of record Jan. 16.

New England Public Service Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on common, payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 15, and regular quarterly preferred dividends as follows: $1.75 on $7 dividend series; $1.50 on $6 dividend series; $1.75 on adjustment series and $1.50 on $6 convertible preferred. All preferred dividends are payable Jan. 15.

New York, Dec. 27—Lazard Freres are shipping $10,000 gold to France on the Mauretania, sailing tonight. Heidelbach, Ickleheimer & Co. are shipping $1,250,000 gold on the Mauretania.

"Bear Uncanny" in Catching Swings of the Market

New York, Dec. 27—Wall St. writer says today: "The uncanny manner in which one of the biggest of bears has been able to 'catch the swings' of the present market has created great deal of comment. He put out a long line of copper shares at within two points of top of rally and re-bought all of his stock Tuesday. Now he is said to be awaiting a 10-point rally before putting them out again."

BOSTON TRADE IS LARGE, SAYS DUN'S

R. G. Dun & Co. Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston: The holiday trade was of large volume, and gives every indication of coming up to expectations. Other lines of business continue with about the volume expected for the season. The sale of fairly large quantities of several grades of wool is reported.

There is an increasing call from the mills for fine and medium wools, the buying movement is apparently increasing and prices are firmer. Inventories at the mills are not large and the outlook is slightly better. Carpet wool is quiet and receipts from abroad comparatively small. There is very little new business in woolen and worsted yarns, and some of the spinners are closing their plants for over the holiday. Prices are weak.

PRODUCTION CURTAILED

The wide cotton sheeting mills have curtailed production to the extent of about 25 per cent with the result that they have been able to operate on a much more profitable basis than most cotton mills. Gray goods are moving a little better, and print cloths are more active.

Fine goods are slow. Retail distribution appears large, and the trade is optimistic. Prices of raw cotton are firm, but the mills are not taking in many supplies. There is some call for the finer counts of cotton yarn from the knitters, and for the medium grades from the weavers. A few price concessions are reported.

The weather continues to favor the sale of rubber footwear, and this has stimulated the demand for boots and shoes. Business in Brockton has slowed down considerably in the last few weeks, but total production for the year, it is estimated, will exceed last year's totals by about 2,000,000 pairs. Leather stocks are not large, and prices have become comparatively well stabilized, but business still is quiet. The hide and skin market also is dull.

There is an improvement in the demand for kid, and in all lines tanners are hoping to get a better return on their operations. Permits granted in five municipalities of Massachusetts for the months of November amounted to $6,228,227, which was 59 per cent less than the total for November, 1928. Current sales of brick are light, and prices are weak.

FRAME BUILDINGS UP

Cement and lime are also quiet. Lumber is slow, but prices for New England building lumber are being firmly maintained. The cost of frame buildings is up 3 per cent, brick 2 per cent and concrete 2 per cent over that of last year. Sales of pig iron during the week amounted to only 1000 tons. Prices are steady. Steel is slow, though the tool factories continue well occupied.

The demand for paper is active, sales being in excess of those of last year. There was a seasonal contraction during November in the shoe, textile and building lines and some consequenced unemployment, but the jewelry, tire fabric and metal establishments worked overtime. Shipbuilding in Quincy was active.

Record Business in November Reported

New York, Dec. 27—Net income of Art Metal Works, Inc., for the 11 months ended November 30 totaled $911,405, with net for November $136,332. The management estimates that both gross and net for December will be greater than November when business was the largest in the company's history. As of November 30 the ratio of current assets to current liabilities was over 12 to 1.

AUTO INDUSTRY SENTIMENT IS IMPROVED

Improved sentiment has appeared in the automobile industry, and present indications are that the trade is beginning to turn the corner toward moderate improvement, says the Union Trust Co., Cleveland.

"The industry is now looking forward to the January motor shows," say the bank in its magazine, Trade Winds. "Meanwhile orders for steel, parts and other materials are showing some increase. The rate of improvement will depend upon developments in the trade in the coming year. It does not appear likely that the situation will justify an immediate upswing to high peaks of production."

The bank estimates the replacement demand for cars and trucks in the United States and Canada during 1930 at 3,000,000 units and total output at somewhat, though not greatly, below 5,000,000 units, as against approximately 5,600,000 produced in 1929.

"Most automobile companies," says the bank, "are planning their schedules for the resumption of operations on a gradually increasing scale early in 1930. The majority are not expecting to reach the peaks of 1929 activity in the coming year, although one large company is reported to be preparing for a substantially larger output.

"The coming motor shows are expected to give an indication of the trend of demand for next year. No dramatic changes in design and engineering are known to be in the making, but some interesting developments are indicated.

"One factor on which the automobile industry is pinning its hopes for 1930 is a further growth in the number of 'two-car' families. The increasing efficiency and finer appearance of small, low-priced cars is making their use more common in well-to-do families to supplement the larger cars."

However, the new high standards of the lower priced cars are making it increasingly hard to sell high-grade used cars at a profit. It also reports announcements by the heads of a number of leading automobile companies that they will keep output closely in line with retail requirements, so as not to force dealers to resort to the uneconomical sales methods largely prevailing in former years.

"Recently there has been a recession in exports of automobiles compared with preceding months," says the bank. "This recession in exports has resulted partly from reduced sales abroad and partly from the growing tendency on the part of the American producers to acquire production facilities in foreign countries. The first factor came about partly as a result of the high money rates in this country, which caused a virtual drying up of loans to Europe, thus affecting the purchasing power of foreign borrowers and buyers.

"The building of plants abroad by American automobile manufacturers may be expected to have some influence upon exports from this country. However, this may not be as great as expected by some, because of the fact that many of the foreign plants are merely assembling plants and the various parts for cars in the main are shipped from the United States to these assembling plants."

BOND MARKET MORE ACTIVE AND FIRM

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—Firmness of Liberties and United States Treasuries and an increase in the general volume of business were features of today's bond market.

Turnover in the earlier part of the session was nearly twice that of yesterday and, although price changes were still mixed, the ability of the high-grade investment issues to maintain a relatively strong position was seen as an indication of the market's favorable basis positions.

Some of the best buying was in the utilities, with telephone company bonds leading the inquiry. Rails of all grades were mixed, but industrials showed little disposition to move from recent levels. Miscellaneous changes on the upside involved Armour 5½s, Erie Convertible 4s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Lorillard 5½s, American Telephone Debenture 5s, Southern Bell Telephone 5s, Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s and Skelly Oil 5½s.

Small declines developed on small transactions in Postal Telegraph 5s, Denver & Rio Grande 4s, Delaware & Hudson 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s and St. Paul 5s.

Foreign bonds were stronger, but interest in the group was light. Rio de Janeiro 6½s, which made a new low yesterday, recovered 2 points. San Paulo State 6s advanced a point, reflecting the proposed coffee loan which is to be floated in Europe.

The holiday apathy was reflected in the volume of new offerings for this week. The total was only $8,468,000, all in the municipal classification, compared with $25,569,000 last week and $27,104,000 in the same interval of 1928.

Unfilled Orders Show an Increase

Chicago, Dec. 27—Current unfilled orders for clutches and radiators on the books of the Long Manufacturing Co., a subsidiary of the Borg-Warner Corporation, total $1,700,000, a substantial increase over this time in 1928. A large amount of this business comprises contracts which have been received within the last few weeks, from automobile manufacturers who are making up their 1930 schedules. This was announced today by C. S. Davis, president of the Borg-Warner Corp.

United Light Has Earnings Increase

United Light & Power Co. reports for 12 months ended November 30 net of $8,840,723 after depreciation, interest, taxes, subsidiaries' preferred dividends, etc., equal after preferred dividends to $2 a share on 3,281,010 combined Class A and B common shares outstanding at end of the period, against $4,655,636 or $1.50 a share on 3,136,843 combined shares in preceding 12 months. Gross was $95,011,527, against $89,261,235.

Peabody Loan Goes to Bank at Home

Peabody awarded National Bank, Peabody, at 3.97 per cent, $100,000 loan dated Dec. 28 and payable March 15, 1930. Other bidders were: F. S. Moseley & Co. 4.15 per cent and Bank of Commerce & Trust 4.225 per cent.

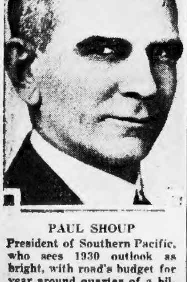

Electric Output Advances 12 P. C.

New York, Dec. 27—American Gas & Electric Co.'s subsidiaries report an output of 80,694,935 kwh. for week ended December 21, an increase of 12 per cent over corresponding period last year.

National Distillers

National Distillers Products Corp. reports for 10 months ended Oct. 31 profit, exclusive of amount received from sale of capital assets, of $507,057 after depreciation, interest, etc., but before taxes.

Cheerful

PAUL SHOUP
President of Southern Pacific, who sees 1930 outlook as bright, with road's budget for year around quarter of a billion dollars.

MID-JANUARY PICKUP FOR STEEL SEEN

Iron Trade Review says: Iron and steel producers are taking advantage of unusually quiet markets and necessity for repairs to impose the most drastic holiday shutdown in recent years. Excepting continuous processes, a large proportion of steelmaking capacity is idle all this week, and some will not be restored until after New Year. December output of pig iron and steel ingots apparently will be the lowest since 1923.

There has not, however, been a corresponding depression of sentiment. The industry, with the best year in history behind it, is resigned to nominal business until about the midddle of January, when it expects demand to come back rather sharply. Consumers are taking in only pressing requirements, and are deferring contracting.

The price situation in both iron and finished steel continues to drift, with time apparently more on the side of consumers than producers. Large carryovers from this quarter and the certainty that prices will be no higher leave no incentive for steel buyers to contract. Concessions for prompt shipment orders seem fewer.

Rarely has pig iron approached so closely to the first quarter with so few commitments, and a clarification of prices seems probable in some districts. Beehive furnace coke is slightly weaker at $2.60 to $2.65. Iron and steel scrap prices are giving no more ground; in fact, several grades at Pittsburgh are somewhat stronger.

Automotive specifications for steel have subsided from the slight bulge of the past fortnight. Makers have about completed initial trial runs on January show models, and are now awaiting the verdict.

Independent steelmakers in Youngstown district are operating at 30 per cent, and Steel Corp. plants at 50 per cent. Ingot operations at Chicago have declined to 55 per cent, although 22 of 36 steelworks blast furnace stacks continue active. At Pittsburgh the steel rate is no higher than 60 per cent, and at Buffalo about 40 per cent.

Failures of Year to Show a Decrease Dun's Reveals

New York, Dec. 27—Commercial failures in the United States will be somewhat less numerous in 1929 than they were either in 1928 or the year prior to that time, according to the records of R. G. Dun & Co. With the closing month of 1929 partly estimated, insolvencies in commercial lines for the year will number 22,922, with liabilities of $473,995,082. These figures compare with 23,842 similar defaults in 1928, owing $489,559,624 of indebtedness.

Pathe Profits in 12 Weeks $29,894

New York, Dec. 27—Pathe Exchange, Inc., reports for 12 weeks ended October 5, 1929, profit of $29,894 after depreciation, interest and amortization of discount and after transferring from surplus $129,397 to absorb excess costs of sales over normal costs. For 40 weeks ended October 5 profit was $354,231 after all charges and after charging certain excess production costs to surplus.

AT THE DIAL

By THE RADIO EDITOR

GOSH, what wicked places these night clubs must be, if radio is holding a true mirror up to life as it percolates under the city's bright lights. Apparently it is quite according to Hoyle for the orchestra to toot a lively fox-trot while Inspector Gilligan and Sergt. Aristopolos carry out the corpus delicti feet foremost. In the second of last night's thrillers, an obliging limb of the law permitted the suspected female to go and fetch herself a shawl from the cloakroom before submitting herself to questioning. And she came back. Gosh!

FREDDIE RICH and his orchestra will broadcast a half hour of popular music tonight over WEAN and the Columbia System at 7:30 during the Howard Fashion Plates program. Selections include "Look What You've Done to Me," "Sympathy" and "Only the Girl," from "The Painted Angel." Also "Little by Little," "Lady Luck," from "Show of Shows," and "Congratulations."

JIMMY HUSSEY, Broadway comedian, and Helen Richards, radio blues singer, will be featured on the program of the Brownbilt Footlites over WNAC at 9 o'clock. William Wirges and his Footliters' orchestra will play two novelties, "The Toymaker's Dream" and "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

ALEXANDER GLAZOUNOW'S "Bacchanale" will be heard in the Cities Service concert, broadcast through WEEI and the NBC System, at 8 o'clock. Rosario Bourdon directs the concert orchestra in the program, in which the Cavaliers quartet will be heard.

THE STORY of Queen Antoinette of France will be dramatized during the "Famous Loves" broadcast through WBZ and the NBC System at 8:45.

SCENE TWO of "Babes in Toyland" will be broadcast as Philco's Theater Memories through WBZ and NBC System at 9:30. Lois Bennett, soprano, and Robert Simmons, tenor, will sing the leading roles.

TWO SONGS inspired by "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," "Come Fill the Cup" and "Alas, That Spring Should Vanish With the Rose," set to music by Liza Lehmann, will be sung in the Armstrong Quakers broadcast through WBZ and the NBC System at 10 o'clock. Lois Bennett, soprano; Mary Hopple, contralto, and an orchestra directed by Victor Arden, assist the quartet in the program.

GEORGE BASS, violinist, will be the guest artist of the Armour broadcast from Chicago through WBZ, at 10:30. He will play two selections, "Melody" by former Vice-president Dawes, and Dvorak's "Humoresque." Fred Waldner, tenor, an orchestra directed by Josef Koestner and a mixed chorus of eighteen voices will assist in the program.

THE West Point-Leland Stanford football game at Palo Alto, Calif., will be broadcast by the Hearst newspapers over WNAC and nation-wide hookup of the Columbia System, tomorrow afternoon. Ted Husing will officiate at the microphone with Ernie Smith, announcer of west coast sports events. The program for the Army-Stanford game will begin at 4:45 p. m., eastern standard time. The game will not begin until 5.00 p. m., eastern standard time, the fifteen minute interval to be taken up with the music by the bands of both teams, and descriptions of the crowd. The program will be picked up by Station KHJ of Los Angeles, and sent to the associated stations of the Columbia nation-wide network.

DUE to the broadcast of the football game several regular features ordinarily scheduled between 5 and 7:30 p. m. will be altered or omitted from the WNAC program tomorrow. "Ted and His Gang," will be advanced one hour on the program and go on the air at 4 o'clock. The News Flashes at 6 o'clock will be eliminated. The regular program will be resumed at 7:30 with the Scott Furriers' Dinner Orchestra with the Oracle.

THE NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY will attempt to pick up and rebroadcast through its networks in this country the address of King George of England when he opens the five-power naval parley in London, January 21. The King will speak in the royal gallery of the House of Lords at 11 o'clock in the morning, British time. This will mean 6 o'clock in the morning in the Eastern part of the United States.

Standard Oil Buys Worcester Stations

New York, Dec. 27—The application to list 15,799 additional shares of the Standard Oil Company of New York disclosed that as a result of a meeting of the board in 1928 at which a resolution was passed to use the balance of stock remaining in the stock purchase plan for employes for other corporate purposes, it is now proposed to use $394,750, consisting of these 15,790 shares, to acquire 13 filling stations and two bulk shipping stations, automobile equipment, tanks and pumps located at Worcester, Mass.

HUB PILOTS GET TIP ON NEW STUNT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

It is called the "somersault, and lives up to its name from the word "go."

Al Valliere, one of the first commercial plane operators on a large scale around Boston, back in the days immediately after the war, and who holds down the job of chief of the test room at Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Corp.'s factory at Hartford, sprung it on us, and we are passing it along to the boys with the expressed intention of J. I. "Red" Harmon, of Round Hill, South Dartmouth, seeing it and giving it a workout with his argo.

According to Valliere, aviation had produced all kinds of aerobatic maneuvers, including inverted flying. Outside loops, inverted loops, inverted spins, outside spins, figure eights on your back, inverted formation flying, everything that one could mention or conceive has been done successfully, and is being done every day in the week.

One day, while on his country-wide tour checking up on the Wasp and Hornet engines his company builds, Valliere happened to be at Nothern Field, San Diego, Cal., when one of the boys—he didn't remember his name offhand—came down and announced that he had found a new one.

EXPLAINS THE STUNT

The boys all gathered around, and this is what this enterprising young aviator said: "I was barging along, about 3000 feet up, and wanted to see how the ship would fly hands off. Didn't notice the stabilizer adjustment at all, but just took my hands and feet off the controls to give them a rest. The nose of the ship went up, reaching for the sky, and showed no signs of wanting to come down again without aid. I cut the gun, and with the motor throttled, the ship began to stall."

"Still sitting there, wondering how far I could let the ship go before it went into a spin, I decided that the plane was in a complete stall, and pushed the stick full forward, and at the same instant, opened the motor up wide. The next thing I knew, we were all over the place, and I came to the conclusion that I had gone over forward, making a complete evolution, with the wings acting as the axis of the turn, and the tail whipping around me."

Valliere continued his story to say that this chap did the same thing again, to be sure that he was correct in his surmise that he had performed the first somersault, and then came down and landed.

A couple of friends of Valliere's were tipped off on the stunt by him, and they went right up into the air and tried it for themselves. What say, Harman, give it a try and let's know what happens.

REVISING THE RULES

The rules and regulations of the airport are being revised to make them satisfactory to everyone, and Airport Super "Eddie" Edson called the second of a series of meetings, at which every commercial company at the airport is represented.

What transpired was not divulged, but the new rules will be printed and released for publication as soon as everyone is agreeable that they are oke.

Feeling that a spare propeller would not be out of place in the stock room of the Pawtucket station of Curtiss-Wright, G. Haines "Heinie" Felton, manager of that station, dropped in with a Robin, Whirlwind J-6 five powered. "Heinie" stated that everything was going smoothly at What Cheer Airport in Pawtucket, and that the ground school proved an immediate hit.

The cross-country business is still standing up, despite the inroads made by the cold weather, according to Bob Foote of Curtiss-Wright at Boston Airport, and Clem McIsaac of Skyways.

A trip was made to New York the day before the holiday, on an instant's notice, with J. Paul Herman at the controls of the Challenger-engined Robin, and the next day J. Paul went up to Rockland, Me., with the Fairchild, to collect three people who spent the early part of Christmas at their home up there, and who wanted to catch a train out of Boston that afternoon.

FAREWELL FOR "SLIM"

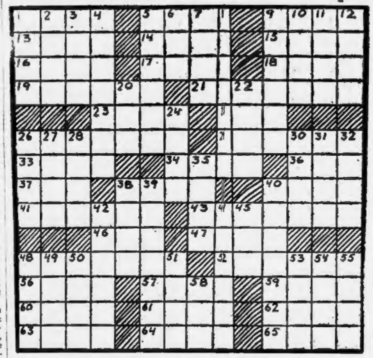

Before the chief pilot of the Beverly Airport, Lyle "Slim" Halstead, took off today for Florida in Bill Danforth's Bellanca Pacemaker, the entire personnel of the Beverly Aero Club turned out at Jimmie Gallagher's night club to bid him "happy landings."

The party was under the auspices of Elton McNeil, president of the club, and Bob Bernson, manager of Beverly Airport, and included such celebrities as Miss "Billie" Nelson, Mert Allen, treasurer, and Ed Colbert, secretary, and also a member of the Beverly Chamber of Commerce.

We are making a survey of the two other local airports, Muller Field, Revere, where Old Colony Airways hangs out, and Dennison Airport, Atlantic, where Harold Dennison's boys make merry, and the Navy Air Base at Squantum, where both sea and land planes are used, and will have a complete report on the number and types of ships used at both fields and the base tomorrow. This will wind up our tour of the local fields, and will give you the whole picture of the flying done in this part of Massachusetts.

Chance Saves Driver Gassed in Garage

Chance saved the life of William E. Sawtelle, 25, of Spring Hill ter., Somerville, overcome by carbon-monoxide in a community garage near his home.

Found unconscious about 7 o'clock he was hurried to Somerville Hospital, where he was resuscitated, and before midnight was in condition to go home.

He had been discovered in time by the luckiest chance by James J. Baron, a Somerville special police officer, who, after putting up his own automobile in his individual garage in the same semi-circular range with that of Sawtelle, on Spring Hill ter., started for his home.

Hearing the sound of a motor in one of the other garages and observing that the door of every garage in the row was closed, and knowing the danger of gas-poisoning under such circumstances, Baron investigated.

Finding that the chugging was in the Sawtelle garage, Baron opened the door and was met by a cloud of smoke and gas.

Asks $30,000 for Auto Injuries

Rutland, Vt., Dec. 27—Mrs. Olive Kerrigan, wife of Dr. J. P. Kerrigan of this city filed a $30,000 suit in United States District Court against Mrs. Mary Kelley of Bayonne, N. J., her sister-in-law, to recover for injuries that she says were received while riding in the defendant's car.

The case will be heard at the February term of court at Burlington.

N. Y. Banker's Wife Awarded Divorce

Reno, Nev., Dec. 27—Mrs. Alma Morgenthau Wertheim, daughter of Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, was granted a divorce from Maurice Wertheim, New York banker.

Custody of the three minor children is granted to Mrs. Wertheim. The father, by agreement, is to pay part of the cost of their maintenance.

The Elsie at Halifax

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 27—The Gloucester fishing schooner Elsie arrived in port for shelter and minor repairs, her first visit to Halifax since the international races of some years ago. The Elsie, commanded by Capt. Donald McCuish, has 13,000 barrels of salt fish aboard.

$20,000 Loss in Fall River Fire

Fall River, Dec. 27—Fire, which started in the cellar of a business block situated at 337-339 South Main st., caused damage estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000 and kept firemen busy for six hours.

The Minerva Cafeteria and Sugar Bowl Confectionery, situated on the ground floor of the building, were badly damaged.

GIRL SERIOUSLY HURT BY AUTO IN SALEM

Alice Kazzor, seven, of Oakland st., Salem, is on the danger list at Salem Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull, sprained arm and internal injuries as a result of being struck by an automobile in front of the Salem Theater.

The girl, accompanied by her 11-year-old sister, Mildred Kazzor, was about to cross Essex st., between two parked cars. Mildred saw a machine approaching and stepped back onto the sidewalk. Alice broke away from her older sister and ran in front of the approaching car, according to the Salem police.

The driver of the machine was Frank Rassi, of Dane st., Peabody. He stopped his machine and rushed the child to the Salem Hospital, where physicians hold out little hope for her recovery. She was unconscious when brought into the Salem institution.

Flier Lands Blazing Plane in Safety

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Dec. 27—Gliding five miles to a landing in a burning plane, a Roosevelt Field flying instructor and his student pilot, escaped injury, but their cabin plane was destroyed by fire.

Robert K. Black of Westbury, N. Y., and Roy Rochman, whom he was instructing, while flying high above Hicksville, Long Island, noticed smoke pouring from the tail of their plane.

They switched off the engine and headed for Roosevelt Field. They had scarcely climbed from their machine when it became a mass of flames.

American Explorers Fear Malay Outbreak

Manila, Dec. 27—A radio message received here said that Prof. Theodore Seelman of the University of Chicago and H. W. Wells also of Chicago, explorers, were facing a tense situation in the Dyak Country of Central Borneo fearing a Malay outbreak at any moment, following the murder recently of Provincial Commdr. J. L. de Quant by two natives.

The explorers' only contact with civilization, it was said, was by radio, through Manila. Their central base camp was reported protected by 125 native soldiers, and reinforcements were coming.

Mrs. Wertheim Wins Divorce in Reno

Reno, Dec. 27—Mrs. Maurice Wertheim, daughter of Henry Morgenthau, former American ambassador to Turkey, has received a divorce because her husband "lacked understanding of her point of view of life."

Wertheim is a prominent New York financier and one of the founders of the Theater Guild in that city. The couple were married in 1909. It was reported that Mrs. Wertheim received the custody of their three children through a settlement out of court.

Cuba Prepares for First Labor Parley

Havana, Dec. 27—Preparations are going forward for the opening on January 15 of the first Cuban Labor Congress ever held, with large delegations from all parts of the island and with a delegation to come from the American Federation of Labor as observers.

Interior points of the island will send more than 4000 men to attend the meetings to be held here. Havana will add at least 2000 workmen representatives, according to pre-congress labor reviews.

MacDonald's League Trap

British Premier Would Now Inveigle Uncle Sam Into the League of Nations Court

(Copyright, 1929)

THOUGHTFUL people welcomed the visit of Premier MacDonald to this country.

He had a chance to promote Anglo-American solidarity as a substitute for the League of Nations.

Instead, he has apparently gone back home with the idea that he can get us into the league system.

If he persists he will postpone, perhaps for years, the drawing together of the English-speaking peoples.

The MacDonald Government has issued a white paper, an official pronouncement, stating that in future wars THERE CAN BE NO NEUTRALS AMONG SIGNERS OF THE KELLOGG PACT and the covenant of the League of Nations.

In other words, all signers of the pact or the league covenant are, in the opinion of the British Government, destined to be PARTICIPANTS in all future wars, including the United States, which signed the Kellogg pact.

The argument is that if parties signing the Kellogg pact go to war there must be an aggressor.

The United States, it is claimed, must help determine the aggressor and JOIN THE OTHER POWERS IN PROCEEDING AGAINST HIM.

The United States, however, MUST NOT ITSELF DETERMINE THE AGGRESSOR.

That must be left to the INTERNATIONAL COURT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, says the British Government.

The British Government contends that its signing of the "optional clause" of this court, giving it compulsory jurisdiction over all judicial questions, was a logical consequence of signing the Kellogg pact. So when we are in the court we shall likewise be expected to sign the optional clause.

The league's court having determined the aggressor, the league will proceed against him with measures that range from economic boycott to actual hostilities.

We shall be expected to close our ports to trade with the league's declared enemy and contribute our share of troops as well.

Why?

Because a league court of which we are an official member has branded someone as aggressor and set in motion the league machinery, to which we are tied by the Kellogg pact.

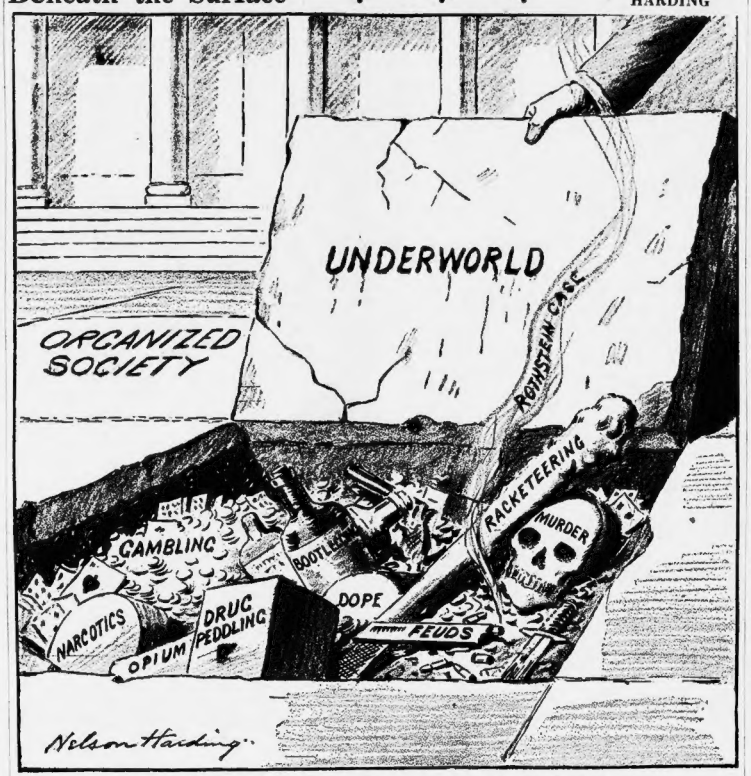

IN ACTUAL EFFECT, THE DETERMINATION OF WAR WILL BE TRANSFERRED FROM THE HANDS OF THE SENATE, ELECTED BY THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, INTO THE HANDS OF A LEAGUE OF NATIONS COURT, WITH ONE AMERICAN AMONG THE FIFTEEN JUDGES.

In plain English, this is the future offered us by the Kellogg pact League of Nations world court system.

To most Americans it is less attractive than the old American policy of minding our own business, keeping out of Europe's quarrels and maintaining a defense force strong enough to enforce our rights to peaceful neutrality while OTHERS do all the warring their hearts desire.

Beneath the Surface

By NELSON HARDING

As when some boulder in a field
Is overturned, there is revealed
Repulsive creatures underneath,

So does investigation show
An Underworld that lives below
Those ordered surfaces that we Call Organized Society.

'The Experience Ball'

That Would Be a Good Name for This "Punching Bag"

(Copyright, 1929)

A PUNCH-BAG FASTENED TO HIS HEAD.

He has a leather strap around his head, and a punching-ball fastened to that strap by an elastic cord.

The force with which you strike your opponent DEPENDS ENTIRELY ON SPEED. The muscles have nothing to do with it except as they produce the speed.

A tallow candle fired from a rifle would go through an oak door an inch thick. The high speed makes up for the softness of the candle.

The fist of a five-year-old boy, if it could travel fast enough, would knock out the greatest heavyweight fighter in the world, and kill him in addition to knocking him out.

Our interesting British "Nipper" says, philosophically, that his punch-ball represents a valuable idea; because it keeps his mind on his work. If he misses the ball once it flies back and hits him on the nose. "And that," says the "Nipper," "keeps me working fast."

Education, sermons, solemn editorials, all do their share in education. But EXPERIENCE is the GREAT teacher. One swift recoil of this punch-ball, striking the young boxer's face, will do more to make him realize the value of speed than all the warnings and advice of experienced old prize fighters.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

GIVING a man golf clubs for Christmas rushes the season without improving his game.

There are no practical clubs for home use. Some men feel that their style is hampered by the furniture which penalizes a good swing.

A niblick is the best club for a small apartment. Ring Lardner is one of our best mezzanine golfers and wires us that our system is so beneficial that he has added another room to his game.

The vestibule champion who keeps his clubs in the umbrella stand is responsible for many disastrous incidents. You are liable to pick an umbrella out at the stand and then go out in the rain trying to open a spoon-brassie.

Grantland lets up on a foolstool and then yells, "fore" which gives the next-door neighbors plenty of time to move out of their apartment.

You don't catch John D. playing in New York State when zero is collapsing. When John drives a ball into a tree he wants to see some cocoanuts fall out.

The advantage of winter golf over summer is that there are more alibis. You are allowed to tee up on the fairways. If you can reach one.

It seems that the average golfer would be content with his August duffering and call the game off when the blizzards are whistling through the direction flags.

H. G. Wells Writes on

"The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

SOME fish, curiously flattened, lie on the bottom, snapping with their wry mouths at unsuspicious passers-by, and only occasionally swimming; to a new pitch; the plaice and turbot, for example, having an astonishing power of changing color and assuming the pattern of the bottom on which they lie. Some, like the carp, have small fastidious mouths and swallow worms and such-like delicatessen; others, like the pike, have enormous jaws and cruel teeth, and destroy fishes nearly as large as themselves.

H. G. Wells

There are fish with mouths that shoot out like the lattice-work "tickers" of our fairs and snatch unwary creatures; there are fish with lures to attract their prey within reach of the hungry jaws. The flying-fish have large, broad fins so that they can skim for a considerable distance through the air.

There are cylindrical fish, ribbon-like fish, globular fish; in the abyss there are fish more grotesque, more horrible than any mythological monster. There are fresh-water fish and salt-water fish and there are some, like the salmon, that travel regularly to and fro between sea and river.

There are also fish that have structures very like lungs and that can, if they choose, breathe air. There are so to speak amphibious fish and they are found in tropical rivers subject to summer drought. Then they encase themselves in mud and lie breathing gently until the floods return.

3F. THE CYCLOSTOMES, A CLASS OF ANTIQUES

And now we come to another group less numerous now than it was in the remote past, the Cyclostomes. Of this class only a few genera now survive. Once they seem to have been the only vertebrata in existence.

The living forms are the lampreys and the hag-fish or slime eels. They live some in fresh water and some in the sea. Their bodies are long and eel-like. They breathe by means of gills as a fish does.

They have no trace of paired limbs, finny or otherwise; the skeletal supports of their gills are unlike those of any of the true fishes; they have only one middle nostril and only one nasal cavity; instead of three semi-circular canals in their ears which all other fishes possess they have one or two; in some species the hollow pituitary pouch of the brain opens into the roof of the mouth. But their most striking peculiarities are in the structure of the mouth itself.

They have no jaws and no proper teeth; instead of being a slit that can be open or shut, their mouth is a funnel that can be used as a sucker and their tongues, armed with horny imitations of teeth, can be moved like a piston in the mouth-funnel.

They nourish themselves by attaching themselves to fishes by means of this sucker and rasping off the flesh with their tongues. They may even bore through to the abdominal cavity of their victim, punching a neat round hole in his body-wall as they do so.

The earliest known fossil vertebrates are certain heavily-armoured fish-like forms more like these Cyclostomes than any other creature.

Sec. 3g.—SEMIVERTEBRATA

THE animals that we have already considered share a common plan of organization. Their most evident distinctive feature is the possession of a backbone, a column of ring-like blocks of bone or gristle joined together, running down the back and housing the spinal cord. Because of this vertebral column the animals are called vertebrates. The group includes ourselves, our domestic animals and all the largest and most conspicuous wild creatures; it is the most immediately striking and for practical purposes the most important phylum. Since they are less obtrusively important, all the animals that are not vertebrates are often lumped together as the invertebrates, although this negative group, including as it does a number of different phyla, is in reality a much more varied one than the single phylum of vertebrates.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

LEAPING into matrimony from an airplane, two thousand feet up, may be a great lark for the bride and bridegroom, in these days of parachute weddings. They may feel, after the ceremony, that nothing worse can happen to them.

But just WHY should the "best man" be required to risk his perfectly good and carefree life, by leaping with them, as he did at the most recent of those sensational affairs?

The "best man" at a wedding has always had my heart's sympathy.

Good men are loved; better men are honored; but the "best man" receives the usual reward of the altruist in this world—ingratitude, suspicion and the bill for the taxicab.

No woman ever realizes how much she owes her husband's "best man" until the excitement is all over and she wakes up to the fact that it takes more than love and a taxi to get a man to his wedding on time and in "good condition."

The "best man" usually has to supply the courage, the presence of mind, the boutonniere and the ring for the bridegroom. He lends his moral support, his blessing, his gloves and his flask. His continual reassurances, reminders and "braces" are as necessary to the bridegroom's presence and morale as are the bouquets to the bridesmaids.

And all this he does in a cause for which he has no sympathy and very little patience. For, even while he cheers him on, he secretly regards the bridegroom as a victim of dementia or a "horrible example" and pities him from the depth of his shirt-bosom.

Nothing but chivalry and his sense of honor sustains him; he feels in duty bound to produce the guilty party at the vestry door and see the "poor simp" through his terrible ordeal—just as he would deliver an intoxicated pal at his wife's doorstep.

BUT—there is where he wants to wash his hands of the whole affair!

When the bridegroom returns to normalcy and his office desk, it is TOO much to be regarded as "accessory befort the fact" in a crime that the best man would have prevented if he could.

Regarded as a savior and deliverer before the wedding, the "best man" always suspects that, after the honeymoon, he will be looked upon as a traitor, who helped "railroad" a trusting pal to the matrimonial morris chair; who "double-crossed" his old pard and turned state's evidence at the vital moment!

Celestial Tramps

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

COMETS are among the most interesting and puzzling of the celestial bodies.

They are celestial tramps, of very untrustworthy character, which go about their own mysterious purposes as if they were independent of the rest of the universe.

There are many unsolved problems concerning comets. Indeed, we are not certain regarding the birth of comets, the how, when and where of their origin.

The new "planetesimal hypothesis" of Chamberlain and Moulton and likewise its modified form, as put forward subsequently by Jeans under the name of "tidal theory," helps us to fathom some of those yet unsolved mysteries.

When two stars pass close to one another without actually colliding, each raises tides in the other. The proximity of the two bodies, as well as the speed at which they move, have their influence upon these tides.

If the bodies pass very near to each other, great arms of gas may be drawn out from the body of the star. The weightier body will, of course, effect the greater disturbance upon the body of the other.

WHEN a long filament of molten or gaseous matter is drawn out of a star, scientific calculation shows the appearance of certain peculiar phenomena. The principle of "gravitational instability," described by Newton, begins to operate.

Within those long arms or filaments of gas, condensations take place at different points. The larger condensations increase in intensity until finally the filament breaks up into a number of detached masses.

There are left smaller condensations, which tend, gradually, to be dissipated. This gaseous matter breaks up into all sorts of debris—dust, gas, stones and tiny particles of matter.

The larger elements of this debris, which is not afterward swept up by the planets in settling into their orbits, are probably comets, shooting stars and various minor bodies. Thus we may account for asteroids, meteors and the particles of Saturn's rings.

It is now believed that comets are swarms of minute bodies which are just held together sufficiently by their mutual gravitational attraction to describe a common orbit in space.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—The speakeasy cafe becomes increasingly opulent. Its entrance may be a cozy grill department door into a dark hallway, but beyond is a burst of magnificence. Instead of alcoholic rowdiness, one finds a studied calm.

Such slush salons serve meals that would cost from $7 to $8 a plate in other gilded haunts, for $1.50. They lose money on food but, of course, more than make up on wines and liquors. Those who do not buy drinks are politely turned away at the next visit.

Most of the de luxe places are conducted by experienced and high-salaried foreign chefs. They had saved and were ready when the opportunity came to launch a business that pays fabulous rewards—provided, of course, they are able to keep out of jail.

A patron is often piloted through a bright kitchen, shining with copper and nickel pans, up a flight of stairs, and at the end of a sudden turn comes upon a dining room that is not surpassed on the exclusive avenues or in the aristocratic hotels.

The waiters are those schooled in the old world. They have that unobtrusive manner of suggesting an appetizing meal and how to serve it. They know when Camembert has reached the proper ripeness and how to mix a sauce with that piquancy that makes a meal memorable.

Customers are selected with as much precision as applicants for the Social Register. Conversation never rises above a polite murmur. Any show of intoxication brings a tiptoeing head waiter with just a suggestion of a frown. Law breaking elegantes must preserve decorum.

The de luxe speakeasy, too, has revived those elaborately mysterious ladies who used to idle along the deep-cushioned divans of Peacock Alley. They come unescorted and sit alone at tables for two. They are glossy with cosmetics and flash with jewels. To a few worldlings passing by they are hailed as Nan, Maude or Yvonne. But to the stranger their eyes are cast demurely down. When the right fellow is spotted, they give the proprietor the sly wink and an introduction follows. The sequel is often spread on the first pages.

Two learned gentlemen have spoken to me sharply recently for my laxity in referring to a veterinarian as a veterinary. From now on I play safe. They shall be known in these absurdities by their thicket title—horse doctors.

They are telling the yarn of the New York acrobat who wrote to Alexander Pantages in the Los Angeles jail: "Dear Mr. Pantages: I have written you several times about my act which you promised to book. If you don't give me booking immediately I am going to make trouble for you."

One of the difficult tasks of Mayor Walker is diplomatically to avoid the numerous couples who want him to marry them. He performs ceremonies for old friends on occasions, but he is not particularly fond of the role. There are about a dozen requests a day. So far he has married 10 couples.

A young comedian returning from a two weeks' stay in London is now billed as "the international playboy."

"I do not believe," said Edgar Wallace, the English novelist, "any other city has so many affable people who suddenly smile at strangers along the streets as New York."

Sounds nice, but any time a stranger suddenly smiles at me I look for a dragging garter.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

It does not matter a feather whether a man be supported by patron or client, if he himself wants courage. —Seneca.

Peace rules the day, where reason rules the mind. —Collins.

Jealousy is said to be the offspring of Love. Yet, unless the parent makes haste to strangle the child, the child will not rest till it has poisoned the parent.—Hare.

Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force, and thoughts rule the world.—Emerson.
